KILLER OF DARLAN DIES TODAY

E. S. BECK DIES; TRIBUNE NEWS CHIEF 26 YEARS

Member of Staff Since '90s.

Edward S. Beck, former managing editor and assistant editor in chief of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, died late yesterday in Passavant hospital. Mr. Beck had been ill for several months. He was 74 years old.

A Chicago newspaper man for nearly half a century, Mr. Beck was a member of THE TRIBUNE'S editorial staff for 45 years. He had been managing editor 26 years when he became assistant editor in chief in 1937. He retired last January.

NEWSPAPER LIFE CAREER

When Edward Scott Beck was 8 years old he was the printer's devil on his father's newspaper in Holton, Kas. He took the first course given in journalism at his university. He spent his vacations at summer work on Chicago newspapers. On receiving his degree he entered the newspaper field as his life's work.

During his service he was reporter, copyreader, night city editor, assistant city editor, and city editor before he arose to full command of the news department.

Works Past 73d Birthday.

After 43 years of activity, 40 of which had been on THE TRIBUNE, he was made assistant editor in chief in 1937. That post he retained until his retirement last January, shortly after his 73d birthday.

When young Beck came to Chicago to stay—in 1893—the first World's Fair, the World's Columbian Exposition, was in progress. He covered it for THE TRIBUNE. After that time he saw the city treble in size, saw the newspaper business revolutionized.

Copy was written by hand and set by hand. Reporters didn't have typewriters and the linotype hadn't been invented. There was only one telephone in the newsroom. Reporters rode the cable cars. There were no taxicabs.

Presses Small but Sufficient.

In those old days presses were small, but they were all that was needed. The circulation of THE TRIBUNE was only a fraction of today's million and more. But there was plenty of time. The mail edition went to press at 1 a. m. and the city edition at 3 a. m. The average daily paper was 12 pages in size, and the Sunday editions ran from 42 to 48 pages.

The youthful Beck's nickname was Ned. Later it was changed to Teddy, but as Ned Beck he grew up in Holton, Kas., where they still know him by that name.

He was born on Dec. 12, 1868, in Bainbridge, Ind., a farming community 10 miles north of Greencastle. He was the son of M. M. and Mary Hamilton Scott Beck. The father served as a lieutenant in the Civil war and retired as a captain of the 18th Indiana battery of artillery.

Father Founder of Newspaper.

After the war, in 1869, Capt. Beck and his father-in-law, with their families and other relatives, saw opportunity in the west and moved to Holton, where they engaged in farming. Later Capt. Beck bought a drug store in Holton and when he was appointed postmaster, opened the postoffice in the store.

Postmasters were in politics even in those early days and, finding that a newspaper would help in his campaigns, Capt. Beck founded the Holton Recorder in 1875. It is still influential in its territory, and Capt. Beck continued to edit it until two weeks before his death on Feb. 3, 1931. At that time he was 92 years old.

By the time Ned Beck was 10 years old he was sweeping out the Recorder office and the print shop. Then he carried water upstairs—water from the town pump—and washed the printing rollers. He learned to feed the press. From that he graduated to setting type. And that included personals and other items he had gathered.

In the summer of 1883, the year he graduated from the grammar school at 14, he made a pony cam-

POLICE LEARN OF THREAT OVER STOLEN LIQUOR

Victim Brother of Red McLaughlin.

Robert E. McLaughlin, tavern owner and one time president of the Checker Cab company, was found dead with three bullet holes in his head and neck yesterday in front of 733 North Albany avenue. Police said the body apparently had been thrown from an automobile.

Information gathered last night by police pointed to trouble with remnants of the Capone mob and robbery as possible motives. There was also a possibility that the murder might have its motive traced back to the slaying of a brother, Eugene [Red] McLaughlin, in 1930, in a gang feud. Several retaliatory killings are said to have followed in the wake of "Red" McLaughlin's murder.

Tavern Damaged by Fire.

Robert McLaughlin, 42 years old, headed the cab company during turbulent years from 1926 to 1931. For the last 11 years he had operated a tavern and gambling house at 1958 North avenue. This place has been closed since fire damaged it Dec. 13.

McLaughlin's body was found by a milkman, Harold A. Penning, 6218 Roscoe street, at 2:25 a. m. The car McLaughlin had been driving several hours earlier, a 1937 Cadillac, was found in the afternoon at 2033 Wabansia avenue, a short distance from the victim's tavern.

Police were told that McLaughlin had lived in fear of attack since the gangland murder of his brother. However, this fear didn't keep him from prospering. Police said they had learned the revenue of his place Friday and Saturday nights paid all operating expenses and the gross of the other five nights was profit.

Tell of His Flashing Roll.

Investigators said McLaughlin's gambling activities were centered in some place near his North avenue establishment and that he operated several sneak spots. He is said to have paid liberally for police and political protection.

Robbery came to the fore as a possible motive after police were told McLaughlin, intoxicated and flashing a large amount of money, was traveling about taverns and cafes in the area just north of North avenue on Damen avenue between 2 and 4 a. m. yesterday, and a few hours before his death about 7:30 a. m.

Lt. Thomas Sheridan of the North avenue police said a woman, whose name he declined to announce, had told him that McLaughlin left a restaurant at 2011 North avenue at 4 a. m., waving to two men. Police indicated that they know the identity of these men and expect to question them today.

Trace Stolen Liquor Clew.

A week before the fire police said they were informed McLaughlin had received about $20,000 worth of stolen liquor at the place, and that the liquor escaped damage in the blaze. It was reported to have been trucked away at night after the fire.

Police said they learned that about the same time the stolen liquor was delivered to the cafe, several men threatened McLaughlin in the tavern. The men departed, leaving McLaughlin white and nervous when customers entered. It is said McLaughlin promptly followed the disturbing visitors, and returned several hours later obviously relieved and telling friends everything "had been squared up."

Conflicting Stories as to Gang.

There were conflicting reports as to whether the remnants of the Capone mob were "in" at McLaughlin's tavern. Police were considering the possibility that the shooting resulted from some difficulties he had with gangsters.

McLaughlin had only $1.05 in coins in his pocket when found dead, and there was nothing but identification cards in his billfold. He was wearing a dark suit and a blue shirt.

There was evidence that McLaughlin had put up a fight against his attackers. A viser, apparently from the car of his slayers, was found beneath

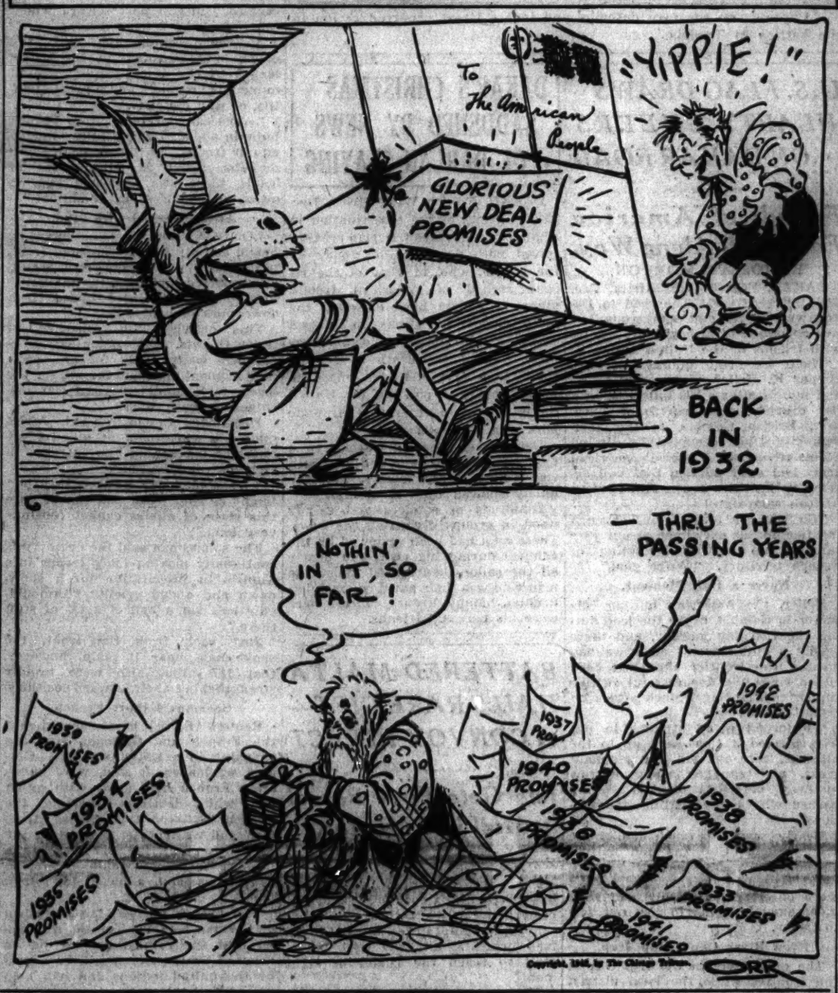
MOSTLY WRAPPING PAPER



Slain Woman's Body Found in Flooded Mine

Eldorado, Ill., Dec. 25 [Special].—The body of a woman, her black hair reaching to her waist, today was found in the icy water of a flooded and abandoned mine shaft.

The woman's ankles were tied together with heavy rope weighted with a 100 pound block of concrete thought to be a portion of a culvert headwall. Sheriff O. T. Pickering said she had been murdered.

Authorities believe the crime took place at least 6 months and possibly more than a year ago and that the body owed its preservation to the cold water in which it had been immersed. The body was nude.

Mine Abandoned in 1937.

The sheriff said coal mining from this shaft was abandoned in 1937 and that since that time, until recently, there had been at least 25 feet of water in the shaft, the bottom of which is about 60 feet below the ground level. Because of its depth, this water has been cold summer and winter, according to the sheriff. In the last few years the water has receded to a depth of about 10 feet.

Two young men, aimlessly tossing stones into the water this afternoon, noticed a human hand extending above the surface. They reported to the sheriff, who summoned a state mine rescue crew.

The body was in an erect position, anchored by three or four feet of rope extending from the ankles to the concrete slab.

Estimates on the age of the woman varied from 28 to 35. The sheriff said her long black hair is the only clew to her identity. Her teeth, he said, were perfect, having no dental work.

Identification Difficult.

Nails on both the fingers and toes showed evidence of having been well cared for, Pickering said. Identification of the body from facial features will be difficult, he said. The woman was about 5 feet four inches tall and weighed from 125 to 130 pounds.

No reports of a missing woman corresponding to this description have been received in Saline county during the last two years, according to the sheriff.

The abandoned mine is on the Adam Robinson farm, about three miles southeast of Eldorado. It is about 100 feet from highway 142.

SNAKE DANCE AND LIVE CAMELS ENLIVEN DAY FOR YANKS IN INDIA

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 25 (AP).—Yankee soldiers festooned with bright necklaces of flowers snake danced thru New Delhi's streets behind an impromptu Indian band before they sat down to their Christmas dinner of goose and all the trimmings.

Men in the combat zones and other field areas got an even bigger break on Christmas dinners. By strenuous efforts the service of supply got turkeys to them all. There were not enough turkeys for the men in New Delhi, too, but they willingly settled for goose.

Those who paraded had their regular day off today. Nobody knocked off simply because it was Christmas. The garlands were provided by native valets with an eye to baksheesh. Last night the men sang carols at an open air religious service at the barracks, with two live camels for atmosphere.

YANKS IN HAWAII MOUNTAINS GET GIFTS BY 'CHUTE

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 25.—Soldiers, sailors, and marines thruout the Hawaiian area were at battle stations today with only the usual number of liberty passes, but Christmas cheer was taken to the men.

Soldiers on duty at isolated mountain posts received presents by parachute thru arrangements between the air force at Wheeler field and the women's division of the office of civilian defense, which collected the gifts.

Army, navy, and civilian postal systems took special pains to deliver tons of gifts from relatives of thousands of soldiers, sailors, marines, and civilian workers engaged in the defense of this Pacific outpost. For the first time since Dec. 7, 1941, all war workers on military projects of the army and navy had a holiday.

Stolen $80,000 Rembrandt Recovered, Germans Say

LONDON, Dec. 25 (AP).—The German controled Netherlands radio said today three Dutch paintings stolen recently, including the Amsterdam Art gallery's $80,000 Rembrandt representing a man cutting a goose quill, had been recovered and the thief arrested.

College Spurns NYA's Money; Doesn't Need It

Crawfordsville, Ind., Dec. 25 [Special].—Trustees of Wabash college here have voted to decline a scheduled payment of $2,160 by the national youth administration for wages to college students for part time "made work" jobs during the current school year, it was announced today.

College officials made public a letter sent by Dr. Frank U. Sparks, president of the college, to Aubrey Williams, NYA director, informing him that the money will not be needed and also transmitting an "urgent recommendation" of the trustees that NYA discontinue as a national policy "that part of its program calling for the creation of jobs and payment of wages to college students."

More Jobs Than Students.

Wabash college, with 380 students, has been unable to supply thru its employment director enough student workers to fill requests from business houses, householders, and other normal sources, President Sparks said. All students desiring work have been given jobs in private employment.

"All students entering Wabash who have desired to work this year have been provided with jobs independent of funds supplied by the NYA," the letter to Williams stated.

"At the December meeting of the board of trustees of the college the whole NYA program for colleges was discussed. The trustees considered that the conditions under which the NYA was organized in 1935 no longer exist."

Called Arrogant Burocrat.

Williams has been one of the government's most prolific spenders of public funds thruout the New Deal. He was assistant adminstrator of the old federal emergency relief administration in 1934 and later acting head of the WPA. Since 1938 he had headed NYA. He was denounced as "an arrogant and dictatorial burocrat" by Sen. Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.], last February for criticizing students of Harding college because they asked to be removed from the NYA pay roll. In 1936 Williams caused a storm in congress when he urged the Communist controled Workers alliance, an organization of WPA workers, to "keep your friends in power."

GEN. EISENHOWER LEAVES FRONT TO HANDLE CRISIS

ASSASSINATION FEARED AS BLOW TO U. S. PRESTIGE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25 (AP).—Was the murder of Adm. Jean Darlan in Algiers yesterday an attempt to assassinate American power and prestige in Africa?

Lt. Gen. Eisenhower.

This question hung heavily over Washington today as President Roosevelt and his military and political advisers studied the sudden turn of events in the vital French African zone and pondered the problems now confronting Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Meager reports from the scene of the assassination left unclarified the precise political affiliation of the slayer, tho one of Darlan's closest associates said the killing was inspired by the axis or its collaborationists.

First to Quit Hitler.

Despite the fog of uncertainty surrounding the affair, however, one vital fact stood out: Darlan, the first outstanding axis collaborationist who dared to quit Hitler for the allies, was dead.

Not only was Darlan the first key man of Vichy to quit Hitler cold; he quit him to get aboard the first great American offensive against Hitler's armies. He quit him to join the Americans, and he lived for six weeks.

Thus Lt. Gen. Eisenhower, who as late as yesterday morning could concentrate on the task of ejecting the axis from Tunisia, is confronted today by another most urgent assignment: The task of demonstrating to all the world that those who spurn Hitler to join the Americans do not necessarily die a violent death.

It is even more urgently important to demonstrate that Frenchmen and others in Africa who are friendly to the Americans will at least not be stabbed in the back.

Troops' Safety at Stake.

On the latter demonstration depends nothing less than the safety of American supply lines and communications in Africa, the security of planes and flying fields against sabotage, the assurance to American, French, and British soldiers on the Tunisian front that behind them all is well.

President Roosevelt, who last night denounced the slaying of Darlan as a cowardly "murder in the first degree," issued no further statement today. The state department also was silent.

At Fighting French headquarters here, satisfaction was expressed that Gen. Henri Honore Giraud had taken over temporary control in North Africa pending election of Darlan's successor. A spokesman voiced the view that if Giraud could be persuaded to take on the political responsibility involved, he might well succeed in establishing a united front of Frenchmen against the axis. He added, however, that it still remained to be seen whether the other French leaders in Africa would agree among themselves to Giraud, and whether Giraud would abandon his previously expressed preference for a purely military post.

OPA HEAD BOOSTS FUEL OIL PRICE 3/10C PER GALLON

Price Administrator Leon Henderson in Washington, D. C., yesterday authorized a three-tenths of a cent a gallon increase in the price of fuel oil, in a move which his office said was designed to offset some of the additional costs carried by oil dealers as the result of emergency contingencies. The increase is effective Tuesday.

In Chicago Frank E. Spencer, president of the Burning Oil Distributors association, said the increase is "apparently an attempt to allow dealers to defray some of the costs brought about by the cumbersome rationing system."

"In fact, the three-tenths of a cent increase will just about take care of additional freight and tax costs the industry is already paying," Spencer said. "The only way further increases can be avoided in the price of fuel oil is to change the burdensome OPA requirements. This move doesn't help us save rubber, and that is what we are trying to do."

Giraud Temporary Successor of Admiral.

ALGIERS, Dec. 25 (AP).—The assassin of Adm. Jean Darlan, identified only as a youth of French nationality whose Italian mother lives in Italy, was condemned tonight to die tomorrow morning.

Gen. Henri Giraud.

The slayer's name was withheld by the French communique announcing the death penalty. It was learned he had spent most of his life in Paris and Italy and had come to Algiers a year ago and entered the university.

The assassin used the name "Morand" when he gained entry to the summer palace where he ambushed the French high commissioner who had been helping the allies. The communique said his name could not be announced "for reasons of national security."

Believed Mission Had Failed.

It was learned that when first questioned the killer believed his attempt on Darlan's life had failed.

"I am sorry I missed my mission," he said.

When told his victim was dead, he remarked:

"So much the better. You may kill me now."

The following official communique was issued:

"The court martial of the 19th military district met today at 6 p. m. to try the assassin of Adm. Darlan. The court martial condemned the assassin to death, and sentence will be carried out tomorrow morning.

"The assassin, who was caught in the act, made a complete confession. He insisted that he acted without accomplices. The assassin, whose name is being kept secret for reasons of national security, is of French nationality. Inquiry revealed his mother is Italian and is now living in Italy. Several letters between the assassin and his mother were seized, but the contents threw no light on the case or actual circumstances of the crime."

Eisenhower Leaves Front.

In the meantime, Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower cut short his Christmas visit to the Tunisian front lines and hurried back to his headquarters tonight to consult with French leaders on a successor to Darlan.

Gen. Eisenhower immediately conveyed his sympathies to Mme. Darlan, and Gen. George C. Marshall, United States army chief of staff, said in a cable that he was shocked, adding that Darlan had "rendered service of vast importance to our armed forces."

Foremost among those mentioned for the high commissionership was Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, a hero of both World wars and a figure around whom all the dissident French elements could rally to carry on the fight against the axis.

Giraud was quickly installed as acting French ruler of all the African colonies handed over to the allies almost without bloodshed by Darlan, but only last week—before Darlan's death—he expressed the wish to avoid politics and continue in a strictly fighting rôle.

He May Not Accept.

Beyond question Giraud was regarded with more interest than any other French figure in North Africa but for the moment there was no indication that he would accept the leadership from which Darlan was suddenly removed by the pistol shots of a 23 year old assassin on Christmas eve.

[Observers said Darlan's assassination may have been [1] German inspired, [2] the act of a "nationalistic" Frenchman, [3] inspired by a follower of Gen. Charles de Gaulle. The Germans charged it was British inspired. Some of the observers said, "When you get to the nationalistic Frenchman you're probably pretty close to the truth."]

The whole political situation will be reviewed at tomorrow's meeting of the imperial council headed by the governors general of French Africa, Gen. Eisenhower will attend the meeting.

Gov. Gen. Auguste Nogues of Morocco and his staff were among the first of the leading French officials to arrive.

They were met by Robert D. Murphy, acting as President Roosevelt's personal representative.

Like Eisenhower, Giraud was visiting his troops in the field when word was received of Darlan's death. He hastened back to Algiers. The arrival of Pierre Boisson, governor general of French West Africa, still was awaited.

Nogues was on an inspection trip to Marrakech when informed of the assassination. He returned to Rabat in order to take a plane to Algiers. The French Afrique agency reported from Rabat that all flags were flying at half mast, and that the sultan of Morocco had sent condolences.

Darlan's body was to be taken tonight to the Algiers cathedral where a solemn mass will be attended by French civil and military authorities. Then the funeral cortège, with military ceremony, will proceed to the little chapel of Sainte Marie, adjoining the summer palace in which the admiral was shot. There, troops will pass in review in what French sources said would be a "symbol of a nation in arms." United States and British troops will participate in the ceremonies.

Giraud Visits Bier.

During the day the body was taken from the hospital chapel to the governor general's palace, where the public was accorded the opportunity of passing the bier.

Many women were in the column, which was unbroken from 2 p. m. until the doors of the building were closed for the night. Children idled past, holding their mothers' hands. Occasionally an American soldier or two walked by, and small groups of British soldiers were seen.

Gen. Giraud came and saluted. Other high French officers left wreaths. French naval and air commanders paid their respects; so, too, did Arab chieftains.

Algiers morning newspapers, heavy black borders on their front pages, carried editorial tributes to the 61 year old Darlan.

Avoid Mention of Giraud.

The Algiers press avoided mention of Giraud or any other French leaders in connection with the future government of the farflung North African empire, which has become the base from which the allies are driving to wipe the axis from the continent, and a possible springboard for an eventual assault on axis held Europe.

Calm prevailed in Algeria, French Morocco, and West Africa, vast parts of empire aligned with the allies by the admiral with a minimum of bloodshed.

(London reported that intimates of Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French, said the general would declare his willingness to cooperate with Gen. Giraud as head of French North Africa.)

FORESEES FRENCH UNITY.

The pistol shots which put an end to the admiral's enigmatic career caused anxiety in allied capitals, but many observers in London expressed belief it might permit the rallying of all Frenchmen outside Vichy control to a united leadership.

Five successors to Darlan were mentioned in London:

1. Gen. Giraud, who escaped from the Germans in this and the last war, and then escaped by plane and submarine from Vichy to assume control of the French forces. He preferred military leadership to politics, but the death of Darlan may change his plans.

2. Gen. Jean Marie Bergeret, former aviation secretary in the French cabinet and close associate of Darlan, who declared Darlan was "the victim of an assassin inspired by those who did not pardon him for having taken up arms on the side of the allies against Germany."

3. Gen. Auguste Nogues, governor of French Morocco which put up the most serious opposition to United States landing forces.

4. Pierre Boisson, governor general of French West Africa, who delivered that vast territory and vital Dakar without a shot at Darlan's urging.

5. Yves Chatel, governor of Algeria.

Branded as Murder.

Censorship rigidly guarded details of the assassination, branded by President Roosevelt as cowardly first degree murder. The admiral was shot in a corridor leading to his office in the government palace in Algiers. One bullet hit his mouth, another penetrated his lung to his heart. He died in an ambulance en route to a hospital.

It seemed unlikely that the imperial council would name a successor outside its own ranks. The nominee, however, will have to meet specifications of the United States and British occupation authorities.

Should the choice be acceptable to De Gaulle, a prompt union of all Frenchmen might be accomplished.

Gen. Bergeret broadcast an appeal to all Frenchmen to unite "for the only fight that counts—the liberation of France."

"All attempts at dividing the population will be crushed," he declared.

YANKS AT CANAL ZONE READY FOR FOE ON YULETIDE

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Dec. 25 (AP).—Soldiers, sailors, and marines charged with protection of the Panama canal spent Christmas day on full duty status, a continuing alert being the order for air, sea, and land patrols. The Christmas message from Maj. Gen. Hrbert Harmon to his sixth air force command stressed that a fighting man's responsibility is constant and that all must remain alert in guarding this vital link between the Pacific and Atlantic.

Lt. Gen. George Brett, commanding the Caribbean area, said in his Christmas message that "while our duties deprive us of normal, happy associations and the joys of the period, there is a satisfaction in knowing our general determination to carry on assures success."

Men on duty, even those in secret outposts, enjoyed turkey dinners—with portions of almost two pounds to the man. Those who were lucky enough to have a daily pass on Christmas day were limited as usual in their entertainment, but there were free movies, special U. S. O. dances, and contacts by wire with loved ones at home.

NEGRO WAITRESS SLAIN.

Lulu Hutchinson, 28 years old, colored, of 4818 Langley avenue, was shot and fatally wounded yesterday in a restaurant at 737 East 47th street, where she was employed as a waitress. Police said they were seeking a man named by witnesses as the killer.

DARLAN'S KILLER JUSTIFIED, SAYS DE GAULLE RADIO

Claim Admiral's 'Actions Caught Up with Him.'

New York, Dec. 25 [Special].—A fighting French spokesman commenting on the assassination of Adm. Jean Darlan in a radio broadcast today from Brazzaville, French Equatorial Africa, defended the assassin as "entitled to all the extenuating circumstances possible," and declared that "never has an assassination been more similar to a punishment from the sky."

The broadcast was heard here by the Columbia Broadcasting system.

"As long as Darlan lived, we judged his acts with the utmost severity," the spokesman said. "It is not today when he is dead that we are going to change our mind. Actually, what did happen? Adm. Darlan's actions have finally caught up with him."

Cites Roosevelt Comment.

Referring to President Roosevelt's condemnation of the assassination as "first degree murder," the Fighting French spokesman suggested that the President might make a similar statement if Adolf Hitler, Hermann Goering, or Heinrich Himmler, chief of all Nazi police, were assassinated in Germany.

"As a civilized man, President Roosevelt would say that Hitler, Goering, or Himmler had been murdered," the spokesman said. "The President, no doubt, would condemn such a procedure because nothing can justify a political assassination.

"Men like Hitler, Goering, Himmler should be tried, not killed. But at the same time, as a civilized man, President Roosevelt would certainly take into account the nature of the act because, even if as such the assassination cannot be excused, the perpetrator has a right to excuses, to all kinds of excuses."

The spokesman said that altho he did not know the identity of the assassin and was not sure that he was French, "we can envisage thousands of reasons the assassin might have held as legitimate."

"Avenge Years of Treason."

"If he were French, what could he say?" the spokesman asked. "He can say, 'I wanted to avenge my country of two years of treason and shame brought upon it by Darlan.' Maybe he is a sailor. Then he will have specific reason to say: 'I wanted to avenge so many of my comrades massacred at Dakar, Casablanca, Toulon. I wanted to avenge all these splendid ships, needlessly sunk in harbors, the whole fleet of France, the best and last of its kind, and shamefully left inactive.'

"Maybe this assassin is a soldier. He would also have specific reason to say: 'I wanted to avenge so many of my comrades needlessly killed on the battlefields of Syria, in order to prevent our British friends from taking over the airports of Syria which Darlan had given to our German enemies. I wanted to avenge so many of my comrades, needlessly massacred at Madagascar, to prevent our friends the British from saving the island from a government which was going to hand it over to our enemies, the Japanese.'

"Maybe our assassin is a worker, and he will have specific reasons for saying: 'I wanted to avenge so many of my comrades who today live a convict's life in German factories as a consequence of the economic collaboration, the foundation of which was laid by Darlan.'"

ARGENTINA GOES FOR SWIM IN HOT CHRISTMAS SUN

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 25.—Argentina celebrated Christmas in the sweltering heat of a mid-summer day. A strong sun blazing out of a cloudless sky, coupled with a high humidity, caused acute discomfort to many millions prevented by their occupations from leaving the cities.

This being the height of the holiday season, Buenos Aires was comparatively deserted, yet record crowds thronged the beaches along the river front and bathing pools on the outskirts of the city. The race courses were well attended this afternoon.

As in most Catholic countries, the celebration of Christmas is more religious than sentimental. Christmas trees and gifts, which form such a large part of Christmas tradition in Anglo-Saxon countries, are almost unknown here.

By long standing tradition, Christmas was ushered in by the drawing of the great state lottery with its prize of slightly less than $1,500,000. First prize this year fell to a number of humble workers who had shared a ticket.

YANKS' YULETIDE SOX FILLED WITH HOLES: STILWELL

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 24 [Delayed].—"Most of us will have large holes in the toes of our Christmas stockings this year," said Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. [Uncle Joe] Stilwell, commander of United States army forces in China, Burma and India, in greetings to the American soldiers under his command in this corner of the world.

The phrase was true. Most of his men, never before away from the United States on Christmas day, now find themselves stationed in a country that does not celebrate nationally the morning of Christ's birth.

The Americans have five Christmas trees—evergreens from a hill near Chungking. In a country that does not make Christmas ornaments it has been impossible to decorate the trees as royally as usual. The silver consists of a few whisps cut from tinfoil accumulated from old cigaret packages.

U.S. FLAG DRAWS HEARTY CHEERS ON DAKAR ROAD

Friends of America Found All Along Way.

BY JOSEPH MORTON.

DAKAR, French West Africa, Dec. 22—[Delayed]—(AP).—The road to Dakar was rough and dangerous but was sprinkled from beginning to end with friends of the United States.

These were the findings of Maj. Homer K. Heller of Newark, N. J., and myself after a 200 mile ride in a flag draped army jeep from Bathurst, British Gambia, to this fortress city [now occupied by United States troops and a special American army and navy mission that will develop its facilities in the allied North African campaign.]

"So you are back again," French frontier guards exclaimed as our jeep rambled up to the beginning of French territory. "We're glad."

Never a Dull Moment.

Heller, the American military observer in Gambia, drove the jeep during the two day journey, and there wasn't a dull moment after we had crossed the frontier that had been closed since the unsuccessful British supported Fighting French attack on Dakar in 1940.

We forded many streams in our jeep, pushed it thru sand up to the hubcaps, threaded six foot elephant grass, and chugged along narrow highway corridors flanked with barbed wire and bristling fortifications.

Nearly every French soldier we saw saluted. Civilians and natives waved wildly, and the cry "Americans!" greeted us everywhere. We were entertained lavishly and were given enough cognac to float our way to Dakar.

Even River Can't Stop Jeep.

The only delay in the trip was at the frontier while the local district commissioner telephoned to Dakar for instructions. This call was relayed to Gen. Pierre Boisson, French West African governor general, and back came the answer: "You will be permitted to cross."

We set out from Bathurst Dec. 18. We spread a large American flag across the hood of the jeep and loaded the sturdy little machine with tins of gasoline. A barge carried us across the two mile wide Gambia river. Thirty yards from the north shore our barge scraped bottom, but we drove the jeep into the water and reached the beach without a whimper from its engine.

By midafternoon we reached the French frontier after negotiating heavy sand and grass trails guarded by native troops.

Bottles Rushed Out.

The first response to our appearance at the border was a rush by the French guards to bring out a table, bottles, and glasses. It was only a matter of seconds, it seemed, until the natives and troops had turned out to greet us. The native chief asked for a ride in the jeep. He got it.

We headed northward with a safe conduct pass after shaking scores of hands. The French road, by comparison with those on the Gambian side of the border, was excellent. The district commissioner guided us to a friend's home at Toubakouta, 20 miles inside the border, where we spent the night.

Our new host promptly spread a feast equal to anything I had ever eaten in the United States. Of course the wines were excellent.

Pillboxes Guard Towns.

The next day we went thru one of the most heavily fortified sections of West Africa, "La Petite Cote," and the entrance to every sizable town was protected with barbed wire and pillboxes. Soldiers halted us frequently, inspected our passes, and immediately became cordial.

Near Dakar we got the impression that while the French troops were pledged to fight off all aggressors, they did not want to fight any Americans.

DARLAN'S DEATH LAID TO BRITISH BY GERMAN RADIO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 25.—The news of Adm. Jean Darlan's assassination in Algiers first became public here after the 8 a. m. BBC broadcast, and, as there were no newspapers published today and will be none tomorrow, ears all over the country are glued to radios for news.

While official British comment was being withheld, the axis was busy accusing the British of having arranged the assassination thru Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French. The German radio, in German language broadcasts, asserted Darlan's last words were: "Nobody can help me, since England has achieved her goal."

DAKAR'S CHRISTMAS SADDENED BY NEWS OF DARLAN SLAYING

DAKAR, French West Africa, Dec. 25 (AP).—News of the assassination in Algiers of Adm. Jean Darlan was received with consternation today by the people, who, in view of the recent arrival of American troops, otherwise would have observed the most joyous Christmas in several years. A brief official radio announcement told of the death of Darlan, the French African leader whose influence made it possible for United States troops to enter this strategic port area without a fight.

Darlan was received warmly on a visit several weeks ago and his death was a blow to the masses who genuinely showed they liked him.

Hundreds of soldiers and sailors stood in groups discussing the news. These men had been reviewed by the admiral during his visit, and nearly all the sailors had served under the man who was their naval commander-in-chief. Many French officers here were his personal friends.

BATTERED MALTA HAILS RARE GIFT—A CONVOY INTACT

Isle Gets First Parcel Mail in 8 Months.

BY HARRY CROCKETT.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Dec. 25 (AP).—The finest Christmas present battered little Malta ever prayed for has been delivered—a record shattering convoy carrying stores, small Christmas presents, and the first parcel mail to reach the island in eight months.

The convoy, moving from the east with strong naval and air support, was the first to reach Malta without damage or loss in more than a year, indicating that a great change has taken place in the eastern Mediterranean situation. I was aboard a warship on the historic mission. One other convoy reached Malta intact earlier, but not without some damage.

The captain of a cruiser in the convoy said the main factor in making the safe trip possible was the extended allied grip on the African north coast, providing bases for fighter plane aid to the ships as they steamed within range of Italian air fields.

Unloads by Moonlight.

The convoy entered Malta's grand harbor and began unloading its much needed cargo by bright moonlight Nov. 19. [The British admiralty released the first word of the operation this week.]

En route, there had been unsuccessful attacks by the enemy in which the United States navy gun crews of some of the merchantmen played a big part in driving the enemy away and scoring at least probable damage to an Italian torpedo bomber.

At another time there was a submarine scare, but it, too, was removed. Fighter planes spotted a surfaced U-boat and forced it to dive to safety. [The admiralty said a U-boat was destroyed by two warships.]

The captain said that when the convoy reached port he was "particularly impressed by the sight of American sailors with their white hats, hustling around the ships and docks" as steam winches began to move the cargo ashore.

"Like City of Dead."

"Still," he said, "it seemed like entering a city of the dead because the entire harbor area, with terrible damage everywhere, was silent as a tomb except for the noise of the winches."

When daylight came the quiet was broken.

"From docks and battlements," the captain said, "residents soon discovered our presence and greeted us with shouts of 'Thank you,' and 'Well done.'"

BRIG. GEN. BYERS AWARDED D. S. C. BY MacARTHUR

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, Dec. 26 [Saturday]—(AP).—Gen. Douglast MacArthur today awarded the distinguished service cross to Brig. Gen. Clovis E. Byers of Columbus, O., for extraordinary heroism in action near Buna, New Guinea, Dec. 15.

Gen. Byers' hand was smashed by a sniper's bullet while he was leading an attack upon Buna village, which now is in allied hands.

He carried a tommy gun into the attack. The sniper's bullet disabled his trigger hand so he gave the weapon to a soldier, but continued to direct the assault.

Gen. Byers has been promoted to a brigadier general since he arrived in Australia.

ALLIES BEAT OFF ENEMY 30 MILES SOUTH OF TUNIS

French Seize Prisoners and War Material.

ALLIED HDQ., French North Africa, Dec. 25 (AP).—A mixed United States-British force has occupied a position six miles northeast of Mejez-el-Bab, beating off sharp enemy counterattacks in this area, about 30 miles southwest of Tunis.

In the same area allied air patrols shot up ground targets, but bad weather curtailed flying operations.

To the south, allied French troops were "violently attacked by the enemy thruout yesterday" in an area west of Kairouan, 63 miles south of Mejez-el-Bab and 40 miles west of Sousse, eastern Tunisian port toward which the French have been driving.

A French communique said "the enemy was repelled on the whole length of the front, leaving behind numerous prisoners and a great quantity of war materiel."

"American aircraft," the French bulletin added, "successfully supported our troops. In the sector of Pont-du-Fahs, about 25 miles south of Tunis, there was restricted fighting owing to bad weather conditions."

Areas Covered with Mud.

LONDON, Dec. 25 (AP).—Increasing patrol activity on the Tunisian front, particularly in the northern sector, was reported tonight, altho the battle area oozed with mud under fresh downpours of winter rain.

This activity still consisted of feeler thrusts. The major battle apparently waited only for an opportune moment and solid footing for the heavy tanks and motorized war machines on both sides.

Dispatches from North Africa quoted a spokesman at allied headquarters concerning the increase in night patrol operations.

"We cannot say what it may portend," he said, "but you can be sure this state of affairs cannot continue very long."

The spokesman said the enemy was continually moving more troops into Tunisia in preparation for a showdown and added grimly: "Undoubtedly he's got a hell of a lot of stuff there."

Just back from the front, the spokesman made it plain, however, that the allies also were rapidly strengthening their forward positions.

Germans Exhort French.

Reuters [British news agency] said the French and Germans now are engaging in a leaflet warfare. German warplanes, it said, were showering French held areas with green and white leaflets exhorting the French to "stop this useless struggle" and with passes permitting the French to enter the Nazi lines on the promise that they would be treated as friends and allowed to return home.

The French answer, floating down on German occupied Tunisia, responded that the French are raising an army of 500,000 which will be armed by the united nations and will help the allies "throw the Germans into the sea."

There still were no signs of a major clash on the Libyan front, where the fleeing Rommel would not stand and fight. The Cairo communique said there was "nothing to report" from the forces pursuing the axis around the Gulf of Sirte coast.

Allied Artillery in Action.

ROME, Dec. 25 [from Italian broadcasts]—(AP).—New allied counterattacks, supported by artillery, were declared by the Italian high command today to have been repulsed by axis forces in the battle of Tunisia. The high command said there was lively activity in the Sirte region of Libya, where allied planes bombed an axis airdrome. It declared two of the raiders were shot down.

2 CHICAGOLAND MEN PROMOTED ON BATTLEFIELDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—Two Cook county [Illinois] men were among nine officers promoted on battlefields in North Africa for gallantry in action, the war department disclosed tonight. The officers demonstrated their ability to lead troops to combat and were promoted in accordance with the war department policy to seek out leaders in battle.

Second Lt. Randall W. Livingston of 2048 West 68th street, Chicago, was promoted for leading a company against a fort in Morocco. Livingston took over command of his company after his superior officer was wounded.

Second Lt. William J. Voller of 5416 West 22d place, Cicero, Ill., was promoted to first lieutenant on Nov. 9 for leading a volunteer patrol which silenced a machine gun nest in the face of heavy fire. This enabled Voller's battalion to achieve its objective.

KING GEORGE TO BRITISH EMPIRE: 'KEEP TOGETHER!'

Stresses What Might Have Been Lost.

LONDON, Dec. 25 (AP).—In a Christmas message to British peoples thruout the world, King George VI stressed the importance of the empire today and said the war had shown "the value of what we might have lost."

"Many of you to whom I am speaking are far away overseas," he said. "You realize at first hand the importance and meaning of those outposts of empire which the wisdom of our forefathers selected and which your faithfulness will defend.

"For there was danger that we should lose such and this has opened our eyes to the value of what we might have lost.

"Recent victories won by the united nations enable me to speak with firm confidence about the future.

Heartened by U. S. Aid.

"On the southern shores of the Mediterranean, the 1st and 8th armies, our fleets and air forces are, advancing toward each other, heartened and greatly fortified by the timely and massive expeditionary armies of the United States.

"Tremendous blows have been struck by the armies of the soviet union, the effects of which cannot yet be measured on the minds and bodies of the German people.

"In the Pacific, we watch with thrilled attention the counter-strokes of our Australian and American comrades.

"India, who is still threatened with Japanese invasion, has found in her loyal fighting men more than a million strong champions to stand at the side of the British army in the defense of Indian soil.

"We still have tasks ahead of us, perhaps harder even than those which we have already accomplished. We face these with confidence, for today we stand together.

Must Work Together.

"Many of you to whom I am speaking are far away overseas. The queen and I feel most deeply for all of you who have lost or are parted from your dear ones, and our hearts go out to you with sorrow and with comfort but also with pride.

"We send a special message of remembrance to the wounded and sick in hospitals wherever they may be and to prisoners of war who are enduring their long exile with dignity and fortitude.

"The suffering and hardship shared together have given us a new understanding of each others' problems. The lessons learned during the 40 tremendous months behind us have taught us how to work together for victory, and we must see to it that we keep together after the war to build a worthier future."

This appeared to parallel Prime Minister Churchill's recent assertion that he was not premier "to preside over the liquidation of the empire."

"On our visits to war industries in every part of the country," the king continued, "the queen and I have watched with admiration the steady growth of that vital war production, the fruits of which now are being used by every branch of our forces in all theaters of war.

Tells Lincoln Story.

"So let us brace and prepare ourselves for the days which lie ahead. Victory will bring us even greater world responsibilities and we must not be found unequal to a task in the discharge of which we shall draw on the storehouse of our experience and tradition.

"Our European allies, their sovereigns, heads and governments, whom we are glad to welcome here in their distress, count on our aid to help them return to their native lands and to rebuild the structure of a free and glorious Europe.

"A former President of the United States [Lincoln] used to tell of a boy who was carrying an even smaller child up a hill.

"Asked whether the heavy burden was not too much for him, the boy answered: 'It's not a burden. It's my brother.'

"So, let us welcome the future in a spirit of brotherhood and thus make a world in which, please God, all may dwell together in justice and in peace."

NURSES LOOK IN VAIN FOR BEAUTY SHOP IN AFRICA

Soldiers Try to Buy Them Stockings, Slips, Etc.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Dec. 24 [Delayed]—(AP).—The first contingent of United States nurses arrived here just before Christmas, still excited over their trip from Britain.

They tried to find something that looked like a beauty shop, and something that would remind them of Christmas back home, but in both instances they were disappointed.

Among the first questions asked the girls—all of them commissioned officers—was: "Are you still forbidden to get married?"

There was a swelling chorus of replies: "No."

Soldiers Do Their Shopping.

The nurses finally managed to get a wan little Christmas tree for themselves. They agreed that: "We like this country well enough, but wish it were a bit more Christmasy."

The nurses stopped first in Oran. American soldiers there went shopping for them, trying to buy stockings, slips, and such things. They dug into their own barrack bags for equipment the girls lacked or had lost en route.

First Lt. Ethel E. Larsen of Kinballton, Ia., said, "The boys were perfectly marvelous to us, and don't think we haven't appreciated it."

In 250 Bed Hospital.

The girls are all graduate nurses and now proud members of the army nurses corps. They are settling down to their preliminary work in a military hospital which will have a minimum of 250 beds. They are subject to training discipline not unlike that of the soldiers, but they are taking it in stride.

In the contingent of nurses are Second Lts. Edith Gaeckle of Kulm, N. D., and June Ellertsen of Champaign, Ill.

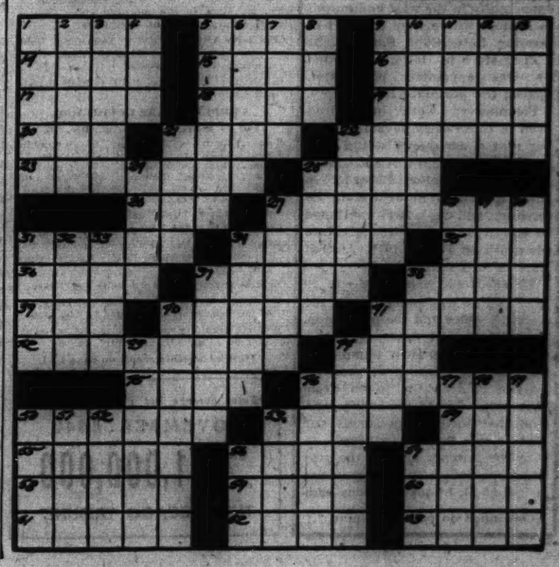
PUZZLE OF FRIDAY, DEC. 25, SOLVED



WAR DOG'S BARK WORSE THAN BITE, ARMY DISCOVERS

Training Reveals Flaws in Service Ability.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—The dog and the pigeon are fighting for Uncle Sam, but they don't hold the important place popularly ascribed to them in the war, it was disclosed at the war department today.

There are only a few thousand dogs in the service and under training for war duty, despite early estimates that 100,000 and possibly 250,000 would be required. Homing pigeons, while still useful, are being outmoded by radio and the other marvels of the signal corps. Little information is available as to their number, but the army reports they are not being used as much as they once were. The principal training loft is at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Fighting men, while conceding the dog is man's best friend, say they do not place too much confidence in him when the shooting begins. Commanding officers still are requisitioning dogs for special work, principally aiding sentries.

Dogs Readily Available.

The quartermaster corps, which is in charge of training the animals, has had no difficulty in supplying all the dogs needed. Dogs stepped into the war spotlight when patriotic boys and girls, amid tears, began donating their pets. Training centers for dogs were established at Front Royal, Va.; Camp Rimini, Mont.; Fort Robinson, Neb., and San Mateo, Cal.

Friends with rose colored glasses gave the dogs these recommendations: They would see and smell hidden foes. They would make prisoners of enemies trying to get thru the lines. They would carry messages under fire. They would locate the wounded on the battlefield and take emergency medicine to them. Big dogs would help the wounded back. They would carry wire for the communication systems of the signal corps. They would haul sledges in the snow. They would serve as airplane spotters.

The dogs are being trained to perform some of these tasks, and they are quick to learn.

Helping Sentries Main Job.

But the war department says the No. 1 job of the dog is to help the sentry. No. 2 is drawing sledges, for which a number are being trained at Camp Rimini.

Fighting officers who have seen service agree that dogs have distinguished themselves in some of the other jobs. But the dog has difficulty, they say, in distinguishing between friend and enemy. Dogs trained for war must be one man dogs, loyal to the men they have been trained to help. Thus, officers say, a chief of staff would get the same greeting from a dog who did not know him as would an enemy soldier.

However intelligent the dog is, some of the officers say, he has to use snap judgment which may prove wrong. Example: He isn't supposed to bark when he sees an enemy. The approved technique is to give a low growl, which only his master can hear, or to tug at his master's trousers legs. On the other hand, if an enemy slips up behind the master and forces him to keep silence, it's up to the dog to give the alarm.

A Question of Judgment.

The dog is going to have to make his own decisions about barking, and many of the officers prefer to depend upon a soldier's judgment, no matter how much better the dog can smell.

There are those who believe it would take a truly discerning dog to understand where he was to carry a communications line for the signal corps or choose between friend and foe when distributing medicine. Some doubt the dog's ability as an airplane spotter.

The army reports that many dogs already are overseas, doing useful service where they have been requisitioned. Sledge dogs are expected to be of considerable service in colder climates.

One Tail Wagger Returned.

The dogs are being recruited by Dogs for Defense, Inc., a not-for-profit organization with headquarters in New York and branches thruout the country.

One dog was returned to its owner here by the army the other day for being too good a friend of man. It wagged its tail at everybody.

Another Washingtonian reported that his entire family burst into tears when two soldiers came in an army truck for the family's pet, altho the children had volunteered to give up the dog.

"This is the fifth time today everybody's cried when we called for a dog," one of the soldiers said. "I don't like this work."

Dogs and Men Train Together.

Dogs and men are trained together and sent as a team to any place where a dog has been requisitioned. Army officers say the dog has a beneficial psychological effect upon a sentry: It gives the sentry a feeling of confidence.

Some who doubt the importance of the dog in the war say the principal accomplishment of the dog training program also is psychological—that it brings to the home such sacrifices as are asked of the people by Harry Hopkins.

Gov. Green and Family Exchange Gifts at Tree

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 25 (AP).—It was a family Christmas at the governor's mansion. Gov. and Mrs. Dwight H. Green and daughters, Nancy, 15, and Gloria, 11, exchanged gifts around the yule tree. Mrs. Green received a war bond from her husband. Her gift to him was a desk set. Gov. Green made Christmas radio broadcasts from the mansion during the afternoon and evening.

GREEN SUMMONS ALL TO DEFENSE OF MAN'S RIGHTS

Yule Message Is Given Over W-G-N.

Gov. Dwight H. Green urged consecration of purpose in defense of liberty, equality, and tolerance for all mankind last night in a Christmas message over W-G-N. His talk was part of a program in the main studio of the station that was witnessed by some 300 parents and relatives of army and navy men serving overseas.

Gov. Green spoke from the executive mansion in Springfield. He said that with the Christmas season a "new realization of the truths of Christ have come upon us . . . which gives us a faith that cannot be crushed." After asking that prayers be said for men in the army and navy, Gov. Green wished all citizens of Illinois a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Religious Leaders Speak.

Representatives of the Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish faiths spoke. Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist church said that the Christmas season expressed the inner life. He was followed by Dr. Charles Shulman, president of the Chicago Rabbinical society. Dr. Shulman pointed out that the Christmas season denotes love and peace and asked that Jew join Christian in prayer for a better world, freed from "pagan tyrants."

The final talk was made by Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, director of the Catholic Youth organization. Only after we have sacrificed for victory, he said, will there be "peace on earth and good will."

Traditional Yule Music Rendered.

Traditional Christmas songs were rendered by Marion Claire, Thomas L. Thomas, and Attilio Baggiore, accompanied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra. The orchestra also presented original music by Ken Churchill.

After the talks by Gov. Green and the three representatives of the church, a drama of Christmas night in London, written by Fran Coughlin, was presented.

Canadians Wounded at Dieppe Reach Dominion

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 25 (AP).—A group of Canadian soldiers wounded at Dieppe, representing nearly every regiment in the spectacular raid last August, have arrived in the dominion, it was announced officially today. With the wounded were several hundred sergeants returned for officers' training, and a large group of English recruits for the commonwealth air training program.

YANKS IN BRITISH ISLES ADVANCE ON TURKEY FRONT

Capture Objective—with Dressing.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 25.—Thousands of American soldiers in the British Isles feasted on turkey today in their messes, which they decorated for Christmas with what holly they could obtain. For those not wanting the traditional holiday dish, chicken was available. The menus also included dressing, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, peas, carrots, hot rolls, fruit salad, plum pudding, candy apples, and coffee.

Col. P. B. Rogers of Austin, Tex., commanding officer of the London base command, followed the army custom by inspecting the Christmas messes, accompanied by Col. Edwin Keatley of Swarthmore, Pa., commanding special troops in London, and Lt. Col. Morrow Krum of Lake Forest, Ill., public relations officer for the European theater.

At the headquarters company, Rogers complimented Mess Sergt. Silvio Balzan of 11405 St. Lawrence avenue, Chicago, on the quality of the food. The cooks for this unit are Sergts. Joseph Rohr of 7114 West Lyons street, Chicago, and Delbert M. Williams of Johnson City, Ill.

Illinoisan Takes Photos.

Other messes which the party visited included the officers' club, the infantry security company, the military police company, the motor pool company, and the casual center, where soldiers passing thru London are accommodated.

Pvt. Don Baum of Moline, Ill., who was along to take photographs for the army pictorial service, had his tongue hanging out as he viewed the luscious turkeys and was glad when the tour was over so he could eat his own dinner.

"Only fresh vegetables and fresh fruits were required from the British," Rogers explained at the close of his inspection. "The turkeys and all the other food were sent over from America."

Pork for the British.

At the British troop messes, special meals also were served. There was not much turkey, as pork is the traditional Christmas dish. These troops and the British civilians listened to holiday greetings broadcast to the empire by King George VI.

There was not much gayety in British homes on this fourth wartime Christmas, the men being away with the forces and many women being in war industry locations, but there were a few family reunions among old folks and children.

Hotels and cabarets were crowded tonight, with American and allied service uniforms predominating, but there was no formal civilian dress for the others. Most hotels had turkey on their menus, but liqueurs and fine wines were almost unprocurable, and where available the prices were prohibitive. The fashionable hotels offered nonvintage champagne at 3 pounds 6 shillings [about $13.20] a quart.

'Santa' Delivers 12,000 Tons of Food in Africa

ALGIERS, Algeria, Dec. 25 (AP).—Arrival in French North African ports of 12,000 tons of food products and other materials for distribution among the civilian population was announced officially, appropriately, on Christmas day. The shipment included British merchandise and great quantities of flour, milk, sugar, and potatoes. The goods will be apportioned to merchants for sale to civilians.

60,000 WARRIORS TAKEN TO HEART OF GREAT CITY

Christmas Hospitality Surges High.

There were a lot of soldiers and sailors in Chicago yesterday like Bob Weissman. Bob's in the navy, stationed at the advanced aviation training school, 87th street and Anthony avenue, learning to be an aviation machinist's mate. His is a Kentucky home in a train whistle town in the southern part of the state. It was his first Christmas away from his parents, his sisters, and brothers.

There was a lot for him to do on Christmas in Chicago, and he did it, with thousands of other soldiers and sailors away from their homes and families. All three of the Service Men's centers did a standing room only business, despite the thousands of dinner invitations issued to service men from private families. Early in the afternoon, at three centers, 176 W. Washington street, in the former Auditorium hotel, and at 50 E. 49th street, the attendance had topped the 10,000 mark. Before the day was over, it was estimated, more than 60,000 service men had visited the three centers.

Feast for the Warriors.

One of the reasons was the menu, which could have doubled for a ration maker's nightmare. There were turkeys—750 of them—dressing, giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, potato chips, celery, olives, pickles, fruit and other cakes, mince pie, ice cream, milk and coffee, fruit, nuts, candy, and cigarets.

The United Service Organizations centers were busy places, too. Starting with breakfast, they fed and entertained nearly a thousand men. Those at 131 South Wabash avenue and 1122 South Wabash avenue terminated their activities with turkey buffets and dancing.

All of the centers were besieged with offers from Chicago and suburban families eager to entertain soldiers at dinner. The invitations were so numerous that many were left unfilled. The U. S. O. at 1122 South Wabash avenue reported that it turned down 70 requests because there weren't enough service men interested. Abbot hall of Northwestern university, where midshipmen are trained, was completely cleaned out. Various other training units in the city reported similar situations.

Allies Fare Well.

Chicago also played host to numerous allied soldiers. Three New Zealanders, training in Canada, found themselves with a furlough and no place to spend it. They got a map, thought Chicago looked good, and came here. They were among those visiting the service men's center in the Auditorium.

Another guest was Charles Harras of the royal air force. Harras is a native of London, but hasn't been there for three years. He's in the ferrying command.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Boquist of Mizpah, Minn., were guests of their two sons, Richard and Alfred, sailors at Navy pier. The boys saved their money, sent it on to their parents for carfare for a Christmas visit. Mrs. Boquist had a broken arm, but she came anyway.

Bands Entertain Service Men.

Entertainment was provided at all centers by stage and radio stars. The boys who were based for the holiday were entertained royally, too. The highlight for the sailors aboard the Wolverine was the appearance of Dick Jurgens and his band, who later appeared at the Auditorium center. His was one of the three spotlight bands to participate in Chicago's festivities for service men. The others were that of Russ Morgan, who entertained aviation cadets at Glenview, and of Carl Ravazza, who appeared at Navy pier.

Christmas in Chicago, tho, wasn't exclusively the service men's. Patients at County hospital and the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium feasted on turkey with the trimmings. The menu of prisoners at the county jail and Bridewell also included turkey.

Free Christmas dinners, topped with turkey, were served to all comers by Edward Cohen, tavern proprietor at 1163 Madison street. Cohen has been following this custom for the last seven years. He figures he fed about 600 persons.

ARMY OFFERS MEDICAL ADVICE TO MEN WITH MINOR PHYSICAL ILLS

Col. Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois director of selective service, announced yesterday the opening of a special consultation office by the Cook county selective service headquarters to assist men who cannot afford to engage their own doctors for medical treatment necessary to render them fit for army service.

Treatments for correctible defects such as hernia, hemorrhoids, varicose veins, pilonidal cysts, benign tumors, and minor deformities of the extremities will be given at Michael Reese and county hospitals. Applications for the treatments may be made at draft boards or at selective service headquarters.

Col. Armstrong has estimated that 20,000 men in the state may become acceptable to the army if they undergo treatment, and has urged all with correctible defects to have them remedied.

ROOSEVELTS SING AT CHRISTMAS CHURCH SERVICE

Join in Prayers for the Fighting Men.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt attended Christmas services today in the Episcopal church of the Epiphany near the White House.

The presidential party joined in singing "O Come, All Ye Faithful," and other hymns of Christmas season in the poinsettia-decked church. The Rev. Howard Stone Anderson, pastor of the First Congregational church, delivered the sermon on the theme that there will always be a Christmas.

Other pastors joined in prayers for peace and for the safety of America's fighting men.

Hopkins and Wife in Party.

With the President and Mrs. Roosevelt were Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hopkins; Mrs. J. R. Roosevelt of New York, the President's sister-in-law, and Harry Hooker of New York, a former law partner of Mr. Roosevelt.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt and their daughter-in-law sat in the front pew, with the rest of the party behind them.

The Rev. Mr. Anderson praised the determination of the Chinese and the Russians and said there will always be a Christmas so long as simple joys and moral courage prevail. Christmas, he said, is the Christian's need, and creed, and hope. The service was under auspices of the Washington federation of churches.

Army Chorus Sings.

Before leaving for church, the White House party heard the national anthem and a concert by an army band and chorus on the White House lawn.

The Roosevelts opened their Christmas packages this afternoon, and the President carved the turkey at the White House dinner tonight.

YANKS' GREETING BEST GIFT, THEIR RELATIVES SAY

Tribune Messages Bring Happy Response.

Thousands of relatives and friends of Chicago service men and women voted yesterday that their best Christmas gift was the greetings sent to them by men abroad via correspondents of THE TRIBUNE in distant parts of the world.

In some cases the message in THE TRIBUNE was the first the families had had from their sons, brothers, or husbands in several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. William C. Ingle of 1140 Superior street, Oak Park, had not heard from their son, George, a technical sergeant, for two months. Then they saw his name in the list of cabled greetings. The family laughed and wept over the thrill of seeing the name.

Mrs. Florence Buckley, 5262 North La Crosse avenue, wept tears of happiness when she saw the name of her husband, Corp. Roy Buckley, in the cabled greetings from England. Mrs. Buckley, who became the mother of a baby girl two hours before her husband sailed for England, had not heard from him since the invasion of Africa, and was happy to learn he is still in England.

Buy Papers for Sons.

"I was on my way to church when a friend showed me my son's message in THE TRIBUNE," reported Mrs. Richard Fahey in her home at 4311 West End avenue. "It did me good to go to church after that news. I felt just as if John [her son] was with me."

Mrs. Fahey reported that she and her husband bought six copies of the paper yesterday morning so that they might send the article to Pvt. Fahey in Australia and to his brother, a lieutenant, in North Carolina. The soldier's friends called at the Fahey home late last night to help celebrate the news.

Best Christmas Gift.

Excitement reigned yesterday at the William H. Kanies home, 2247 North Karlov avenue, as friends and neighbors called the parents of Milton Kanies to tell his parents a message from him was carried in the paper.

"It's been a real thrill for us folks at home," Mrs. Kanies said. "I never thought I could be so excited. As long as he can't be with us, the message he sent is the best thing we could get for Christmas."

Pvt. Kanies has been serving overseas with the army since April 10, and is now in Australia.

A message from Sergt. Maj. Philip McGuire, serving somewhere in the Pacific, was cause for a truly merry Christmas at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McGuire, 502 East 75th street.

"It's the best Christmas present of all," exclaimed his sister, Miss Marie McGuire.

A Marine 17 Years.

Sergt. McGuire has been in the marine corps for 17 years and took part in the first Solomon Islands offensive last Aug. 7.

Neighbors were first to see the message from Sergt. Rudy Kocian, also serving in the Pacific. His mother, Mrs. Mary Kocian, 1154 West 17th street, declared her Christmas was far happier because of the message. Sergt. Kocian entered the army in May, 1941.

Copies of the message from Lieut. James Jarman to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abijah Jarman, 7408 Coles avenue, will be placed in scrapbooks kept by each member of the family. Lieut. Jarman left his studies at Purdue university to enter the army air corps on May 15, 1940. He also attended Tilden Technical High school and Central Y. M. C. A. college.

TREASURY ISSUES BOOK ON FOREIGN FUNDS CONTROLS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—The treasury today made public a booklet, "Administration of the Wartime Financial and Property Controls of the United States Government," which contains the most complete statement of the scope and operations of foreign funds control released to date.

This booklet was prepared in June for the use of the delegates to the inter-American conference on systems of economic and financial control. The treasury department believes that it is now appropriate to make this document generally available to persons interested in the purposes and functions of foreign funds control.

WAR IS FOR YOUNG MEN, EXPERTS ON HEALTH CONTEND

Youths Are Able to Stand Grueling Tasks.

War, like athletics, is for the young. Agreement on this fact is unanimous, but the reasons differ in the opinion of some medical men, physical directors and military men.

Dr. J. R. Miller.

A recent presidential executive order halting induction of men over 38 years old into the army was issued shortly after a survey of men in hospitals in a large army camp and disclosure that the age level of the army was increasing as a result of the draft instead of decreasing.

"There is no mystery about why there are more of the older men in hospitals as patients," said Dr. J. R. Miller, dean of the Northwestern university college of medicine. "Men in their thirties do not have the resiliency of youth. This is evident in sports, where few men are active after 38.

Youths Recuperate Quickly.

"Noticeable body degeneration begins in the third decade of life. Muscles and blood vessels are older," Dr. Miller said. "Many athletes begin to lose their resiliency in the late twenties. Young men can sleep on the ground and undergo other hardships encountered in the army and come back fit the next day, but those in their third decade can't."

"This is not a war for men over 40," Dr. John S. Coulter, former army physician and expert on rehabilitation, said. Proof of unfitness is shown when they come to the obstacle courses now in use to harden men. Older men can't even stand doubletime marching. However, youths of 18 thru 20 should not be denied training in the professions in which they are needed because the older men cannot stand the pace."

"After the general age of 28 to 30, the difference in a man over and under," said J. Kyle Anderson, acting chairman of physical education, University of Chicago, "is what we call 'the bounce.' The young man will bounce right back into condition after a few workouts.

Depends on Exercise.

"Farmers who work all day can hold on longer, but office workers go down faster unless they compensate by exercising. I would say that the age when a man slips depends a great deal upon his personality and physical condition."

Dr. Arno B. Luckhardt, University of Chicago professor of physiology, believes the age at which a man fades physically depends upon when he stops exercising. "Some persons," he said, "stop exercising early in life and others keep it up until they are 70. When in training a man develops a heart for exercise. If he stops suddenly and sits at a desk all day his heart deteriorates."

Erwin Beyer, instructor of physical education, who is training 400 air force cadets at the University of Chicago, said strength reaches its zenith between 20 and 29 and then subsides gradually.

Beyer said general endurance reaches its peak between 25 and 35 and used as an example the advanced age of marathon runners. "Strength and endurance," Beyer said, "may be compared. Strength localizes one part of the body and endurance relies on heart and lung capacity."

Change to Lighter Sports.

Leon Kranz, director of physical education at Northwestern university, has learned that men up to 25 are interested in sports which require training and after that age usually turn to sports that have a greater recreational and social value. He said it is a mistaken idea that sports in America have brought about physical degeneration.

"It's training that counts," Kranz said. "Men have maintained well trained bodies far past the draft age, but they have not done so from a swivel chair. The reason men degenerate so fast after 25 is because they give up the activities that keep their bodies conditioned.

"Baseball and football keep bodies conditioned, but after a few months of idleness in the winter the baseball player requires several months to get back into condition. America has lost the art of running because it is too strenuous. The only way to keep in condition is by strenuous activity. The steel mill and lumber camp worker is an example. He often is fit at 60."

Waterloo, Ia., Dec. 25 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Harrison A. Crawford, 89 and 88 years old respectively, today celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary at a family dinner. The youngest guest was their great great granddaughter, Nancy Lee Morgan, 7 weeks old. Seventy years ago yesterday, with the temperature 25 below zero, Crawford walked 11 miles to Waterloo for the marriage license.

England Gets Rare Treat: Two Bunches of Bananas

LONDON, Dec. 25.—A banana is about the scarcest thing in England today, but this morning a merchant seaman appeared at a British hospital and handed in a parcel containing two bunches of slightly overripe ones which are now on exhibition in the wards before being eaten. They were wrapped in copies of a Miami newspaper of Dec. 15.

INJURED MAN DIES IN HOSPITAL. Sverre Jensen, 38 years old, 3601 North avenue, died yesterday in St. Anthony's hospital of complications following injuries to his foot suffered Oct. 19.

E. S. Beck of Tribune Dies; Managing Editor 26 Years

paign. On his own mount he covered the entire county obtaining subscriptions, making collections, gathering material from which he wrote stories of the business men in the towns of the county. He slept at farms where they had accommodations for both him and his pony.

In the fall of 1887 Capt. Beck took a vacation, leaving Ned in charge of the paper. He was proud of the issues the 18 year old put out.

When he was 20, in 1889, the young man chose the University of Michigan as his college and matriculated there in the class of 1893.

Works Summers in Chicago.

The young man was one of the university's first students of journalism, entering a course under Prof. Fred N. Scott. He had joined a fraternity, Beta Theta Pi, and some of the other members encouraged him to try for a vacation job on a Chicago newspaper. He worked on the old Chicago Record and the Chicago Times-Herald, at one time writing his father he would be glad to come home except that he hated to relinquish his salary—$12 a week.

When he had completed his college course in 1893 he came to Chicago and obtained a job as one of the World's Fair reporters for THE TRIBUNE. After the fair he was transferred to work in the newspaper office where he learned copy reading.

Back to Tribune in '96.

In 1894 he was offered and accepted a place as city editor of the Chicago Mail. He remained there until November, 1895, when he shifted to copy reading on the Times-Herald. He remained on the new paper only until March, 1896, when he came to THE TRIBUNE as night city editor.

He was night city editor for two years. Then he was made assistant city editor, a title he held for 10 years. James Keeley was city editor at that time and Will Van Benthuysen was managing editor. In 1908 Van Benthuysen went to New York City as editor of the New York World. Keeley became managing editor of THE TRIBUNE and Mr. Beck moved up to the city editorship.

In 1910, Mr. Beck was promoted to be managing editor.

Mr. Beck continued as managing editor of THE TRIBUNE until Jan. 4, 1937, when he was appointed assistant editor in chief. At that time he also was second vice president of the Chicago Tribune company. He remained in his new rôle until last January, when he retired with the expectation of spending his winters at Fairways, his home at Palm Beach, Fla., and the rest of the year at his Illinois home, the Grove, near Glenview.

Mr. Beck has been described by those who knew him as a newspaper man's managing editor. He was little known to the general public and stories about him seldom appeared even in the magazines of the trade. But newspaper executives thruout the country knew that he was at the news helm of THE TRIBUNE. In later years he met and knew many of them thru service he enjoyed as secretary of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, which usually held its sessions in Washington.

Energetic and Innately Genteel.

His outstanding traits were the outgrowth of great physical energy, an inquiring mind, an unusually fine background from wide reading, intellectual honesty, innate gentility, and a most retentive memory. He was not a fluent talker, but was an interesting conversationalist because of his close acquaintance with both current events and books, either of which he could discuss with facility.

Not a tall man, he made up in activity what he lacked in stature. He never walked slowly. The sound of his heels on the marble floor was known to every man in the office, a fast click, click that told of his approach, his head held jauntily and his arms swinging, puffs of smoke from his cigar blowing from his mouth as he almost trotted from one office to another.

Fatigue seldom showed its traces on Mr. Beck. For years he kept office hours that, except for a dinner hour, stretched from 4:30 p. m. to nearly 4:30 a. m. During that period he was such a nighthawk that it attracted unfavorable comment from his neighbors. One of them, a woman, notified the publisher of THE TRIBUNE that one of his employés never got in until toward daybreak and she believed the publisher ought to know about it.

Thruout such long hours there was no abatement of his enthusiasm. He was not a victim of the cynicism supposed to overtake veteran newspaper men. His interest was spontaneous in every new story, particularly if he recognized it as a good story. And the animation continued until the paper had gone to press.

He was an expert on type and the use of the right font in the right place. As he stood at the forms, in which type is in reverse as compared with the printed letter, he could read it almost as rapidly as the finished product and often, from three or four feet away, he could detect an error in makeup.

Mr. Beck never tended toward sensationalism and, because of that some said he lacked originality in the treatment of news. His principles were thoroness and accuracy, coupled with an understanding of the news that flowed over his desk.

He never got out a sensational front page, but other editors said he always got out a sound one. He seemed to evaluate news intuitively, never stopping to reason out which of two or more stories was the most important. He sensed it. He did not hesitate.

He was exacting in details. He personally looked over all death notices to be sure a well known name was not missed; and the names had to be letter perfect. Wrong middle initials in his estimation were almost criminal. He was a stickler for brevity and clarity. Copy readers said he was the best copy reader THE TRIBUNE ever had.

But he did not extensively rewrite the work of his reporters. They knew the facts better than he. However, he insisted that they be presented properly.

Warmth Beneath Thin Ice.

Newcomers on THE TRIBUNE thought Mr. Beck a cold man in his relations with his subordinates. That mannerism was often assumed to expedite business. Those who knew him ignored it. They knew that beneath the thin coating of ice lay warmth and friendliness.

Mr. Beck was difficult of access for callers, especially if they were strangers. His pressing duties came first. Deadlines had to be met. If he thought a visitor wanted to interfere with the handling of a story in a strictly news manner, he would not see him.

In this way he was a stranger to politicians who called to talk about favored consideration for their causes. He referred them to the reporters. Advertisers also found him difficult to reach. His reply to them was that THE TRIBUNE would publish the news—accurately and fairly.

Mr. Beck was married three times. His first wife was Cora Frances Reilly, whom he married in 1896, three years after he came to Chicago. She died in 1899. His second wife was her cousin, Grace Kennicott Redfield, whom he married in 1911, and who died in 1928. On May 2, 1931, he married Mrs. Clare Florence Beebe, who survives him.

He also is survived by two sisters and a brother, Miss Martha M. Beck and William T. Beck, both of Holton, Kas., and Mrs. E. L. Holton of Manhattan, Kas.

Mr. Beck's one hobby was golf. He was a member of the Glen View Golf club, the Chicago club, the University club, the Casino, and the Tavern in Chicago and of the Everglades, Seminole, and the Bath and Tennis clubs at Palm Beach. He also was a member of the Loyal Legion, a membership handed down to him by his father as an officer in the Civil war.

SCORES OF TOWNS RETAKEN BY REDS ALONG DON FRONT

Russians Also Gain 15 Mi. Southwest of Stalingrad.

MOSCOW, Dec. 26 [Saturday]—(AP).—Russian troops have thrown the Germans back 15 miles in the strategic Kotelnikovo sector southwest of Stalingrad and killed or captured 14,500 Nazis and recaptured scores of villages in the middle Don offensive, the soviets announced early today in a special communique.

The drive on the middle Don front now has taken a toll of 106,700 of the enemy.

The Russians said the push "north of Kotelnikovo" came after a 13 day fight that saw the Germans lose 9,000 men, 300 tanks, 268 planes, and 160 guns in unsuccessful counterattacks launched "with the aim of saving their formations encircled near Stalingrad." Today is Stalingrad's 124th under German siege.

Halt German Push.

For a time the Germans "succeeded in pressing back our troops and occupying several populated places," the communique said of the Kotelnikovo battles, but "our troops wore down the enemy forces and then went over to the counteroffensive and, breaking enemy resistance, threw him back to the southwest for a distance of 20 to 25 kilometers [12 to 15 miles].

The Russians said their forces then regained eight populated places.

On the Don front the soviets said "several score of populated places" were captured.

Advance in Caucasus.

The Russian forces advancing on the fourth major front, southeast of Nalchik in the Caucasus, were said to have "developed their offensive," advanced from 16 to 18 miles, and occupied six towns.

Earlier Russian military commentators declared the four great soviet offensives had regained more territory than the Red army won all last winter.

Most of the regained territory was in the Don basin north of the Stalingrad-Likhaya railway, but another vast chunk was captured southwest of Stalingrad.

On the central front northwest of Moscow, the regular midnight soviet communique said, the Russians captured a strong point near Velliki Luki, and in another two day fight west of Rzhev, killed 1,000 Germans and destroyed 49 tanks and armored cars.

Fight Hand to Hand.

Hand to hand fighting still was reported inside Stalingrad itself, and the battle also raged northwest of that city where the Russians have driven deep into the Nazi flank.

As the middle Don offensive knifed deeper into the Ukraine, Premier Josef Stalin and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov sent this special Christmas message to the vast granary:

"The Ukraine is and will be soviet. Units of our troops of the southwestern front have already entered into and liberated the first Ukrainian villages. Let liberty loving peoples struggle, expand, and strengthen in the Ukraine in the rear of the German robbers."

Take Town Near Millerovo.

Practically all the rich farm lands bounded by the Don, the Stalingrad-Likhaya railway and the Moscow-Rostov line were reported in Russian hands. The capture of Kilodezy placed the Reds within 15 miles of Millerovo, important rail junction that seemed virtually isolated, surrounded, and bypassed. Millerovo is 120 miles north of Rostov.

The Russians have not yet claimed to have cut the railway leading southwest from Millerovo to Voroshilovgrad, but it was threatened.

Soviet forces at Skosirskaya, southeast of Millerovo, are in a position to capture points along the westernmost portion of the Stalingrad-Likhaya railway, thus denying to the Germans the entire 229 mile line.

Guerrillas Strike in Ukraine.

As advance units of the Russians battled in the eastern corner of the Ukraine, soviet guerrillas west of Kharkov reported they had fought 70 combats with the enemy, wrecking 51 trains and killing more than 5,000 troops. In the Zhitomir district in the distant western Ukraine, guerrillas claimed to have killed 1,600 Germans in 20 days.

REDS HALTED, SAY NAZIS.

The Germans said they counterattacked in the Don region "in a newly formed front;" repulsed repeated attacks in the Terek-Caucasus region; frustrated "numerous feeble" attacks on the central front; and repulsed the Russians southeast of Lake Ilmen.

U. S. Gobs Play Santa to 300 Australian Children

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, Dec. 26 [Saturday]—(AP).—The United States naval personnel at one Australian base yesterday played Santa Claus to 300 underprivileged Australian children. The children spent the afternoon aboard warships, where chief petty officers in Santa Claus garb distributed gifts and sailors served an American Christmas dinner. The festivities wound up with the showing of Walt Disney's "Pinocchio."

INDUSTRIES HURT BY QUARANTINE IN AMISH TOWN

7 New Smallpox Cases Reported in Valley.

Lewistown, Pa., Dec. 25 (AP).—Seven children today were reported suffering from smallpox in Kishacoquillas valley, Amish farm section already under strict police quarantine. The new cases, the first for children, raised to 27 the number of persons stricken by the disease.

Dr. H. E. Miller, of Belleville, said seven cases had developed since a survey was made by Pennsylvania health department officials. He said none of the child victims had been vaccinated and all are under school age.

Got Start at Wedding.

Traced to an Amish wedding a month ago, the smallpox outbreak so far has been confined to some 12 homes of guests at that event. The children now ill are members of these families, all of which have been under quarantine. All previously reported stricken are adults from 55 to 70 years of age.

Meanwhile thousands of residents of the valley are beginning to feel the effects of the quarantine. Belleville, a town of some 1,500 persons, located in the heart of the valley, is especially hard hit.

Police stationed at four road blocks are stopping vehicles of all kinds, and commercial and industrial activity is gradually being brought to a standstill.

War Plants Affected.

One Belleville foundry and machine shop, engaged in war work, may soon have to cease operations because material is running low, while products made since the quarantine was established are piling up in the establishment.

Two large industrial plants here, the American Viscose company, and the Standard Steel works of the Baldwin Locomotive company, also are expected to feel adverse effects from the quarantine, since many employés who live in the valley will be prevented from returning to work tomorrow.

Officials at both plants announced plans for voluntary vaccinations for their employés beginning tomorow.

WAR SETS NERVE CENTER OF NAVY IN CHICAGOLAND

Chicagoland has become the nerve center of the navy during the war, the annual report of the navy public relations office disclosed yesterday.

Because of its location on one of the greatest inland bodies of water in the world and apparent protection from warfare by thousands of miles of land on all sides, this city is a logical center for the nation's navy training program, the report shows.

Vast Growth at Great Lakes.

It points to Great Lakes Naval Training station and tells how, in one year of war, Great Lakes has mushroomed to 10 times its former size. And Chicago's "Annapolis," a former unit of Northwestern university, is pouring young naval officers out at a rate of 1,000 every three months.

At Glenview air base, fledgling naval pilots receive thoro training in fundamentals, capped by a course aboard the U. S. S. Wolverine, the world's only side wheel aircraft carrier.

At Northwestern university in Evanston and at the University of Chicago there are radio schools. Chicago's huge Navy pier has been taken over for aviation and diesel engine training courses.

Two Schools in Loop.

The naval armory near the loop at the foot of Randolph street was turned into an armed guard school, the report showed, for gun crews to man weapons aboard the nation's fast growing merchant fleet. This school, however, has been transferred to the gulf coast and supplanted by the navy's permanent shore patrol—a seagoing version of military police.

As a final touch, two schools are located in loop office buildings, one to teach civilians the techniques of inspecting naval materials, and the other to train sailors in the specialized job of craft detection in war zones.

PUBLIC HEARING TO SCAN ITEMS OF CITY BUDGET

The proposed 1943 city budget, providing for substantially larger city expenditures because of general wage increases to city employés, will be presented to the city council Tuesday. Interested organizations and individuals will have about 10 days to study its items and then present any objections at a public hearing, which probably will be set for Jan. 8.

Details of the budget will not be known until the printed copies are presented to the council. The finance committee staff has worked industriously to make the countless changes necessitated by pay raises.

The finance committee has voted wage boosts of 12 per cent for all police and firemen, 10 per cent—in a few cases more—for all other salaried city employés earning less than $3,000, and restoration of pay cuts of 4 to 10 per cent suffered by higher salaried persons in 1941. In addition, the committee voted to pay the prevailing union wage to all per diem employés.

In the corporate [operating] fund alone, according to estimates of the finance committee staff, the wage increases will cost the city $4,300,000 next year. The staff has estimated corporate fund appropriations will total $58,690,000, or $3,178,937 more than the $55,511,063 in 1942.

Objections from civic groups are expected to center around the city's plans to finance a substantial part of the wage increases by tapping the reserves it has set up for loss and cost in collection of back taxes.

Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Civic Federation, already has expressed opposition to any policy of setting up new recurring expenses financed out of nonrecurring revenue.

12,601 CHICAGO FARMERS BOOST FOOD SUPPLIES

1943 Boom in Gardens Is Predicted.

In the city of Chicago there are 12,601 farmers who, during the growing season of 1942, raised foodstuffs on 290 acres of small plots to augment the job being done by outstate farmers, a survey made by the victory garden department of the office of civilian defense revealed yesterday.

George T. Donoghue.

And, according to George T. Donoghue, park district superintendent and director of victory gardens for the OCD, 1943 will see even larger numbers of city dwellers creating small gardens to insure larger quantities of food during next winter. The victory garden department, already having plowed 132 vacant lots so they will be ready for spring planting, predicted that there would be more than 1,000 new community gardens blossoming forth within the city limits when the growing season starts.

Interesting Facts Recorded.

Statistics, the victory garden department believes, are usually dull, but when more than 12,000 city residents become farmers virtually overnight and all for the same purpose, the plowmen and assistant directors of the movement point to a set of facts and figures that make interesting reading.

The department broke the city up into six divisions. Each division registered the number of families who cultivated victory vegetable gardens and recorded the number of square feet of each garden.

The south side had the largest number of gardeners and gardens, necessitating establishment of four divisions for the entire area. The north side, smaller in area than the south side, had two divisions.

South Side Farms More Ground.

The four south side divisions included 6,647 "farm" families cultivating a total of 7,713,868 feet of garden space as against the north side's 5,954 "farm" families growing foodstuffs on 4,997,066 square feet.

The suburbs, the report showed, far outstripped Chicago in gardening their greater area of open space. In the suburbs 13,925 families were issued the victory garden emblem and they cultivated 28,463,620 square feet of gardens, this equal to 653 acres.

The victory garden department's statistics showed, then, that a total of 26,526 "farm" families in Chicago and suburbs actually farmed a total of 943 acres of land during 1942.

Structural Steel Orders Set New Low in November

New York, Dec. 25 [Special].—Efforts of the war production board to conserve the use of steel for critical war purposes have shown their effect in the monthly booking reports of fabricated structural steel received by the American Institute of Steel Construction, it was announced today. New business booked during November amounted to only 45,972 tons, the lowest on record since the end of World War I.

STALLS HIS CAR ON TROOP TRAIN TRESTLE; SEIZED

Flares Hastily Set Up Avert Wreck.

Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 25 (AP).—J. L. Dalton of the federal bureau of investigation said today that Leroy Bernard Meighan, 28 years old, would be charged with violating the sabotage act because he drove his car onto a railroad trestle at Cedar Falls, Ia., seven minutes before a troop train was due.

The train was flagged down less than 500 feet from the stalled car, averting what Dalton said might have been a serious wreck because the trestle is on a curve "and the train likely would have plunged into the river if it had hit the car."

Driver Admits Drinking.

Dalton, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, said Meighan, a packing house worker in Waterloo, 10 miles from Cedar Falls, signed a statement admitting he had "been drinking to excess" when he drove onto the trestle yesterday.

His car stalled in the center of the 435 foot trestle of the Illinois Central railroad, and wreckers worked 45 minutes to remove it.

Clyde Hall, a postoffice mail messenger, saw a car without lights turn down the tracks on the approach to the bridge and notified Howard Buckham, night man at the Cedar Falls station.

Flares Stop Train.

Dalton said Buckham knew that an eight car troop train was due soon and set flares which stopped the train. The train was within the signal block and was whistling its approach to the station when the flares were set up.

The FBI agent said Meighan, now in jail in Cedar Falls, would be charged specifically with threatening the safety of a troop train.

He said a complaint will be filed against him soon before Arthur Hyke, United States commissioner, in Waterloo.

Inquest Today in Death of Slain Union Agent

A coroner's inquest into the death of Walter Sheffer, 67 years old, 122 North Mason avenue, business agent for the loop district of local 134 of the Electrical Workers' union, will be conducted at 9 a. m. today at 2216 Jackson boulevard. Vincent Lucchese, 43, of 5551 South Whipple street, asserted he acted in self defense when he shot Sheffer Thursday in an 11th floor barber shop in the Burnham building, 160 North La Salle street, as Sheffer attempted to intervene in a quarrel between Lucchese and the shop's manicurist, Mrs. Fay Smith, 4674 Manor avenue.

Massachusetts Textile Mills' Orders Much Lower

Boston, Mass., Dec. 25 [Special].—Orders received during November by Massachusetts textile mills declined about 43 per cent from the October peak, it was reported today. The November index figure of 90.3 was 40 per cent below that of a year ago.

A CORRECTION

On October 30, 1942, we advertised the following statements: "Can I still get warm all wool clothes that'll stand up? You're tootin' right you can. Virgin wool is all you'll see here. And a suit that should outlive the war is what you'll get." This statement was intended to pertain exclusively to men's suits.

In the same advertisement we advertised "in 34 years, Bond suit prices have changed exactly once—and then only a tiny 2%." This statement should have read "in 17 years the net change in the price of Bond single trouser suits, which we are now selling, is only 2%."

We regret these errors and assure that they will not be repeated.

M'ARTHUR ISSUES A COMMUNIQUE—'IT'S CHRISTMAS'

Divine Services Held on New Guinea Front.

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, Dec. 26 [Saturday] (AP).—For the southwest Pacific air front, where Gen. Douglas MacArthur's bombers have dealt death blows to the Japs, and for the jungle fox holes of New Guinea where allied troops have the enemy pinned in narrowing pocekts, there was only one word in today's noon communique—Christmas.

The communique was brief and to the point:

"On Christmas day our activities were limited to routine safety precautions. Divine services were held thruout the command where possible."

Make Slight Advance.

A slight advance by allied troops on the left of the line was virtually the only operation reported. While one unit was pushing further toward the coast to widen a bridgehead established Dec. 24, most of the troops were given an opportunity to rest and attend services.

Yesterday's thrust toward the Buna government station gardens placed the allies in a better position to destroy the enemy in a triangular defense pocket about 1,500 yards inland from Buna, which Australian and American infantry already have invested.

Capture Jap Village.

WITH THE AMERICAN TROOPS IN NEW GUINEA, Dec. 25 (AP).—A 14 man patrol of fighting Americans recently captured a native village from many times their number of Japanese, held it long enough to destroy a cache of arms and supplies, and then fought their way back to their own lines.

The commando like raid was one of the most daring and successful patrol actions yet reported from New Guinea. It cost the Japs between 10 and 20 dead and a number of wounded.

Lt. Paul Schwartz, of Syracuse, N. Y., led the patrol in which Sergt. Lester Sherman and Pvt. Roland Acheson, both of Ionia, Mich., played leading roles.

Schwartz and his men were sent out to the west of Buna village, across Siworia creek, to learn whether the Japanese were established in that area. They were forced to explore territory between Buna and the enemy's strong positions at Sananda.

Take Machine Gun Nest.

"The first night out we swam the creek and saw evidence there were Japs around," Schwartz said. "We even picked up a big rubber boat and took it back across to our side.

"That afternoon we encountered a Jap machine gun in a little clearing near the village of Tarakena. They waited until we were close and then opened fire.

"I left two men to keep the machine gun busy and sent two others out towards the beach which overlooked the village. The rest of us prepared to attack.

"We took the first set of foxholes the Japs had been using, captured a machine gun position and two rifle positions. We killed three Japs and six others ran.

"There was a little hut which contained between 2,000 and 4,000 rounds of machine gun ammunition and 50 to 75 grenades which we threw into the ocean. Also there was a Bren gun and six rifles. The rest of the stuff we destroyed."

Kills a Jap Officer.

Schwartz told how Acheson, his gun empty, came across a Jap officer.

"The officer pointed a pistol at him but for some reason he didn't fire. Acheson put in a new clip and emptied it into him."

The little band of fighting men had lost some of its members. So Schwartz put up a defense line in the village but later was forced to withdraw.

The lieutenant was apologetic about the withdrawal. The Japanese were starting a flanking movement, he said, and "with less than a dozen men left we didn't have much defense in depth."

Correspondents Celebrate.

The correspondents' shack looks fancy. An Australian correspondent and a native boy went out and cut palm fronds and used them to decorate the doors. They also gathered bougainvillea and poinciana and hung it wherever anything could be hung.

The invitation list includes Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Maj. Gen. George C. Kenney, air commander, and Gen. Thomas Blamey, commander of Australian ground forces, the three top allied commanders. The list also includes three American and three Australian nurses.

From all sorts of places the correspondents gathered all sorts of things, including the promise of a case of champagne, and, better than promises, are precious bottles of whisky, already here, as well as some rum punch, concocted with the aid of Capt. Philip North, Fort Worth, Tex.

AXIS REPORTS U. S. 'FORTRESS' RAID ON WAKE ISLAND

BERLIN, Dec. 25 [from German broadcasts] — (AP). — Dispatches from Tokio today said that Japanese forces occupying Wake Island were bombed Wednesday night by United States Fying Fortresses which came "from the region of Midway."

[There was no confirmation from Washington that Wake Island had been raided.]

The Berlin radio quoted a Tokio communique as saying one Japanese was killed and four were wounded. It added that "apart from four small fires, no other damage was done."

The Tokio dispatch declared four of the bombers were shot down and six were damaged.

U.S. FLYERS BAG 24 JAP PLANES IN RAID ON MUNDA

Yanks Return Without Loss or Damage.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25 (AP).—American airmen, achieving their greatest triumph to date over Japanese forces at Munda in the Solomon Islands, destroyed 24 enemy planes and silenced all anti-aircraft batteries the day before Christmas, the navy announced today.

A communique said all our planes returned undamaged to their base on Guadalcanal, 170 miles southeast.

The number of enemy craft wrecked—14 shot down and 10 blown to pieces on the ground—indicated that despite heavy American attacks on Munda for the past two weeks the Japs were doggedly trying to build up their base there and had succeeded in repairing damage.

Foe Loses 30 Planes at Munda.

Military authorities said, however, that so long as the present ratio of losses continued Munda would prove more a liability than an asset to the Japs, while offering American forces in the south Pacific an easy target for further wearing down enemy air strength.

On the basis of incomplete reports to date the Japs have lost 30 or more planes at Munda against known American losses of only two. Their aircraft losses in the Solomons campaign now total 667.

The Dec. 24 raid apparently was carried out in the morning by dive bombers and fighter planes. The navy said enemy anti-aircraft fire was weak and the batteries were readily strafed out of action.

Landing Barges Bombed.

Later in the day, American aircraft on a second mission against the Munda area bombed a group of landing barges engaged in reënforcing and supplying enemy troops ashore. The number of barges damaged or destroyed was not reported but the communique said four made land.

At the same time the airfield was bombed "from low altitude in the absence of any enemy resistance," the communique said. This was taken as proof that the first attack had rendered the Japs incapable of fighting back for the time being.

This represented the 14th day of raids against Munda. Army flying fortresses, navy and marine dive bombers and fighter planes of all three services have participated in the campaign.

SPANIARDS DRIVE ON MONDAY NOW, THANKS TO U. S.

MADRID, Spain, Dec. 25 (AP).—The government announced today the shortening of the week-end periods in which private motor car driving is forbidden following the report of the liquid fuel commission yesterday that a better gasoline supply had resulted from a working agreement with the United States. All private driving previously had been forbidden from 2 p. m. Saturday to 2 p. m. Mondays. The government announced today that the ban against driving on Monday had been lifted. Bus service in the city of Barcelona recently was resumed and bus companies elsewhere in Spain plan restricted operations soon.

Denies It's U. S. Gas.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25 (AP).—An official conversant with gasoline shipments said today that gasoline supplies in the United States were not being drawn on for export to Spain. This official, who withheld use of his name, said also that no American tanker space is to be allocated for shipping gasoline to Spain.

EPSOM SALTS ON WINDOWS MAKE FROST FOR YANKS

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, Dec. 25 (AP).—It is midsummer in the tropics, but it's still Christmas to the patients in one American army hospital in Australia's sunny northland.

With a mixture of Epsom salts and beer they have frosted the windows and drawn pictures of Santa Claus and kangaroos. One inscription reads:

"Merry Christmas. This year Australia—next year good old U. S. A."

At another military hospital, Red Cross workers, Vera Hoover of Memphis, Bernice Phelps of Atlanta, and Margaretta Reynolds of Rome, Ga., converted an army truck into a gaily colored float, drawn by cavalry horses, for Santa Claus to ride.

7 YANKS LIVE 5 WEEKS IN JUNGLE LIKE POTENTATES

Enjoy Life Salvaging Wrecked Planes.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Dec. 25 (AP).—Seven members of a United States army air force service unit have returned to their base with a few tons of valuable aircraft parts salvaged from cracked up ships after an experience partly like an African safari and partly like a mountain resort vacation.

Led by Second Lieut. William A. Stewart, Sacramento, Cal., the detachment included Staff Sergt. John D. Scott, Woodstock, Va.; Sergeants Paul Grimoris, Altoona, Pa., and Andrew Kirr, Canonsburg, Pa., and Privates Howard Watkins, Punxsutawney, Pa.; Steve Grabin, Scranton, Pa., and Glenn Bizeau, Gladstone, Mich.

Guided by an Australian lieutenant, a long time resident of New Guinea, the party hiked about 50 miles, partly thru jungle, mostly thru mountains, to a deserted mission station near which a B-25 [medium bomber] and an A-24 [dive bomber] crashed some time ago.

Live Like the Rich.

"It took us two and a half days to walk in, but only two days to come out," said Stewart, "and boy, I want to tell you our feet were plenty sore."

The fact they took only two and a half weeks' rations and stayed five weeks might seem to indicate they had a rough time. Instead they lived like wealthy planters.

They had the big mission house, plenty of cattle to be slaughtered for fresh meat, supplies of fresh strawberries, fresh milk and vegetables from native farms, and even the native chef who formerly cooked for a civilian family.

"I even had a six foot bathtub, the first of those I ever had," Stewart said with a smile. "As for meals—every night we had six or seven-course dinners, with such things as French fried potatoes and grilled steaks to our hearts' content."

Even Build Golf Course.

Before they left the Americans built a five hole golf course on flat ground which the natives reconditioned.

"After all, I had to do something with the two sets of clubs we found in the house," Stewart explained.

In the field of serious work, the unit achieved a major accomplishment. It salvaged so much equipment from the planes that 200 native carriers required two trips to bring it out.

The landing gear wheels of the B-25 were the heaviest single items. The natives often objected when they had to carry them across bamboo bridges along the trail, but they managed to bring them thru safely. Among other items was the belly turret from the B-25, which will be used to harass the Japs again, and smaller parts, many of which already have been used to put planes back into service.

One Jap Plane Visits Them.

"We had only one anxious day," Stewart said. "That was when a Jap flying boat circled around several hours. But we were well armed with rifles and 45s and would have given a good account of ourselves."

Actually this was only one of many exceptional jobs being done by air force salvage crews, expeditions which the boys carry out as if they had been tramping jungles all their lives.

It's the "keep 'em flying" spirit which helps the air force retain needed control of the skies in this area, even tho they are not getting as many new planes as they would like—or could use.

LASHIO POUNDED TWICE IN 3 DAYS BY U. S. BOMBERS

Warehouses, Barracks Set Afire.

BY J. REILLY O'SULLIVAN.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN CHINA, Dec. 22 [Delayed]—(AP).—American bombers have struck a telling one-two punch at Lashio, the Japanese held eastern Burma city where the railroad from Rangoon joins the Burma road.

The blows fell so fast that we still were flying home Tuesday night when the plane's radio picked up an American news broadcast of the first raid Sunday. This was the first night raid ordered by Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chenault, commander of the United States air task force in China, since the bombardment of Hongkong Oct. 25.

The Japanese apparently had no warning until the bombers were a few minutes away from the targets, and their warehouses and air base installations soon were sparkling with fire and explosion.

Strings of incendiaries started fires across the big warehouse concentration in the center of the town, from which the enemy sends supplies up the Burma road to his China front, and tons of fragamentation bombs blasted the barracks housing troops.

Called a Good Show.

An anti-aircraft barrage sprang up suddenly northeast of Lashio, but no night fighters took off and all our bombers returned safely.

Lieut. Col. William Basye of Independence, Mo., commanded the mission, accompanied by Lieut. Col. Clinton Vincent of Natchez, Miss., chief of operations of the China air task force, himself a fighter and bomber pilot, who summed it up as a "damned good show."

I rode on Basye's left wing with Capt. Elmer Tarbox of Lubbock, Tex., in a bomber appropriately named "Jap Nitemare." I went also in the Sunday daylight raid.

About 20 miles off we picked up the lights of Lashio, only partly blacked out, but the city was in utter darkness before we reached the targets.

Whips Thru Barrage.

Seated in the bomber's nose behind the bombardier, 1st Lt. Charles Dearth of Sydney, O., I was watching for the release of Basye's bombs on the barracks when red streams of tracers snaked upward over on the right. The Japanese ground fire was aimed at the flight led by Capt. Everett Holstrom of Tacoma, Wash., which had turned off and dived low over the city.

The Holstrom flight, however, whipped thru the barrage at terrific speed, with bullets almost slipping its wings, and two strings of the most intense white light quickly showed on the ground where thermite fire bombs had started fires.

Fly Over Airport.

Still without opposition, we flew directly over the airport, wheeled again and went in lower to rake the barracks.

Gunner Sergts. Pat Boudreax of Port Arthur, Tex., and Douglas Erickson in "Jap Nitemare" joined the gunners of the other bombers in sending streams of bullets into the buildings. Colored tracers showed clearly that their fire was thudding into the targets.

Three blossoms of fire were observed in the city as we sped away. The fire bombs had not had time to take full effect when Lashio was lost in the distance. We were back on the home base before midnight.

Jap Air Force Weakened.

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 24 [Delayed]—(AP).—"The Japanese air force everywhere has been materially weakened" and the Japanese admit it, Brig. Gen. Clayton L. Bissell, commander of United States air forces in India, Burma, and China, said today.

Not only in Burma but also in occupied China, Bissell said, enemy planes have been forced to "move rapidly from one airdrome to another as airdromes get too hot. As more of our planes move up to the combat area the intensity of the attacks will increase."

Burmese Town Attacked.

Asked if these attacks were coordinated with the British land drive down the Bay of Bengal coast from India toward Akyab, the general replied that "all our operations are always coördinated."

A British communique today said: "A small formation of royal air force fighters yesterday made a low level attack on the Japanese airdrome at Magwe in Burma. An enemy aircraft on the ground was shot up but further results could not be observed.

"Enemy fighters were encountered over the target area and several combats took place. Most of the Japanese aircraft were damaged and two of our fighters are missing.

Tell of Calcutta Attack.

"Further reports have now been received about an enemy attack on the Calcutta area last night. The small number of raiders was divided into two sections, both flying high, and adequate warning was received of their approach.

"A second section, which was smaller, came over about an hour after the first one. Our fighters went up to intercept the enemy and several encounters took place.

"The raiders also met with heavy anti-aircraft fire from our ground defenses. Complete information is not yet available, but it is known that one Japanese bomber crashed in flames and others were badly damaged."

NEW ZEALAND'S HEARTY WELCOME FOR YANKS TOLD

Had Bands, Gifts, and Parties for Men.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—When United States troops set foot on New Zealand for the first time last June 12, they received a reception they will remember for some time, Brig. Gen. Ludwig S. Conelly of Bedford, O., reported today.

Gen. Conelly, who recently returned from the South Pacific, said four bands from the New Zealand army were on the docks at Aukland when American transports pulled in.

"The people of New Zealand were determined to give us a big welcome and extend us every service in their power," he said, "and they did just that.

Tossed Presents to Men.

"When they played the national anthem of the United States the thousands of New Zealanders on hand to greet us stood at attention. When the last notes sounded, they broke into deafening cheers which continued for a long time. They tossed presents to the men on board our ships and the men on board reciprocated.

"Many distinguished visitors came aboard, including representatives of the New Zealand army; Mayor J. A. C. Allum of Auckland, and the United States military attaché.

"From the time of our landing, the people of New Zealand went all-out to make our soldiers feel as much at home as possible. Hardly a family does not have at least one son in the service far from home. They know what war is."

Poems Sent to Troops.

The general recalled that poems of welcome were delivered to the American troops. This, he said, illustrated the warmth of the welcome.

"It seemed as if every citizen appointed himself a committee of one to do everything possible to make our troops happy," he said.

"They opened their homes, held concert parties, started hospitality centers, showed us how they played football, watched us play softball, gave dances, with lots of girls present, and practically adopted us as their own."

Mayor Hails Yanks.

Gen. Conelly said that before he returned to the United States, Mayor Allum wrote the following to him:

"I feel it my duty, prior to your departure from the dominion, to express to you my extreme gratification that the citizens of Auckland have had the pleasure of receiving and associating with yourself, the officers, and men of the United States forces.

"I must take this opportunity also of referring to the excellent conduct of the United States forces stationed in this part of New Zealand. It is gratifying to know that many firm and lasting friendships have been established which, I pray, will endure for all time. I feel, too, that, arising out of the unpleasantness of war conditions, the people of our two countries will have been drawn even closer together."

4 SERVICE MEN DIE IN FIRE ON SHIP AT ANCHOR

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 25 (AP).—Fatal burning of four service men in a roaring fire aboard an American transport in northern waters several weeks ago was reported today by returned seamen. The identities of the four victims were not disclosed. Three other service men were burned severely in the 3 a. m. blaze, which started amidship while the vessel was at anchor.

Third Steward Charles [Blackie] Birdsall was hailed as a hero for plunging thru the smoke to rescue an injured navy lieutenant who nearly suffocated.

The blaze was controled after tons of water were poured into the interior in the crew's desperate fight against the flames. Much of the interior of the one time liner was in charred ruins. Cause of the fire was not determined.

LIBERTY IN EVERY BLOW, NIMITZ TELLS ALL YANKS

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Dec. 25 (AP).—Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, supreme commander in the mid-Pacific zone, sent this Christmas message to all service men in the Pacific ocean areas:

"To all fighting men in the Pacific: On this holiest of days I extend my greetings with admiration of your brave deeds of the past year. The victories you have won, the sacrifices you have made, the ordeals you now endure, are an inspiration to the Christian world.

"As you meet the Jap along this vast battle line from the Aleutians to the Solomons, remember, liberty is in every blow you strike."

30 Army Doctors to Study Neurosurgery in Chicago

Thirty army medical officers have been selected by the war department to study neurosurgery under Dr. Eric Oldberg at the Illinois Neuropsychiatric institute, 912 South Wood street, according to an announcement yesterday by Rodney H. Brandon, director of the state department of public welfare, which operates the institute jointly with the University of Illinois. The course, to last six weeks, is the second of a series of four courses arranged by the National Research Council and the war department.

SBARBARO SEEKS THREE NEW LAWS TO CURB CRIMES

All Are Designed to Stop Evasion of Penalty.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

Chief Justice John A. Sbarbaro of the Criminal court said yesterday he would advocate three needed reforms in the Criminal court at the session of the legislature starting Jan. 6. The judge said he hoped some member of the assembly would speedily introduce the measures so they could get early consideration. They are:

1. Repassage of the determinate sentence law allowing a judge to fix a definite minimum and maximum in all cases. The law was knocked out by the Supreme court last fall because it gave judicial powers to the parole board.

2. Amendments to the perjury law to make it easier for the state to convict those guilty of this crime. Under present laws, it is almost impossible to obtain a perjury conviction.

3. A law to make so-called labor sluggings and acts of violence punishable as felonies. Under the present law most such incidents fall within the misdemeanor statutes and are punishable only with fines or short jail sentences.

Law Should Follow Court Lines.

"The so-called parole reform law was a good one," said Judge Sbarbaro, and should be revoted by the legislature within the limits set down by the Supreme court in its decision. "The law worked out very satisfactorily, so far as I could observe, and I am 100 per cent behind its reënactment by the legislature.

"Every case is different. Each should be treated as the facts and background of the defendant warrants, instead of the judges imposing a blanket sentence under the indeterminate sentence law. A defendant with a good social background who makes one slip should not be treated like a confirmed criminal whose background indicates he will always be a criminal. Who is better able to decide what punishment a defendant should receive than the judge, who hears all the facts first hand and knows the background and social history of each defendant brought before him?

Law to Balk Political Pull.

"The law was also a good one from the defendant's point of view. He knew exactly how much time he had to spend in prison, and he also knew that all the pull and fixing he could muster would do him no good in circumventing the minimum sentence imposed by the judge."

The Supreme court knocked out the so-called parole reform act in a decision in the case of Maury John Montana, who was given a severe sentence by Judge Sbarbaro on a charge of assault to murder. The case was a brutal one and the judge sentenced Montana to 10 years minimum. Under the indeterminate sentence law he was given a 1 to 14 year sentence, which means he can be paroled in 11 months. The law was held unconstitutional because the parole board was given the power to change the judicial sentence by a majority vote of its members.

Pitfalls in Perjury Trials.

"The perjury law is one that should have early attention of the legislature," continued Judge Sbarbaro. "We have had several instances in the last year in which key witnesses in important cases have changed their testimony and defeated justice. They get away with it because they can be punished only for contempt of court and then it is a gamble whether the sentence will stick on review.

"The law should be changed so that if a man tells one story under oath to the grand jury and then tells a different one in the trial he is guilty of perjury and should be punished accordingly. That is the sense of the perjury law in many states and we should get up to date in Illinois."

Under the present perjury law the state must prove which story the defendant told is the false one. This is almost impossible unless it so happens documentary proof is available. Perjury convictions have been few and far between in the criminal courts.

Difficulty in Labor Cases.

The third change advocated by Judge Sbarbaro has been given point in the last year by several cases wherein labor agents have been defendants in the criminal courts. The most recent case is that of George Henneman of the painters' union, who was convicted of smashing windows in a south side restaurant. Under the law the offense was a misdemeanor because the property damage was less than $15.

In several labor slugging cases in which the state could not prove that a deadly weapon was used in the assault the charge was only assault and battery.

"Labor unions do not profit thru acts of violence committed by their agents," said Judge Sbarbaro. "I am in favor of unionism, but not when it is conducted with terrorism. The law should be amended to place labor violence in a special category, punishable according to the type of crime committed."

Silver City, N. M., Dec. 25 (AP).—Three enlisted men of the Deming, N. M., air base were killed and 20 were injured when two trucks returning men to the base from a dance left a highway today. The dead included Corp. Samuel Schasets of Port Chester, N. Y., and Pvt. Carl Marchesi, St. Louis, Mo.

WARTIME DIET OF HORSE MEAT CUTS ZOO COSTS

Additions at Lincoln Park Exceed Deaths.

The animals in Lincoln Park zoo have made their wartime sacrifices, too, Director Floyd Young said in his annual report yesterday, their diets changing from beef to horse meat and from bananas to less scarce substitutes during the last year.

Annual expenses for food were $22,000, he said, slightly less than last year because of the change to horse meat.

24 Deaths; 28 Additions.

The zoo's vital statistics column listed 24 deaths, 20 births, and 8 additions by purchase. Among the deaths were those of popular "Deed-a-Day," elephant given to the zoo by Chicago Boy Scouts, which died from trash fed to it by a doting public, and Princess Spearmint, an elderly hippopotamus presented 20 years ago by a member of the Wrigley family.

The death of "Bambi," an orangutan purchased two years ago after zoo officials secured a special permit from the Dutch government to take it out of Borneo, led to the installation of glass partitions around the monkey cages. It was found that "Bambi" died of tuberculosis contracted from human visitors.

Seventeen of the animals born at the zoo last year were of the hoof variety and three were monkeys, Young said.

Buy Siberian Tigers.

Among the eight animals purchased were a pair of Siberian tigers from the Detroit zoo, costing $1,800. Eighty-five reptiles were added to that group. Total purchases were $2,175, about the same as last year but far under the budget appropriation of $10,000, Young said.

The animals maintained their usual good appetites, consuming 40 tons of horse meat, 1,500 tons of herring, 2 tons of smelt, 60,000 loaves of bread, 30 tons of crushed oats, 15 tons of scratch feed, 25 tons of hay, 10 tons of potatoes, 7 tons of leaf lettuce, and 5 tons of cabbage. Their banana consumption fell almost 50 per cent from last year to a total of 12 tons.

SISTERS WILL BE REUNITED HERE AFTER 40 YEARS

Two sisters who haven't seen each other in 40 years will be reunited Monday in Chicago. They are Mrs. Vivien Dommer, 9717 81st street, Ozone Park, N. Y., and Mrs. Paul Bird, 1116 West Jefferson street, Rockford, Ill.

The two women, and a sister, Sophie, who died 18 years ago, were little more than babies when they were placed in the Chicago Home for the Friendless when their parents died in 1891. Each child was subsequently adopted by a different family, her name changed, and all trace of her origin apparently lost.

Last summer, Mrs. Dommner wanted work in a war plant and needed a birth certificate to qualify for it. She didn't know the names of her parents or the date of her birth—only that she had been adopted in Chicago when she was about 2 years old.

A Chicago Legal Aid lawyer consulted the Home for the Friendless and learned that a sister, Gertrude Johnson, had been living in Belvidere, Ill., in 1907 and was the adopted daughter of the Zeimmer family there. With this one clue, Mrs. Dommer wrote to "Gertrude Johnson Zeimmer, Belvidere, Ill.," and was promptly answered by her sister, who had become Mrs. Bird and moved to Rockford.

PUBLIC HOUSING CENTER HAS USO RECREATION AID

Bayview Terrace, a public war housing project accommodating 1,000 families in San Diego, Cal., has established a recreation service for tenants with the aid of the United Service Organizations, the National Association of Housing Officials announced yesterday. This is one of the few industrial USO programs in the country. Activities center in a large community building containing an auditorium, which may be used as a gymnasium, a kitchen, dressing rooms, and a storeroom. The program includes social clubs, dancing classes, a weekly community sing, holiday celebrations, and movies. Most activities are free, but any profits from special events will be used to purchase equipment which the USO cannot provide.

TAX RELIEF BILL ON PROGRAM FOR '43 LEGISLATURE

Members Tell of Plans for Coming Session.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

A busy session of the Illinois legislature, beginning Jan. 6, was predicted yesterday as members disclosed measures they are drafting in addition to Gov. Dwight H. Green's mammoth program which he unveiled two weeks ago. Gov. Green proposes the first major reforms in state government since those put thru by Gov. Frank O. Lowden in World War I. Besides promising a slash in state spending to show the way to other taxing units, Green will seek some departmental reorganizations, modernization of accounting and budgetary methods, and "equal salaries for equal work" for 20,000 state employés.

Elmer J. Schnackenberg.

Talk of Shorter Session.

There has been the usual talk of shortening the session from its usual length of six months. Veteran law makers shake their heads wisely. As one downstate member put it the other day: "My people elect me to put in six months at Springfield. If I were there only 60 or 90 days they'd say I wasn't earning my pay."

The way appears clear for the re-election of Speaker Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R., Chicago] in the house, and of Rep. William Vicars [D., Pontiac] as minority floor leader. Plans also have been made to again choose Sen. Arnold P. Benson [R., Batavia] as president pro tem in the senate and Sen. Richard J. Daley [D., Chicago] as minority leader in the upper chamber.

Benson, Daley, and Vicars all omit their ages in their Illinois Blue Book sketches—because they are relatively young. Benson is 46; became G. O. P. floor leader in the senate when he was 42. Daley is 36 and Vicars about the same age.

Decides on 1941 Bill.

Sen. Daley's chief personal interest is in passage of the tax preadjudication bill to enable small home owners to get the benefit of reductions in assessments now practically limited to those who can afford to hire attorneys to protest the levies.

After months of work Daley has decided to introduce the same bill which was passed in 1941 but was vetoed by Gov. Green on the recommendation of the attorney general's office. Two previous laws of similar intent had been invalidated by the Supreme court.

"This time I'm going to take pains to see that the attorney general's office understands the bill," Sen. Daley said. "In 1941 that office was completely wrong in holding that my bill was 'in substance similar' to the statutes upset by the high court."

Urges High Court Test.

When the bill is passed by the 1943 session, Daley said, it should be permitted to go to the Supreme court rather than being vetoed.

Speaker Schnackenberg, who also has a record of activity in behalf of the tax preadjudication measure, will support the new attempt.

"I'm for any one who wants to get that bill moving," he said. "It should be passed."

The Chicago Bar association and the Chicago Federation of Labor are preparing to support a series of bills to revamp the system of electing Municipal court judges. Under these measures, sponsors claim that it would be impossible to duplicate the present situation, in which all 37 judges are Democrats.

Propose Cut in Trustees.

Reducing the number of Chicago sanitary district trustees from nine to three, saving at least $60,000 a year, will be proposed by Rep. Robert M. Woodward [R., Chicago]. This step was recommended in 1941 by a survey group which utilized the findings of a staff recruited by the Civic Federation and the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Each trustee receives $7,500 a year and has a secretary drawing $2,500 a year.

Rep. Alan E. Ashcraft Jr. [R., Evanston], who was unusually effective for a new member in getting bills passed in 1941, has drafted a pair of bills for the 1943 session to provide severer penalties for assault and battery of the variety made notorious by labor sluggings.

Where assault and battery now entails only a fine of from $3 to $100, Ashcraft's bills provide for terms ranging up to life imprisonment for premeditated assault, depending on the circumstances.

WOMEN'S COURT AIDS FIGHT ON VENEREAL CASES

Unremitting warfare on venereal disease was the principal concern of the staff of the Women's court during the year, Judge J. M. Braude said in his report of the year's work of the court.

A decrease in the number of prostitutes, coupled with increasing problems created by young, inexperienced girls coming to Chicago without funds in search of work, was noted in the report.

Like other agencies, the Women's court has joined with the army and navy to prevent infection of military personnel and war workers.

Thus far during 1942, said Judge Braude, 684 defendants were found to have venereal disease. Of these, 78 were men. He said that ordinarily the court discovers only about 200 cases a year, but that the number increased this year because of greater precautions. The court now compels all defendants to undergo medical examinations.

MASON PREDICTS CONGRESS WILL CURB BUROCRATS

Foresees End to Rule by New Deal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—The new congress will speed the war program, curb the burocrats, and insist upon constitutional government, according to Rep. Noah M. Mason [R., Ill.].

Rep. Noah M. Mason.

Rep. Mason made these predictions for the congressional session opening Jan. 6, in a statement issued by his office.

"There will be no further extension of powers to the chief executive other than those actually needed for the war program.

"There will be no more New Deal socialistic legislation passed during the next two years, but there will be a definite brake put upon the Washington burocrats who have arbitrarily placed many unnecessary restrictions upon the people.

"The war effort will be clarified and speeded up, with much of the present confusion and delay ironed out."

Predicts Specific Legislation.

Rep. Mason said he believes that any future legislation delegating more powers to the President will set up definite, specific standards and rules to prevent administrative agencies from making their own interpretations of the powers.

"If this had been done in the past," he said, "the arbitrary orders issued in the Montgomery Ward case would have been impossible."

The balance of power in the new congress will be in the hands of about 50 old-line conservative Democrats, most of them from the south, according to Mason. This group, he said, has consistently opposed the New Deal program, but has been overwhelmed by the administration majorities in both the house and senate. Mason said that with the defeat of many New Dealers of the house in the last election, and with the Republican and Democratic strength almost equal, the anti-New Deal Democrats can determine what legislation shall be passed.

Predicts Balanced Government.

The Illinois representative said of the new congress:

"In general, the American people during the next congress may look forward confidently to a return of constitutional government, with the three coördinated branches of government checking and balancing each other, while all three direct their efforts to the single objective of winning the war as quickly as possible.

"Constitutional methods and procedures will now replace the totalitarian methods and procedures that have been increasingly used during the last decade."

SURVEY REVEALS FELONS DO THEIR BIT TO AID WAR

Men behind the bars of America's prisons are doing their part in war service, a survey of 46 state penal institutions by the Central Howard association of Chicago revealed yesterday. The organization is devoted to post-penal rehabilitation.

The survey also showed that prison populations are steadily decreasing—this in the face of a federal bureau of investigation report which indicates that violent crime is on the upsurge. War service contributions of the prisons include manufacture of war materials where state law permits, donation of blood to plasma banks, purchase of war bonds and stamps, and study of military tactics.

Twenty-two institutions are manufacturing war goods, and a total of $251,906.15 has been invested in bonds and stamps at the prisons. An example of military training is the 500 being instructed at the state prison of southern Michigan at Jackson. It was also reported that 800 paroled Illinois convicts have been inducted for military service this year.

Husband Slain in Quarrel Over Turkey; Wife Held

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 25 (AP).—A family quarrel over the purchase of a $9 Christmas turkey ended today in the shotgun slaying of Arthur Muehle, 39 years old, a battery company employé. His wife, Ruby, 40, was held. Mrs. Muehle and her stepson, Arthur, 13, told police Muehle protested the purchase of the bird yesterday and an ensuing quarrel lasted thru the night.

The Inquiring Camera Girl — BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. I. Bartow, 1155 East 55th street.]

THE QUESTION.

What athletic experience prompted you to say, "Never again"?

WHERE ASKED.

Canal and Van Buren streets.

THE ANSWERS.

Charles Chawpa, policeman, 1423 West 87th street—It had been 10 years since I had done any bowling, but it was always easy for me. A couple of weeks ago I played three games in a row and thought nothing of it. The next day I couldn't straighten up, and actually missed work on account of it. No more of that for me.

G. F. Martin, sales manager, 2230 Ridge avenue, Evanston—The first time I took my wife fishing with me I thought it was handy to have some one along to row the boat while I pulled in the fish. A little later I yanked the line out of the water and caught the back of her head with the sharp hook. The doctor had to remove it, and after that I decided she was safer at home.

Lois Godfrey, office clerk, 3976 Avondale avenue—Not long ago I was thrown from a spirited horse and landed on the hard pavement. I suffered a bad skull injury and decided I was thru riding horseback. It was a long time before I did ride again, but the other day I regained my courage, bought a horse, and am back again on the bridle paths.

Patricia Ferguson, elevator operator, 923 Addison street—Last summer I thought I would improve my skill on roller skates. I started down a long steep hill and half way down I decided I was going too fast, but couldn't do anything about it. As my speed increased my panic did, too. I took a bad fall at the bottom of the hill.

Rosemary Delts, stenographer, 2834 Palmer street—After the first good snow fall we decided to be real outdoor people and make a snowman. We all worked harder than we realized and it was a real job to assemble him. I felt like an old, old woman the next day, and from now on it'll be nothing but miniature snowmen for me.

Maureen Dempsey, librarian, Princeton, N. J.—It was my first day at the indoor skating rink and my first trip around to the tune of the Beer Barrel Polka. I fell and splintered a vertebra. My legs became so numb I couldn't walk and I was in bed with the injury for two weeks. Now I'm convinced it's not worth the risk again.

2 Drown as Car Plunges Into River After Collision

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 25 (AP).—Two men drowned today in the Passaic river when their automobile crashed thru a bridge guard rail after a collision with another car. Police identified the victims as Walter Brouillier, 54 years old, and George Zoppi, 45, both of nearby Haledon. Their car shot 25 feet from the bridge and landed upside down, with only its wheels above water. Firemen removed the bodies.

Thieves Steal Safe, Crack It in Alley and Get $375

A small safe, stolen Thursday night or early yesterday from a Thompson restaurant at 24 West Monroe street by thieves who broke into a side door, was found late yesterday in the alley behind 1339 Adams street. The safe had been broken open and $375 in cash taken.

THE LAME DUCKS BEGIN LIMPING TO NEW DEAL TROUGH

One Already Given Post; Others Expected to Be

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—This is the season for the New Deal lame ducks' biennial parade to the public feed trough. Repudiation by voters in 1938 and 1940 meant only temporary separation from the public pay roll for most New Deal yes-men, and this year is expected to be no exception.

First to be rewarded for faithful subservience this year was Lame Duck Rep. Thomas H. Eliot [D., Mass.], a Harvard law school protégé of Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme court. Eliot landed on the New Deal pay roll in 1933 and remained in various legal capacities until elected to congress two years ago.

Young Eliot, 35 years old—three years below the current draft limit—was a pre-Pearl Harbor shouter for war. He has been appointed London representative of the British division of the office of war information. Elmer Davis, OWI head, has announced Eliot will "project to the British public a fuller understanding of the United States at war."

Lee's Case Meets Snag.

Sen. Josh Lee [D., Okla.], another lame duck yes-man, who did a daily war dance on the senate floor for more than a year prior to Pearl Harbor, was nominated by President Roosevelt after his November defeat to be a civil aeronautics board member at $10,000 a year. However, Lee must be nominated again when the new congress meets in January, for the senate has not confirmed his appointment.

Sen. Josiah W. Bailey [D., N. C.], chairman of the commerce committee, reminded Mr. Roosevelt that the Constitution forbids the appointment of a senator or representative during the term for which he was elected to any office created during that term. The civil aeronautics board was created in 1938, during Lee's term.

Lee's qualifications for the CAB include live stock farming, according to the signs of the zodiac; teaching elocution and Delsarte [a system of calisthenics] at the University of Oklahoma, and politicking.

Expect Brown Appointment.

It has been said that Sen. Prentiss M. Brown, lame duck New Dealer from Michigan, probably would have been appointed office of price administration director to succeed Leon Henderson before the 77th congress adjourned had not the Lee case taught Mr. Roosevelt a lesson in elementary constitutional government.

But Brown will be eligible when his term expires next month, and he is expected to get the appointment.

Even the octogenarian George W. Norris, Nebraska's eminent lame duck, is said to be reluctant to retire to private life after 40 years on the public pay roll as a member of congress.

Various jobs have been suggested for Norris, including membership on a New Deal peace planning board.

Other New Deal November casualties reported under consideration for government jobs include Lame Duck Rep. Joseph E. Casey of Massachusetts, unsuccessful senate candidate; Lame Duck Gov. Culbert L. Olson of California, Lame Duck Sen. Berkeley L. Bunker of Nevada, Lame Duck Sen. Wall Doxey of Mississippi, Lame Duck Sen. Harry H. Schwartz of Wyoming, and Lame Duck Sen. William H. Smathers of New Jersey.

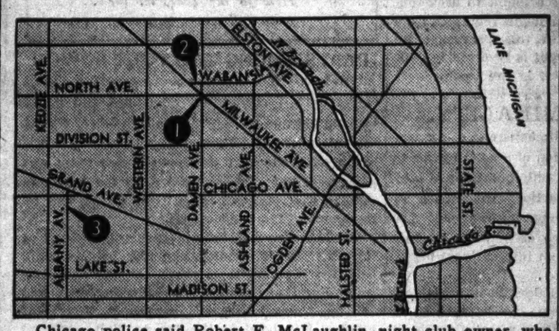
Minton Aided in Past.

Lame duck New Dealers rescued by Mr. Roosevelt in previous years include former Sen. Sherman Minton of Indiana, now a member of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago, and former Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, who became attorney general and now is a justice of the United States Supreme court.

Rewarding of lame ducks with lucrative government jobs has been widely criticized in and out of congress on the ground that it is undemocratic, since it flouts the will of the people expressed at the polls.

It is contended also that the practice does violence to the constitutional system of checks and balances operating on the government's legislative, executive and judicial branches. It is argued that members of congress who know they will be rewarded for subservience to the executive branch may cease to be responsive to the people's wishes.

Night Club Owner Slain



Chicago police said Robert E. McLaughlin, night club owner, who was slain yesterday, was last seen across the street from his tavern at 1958 North avenue (1). His automobile was found at 2033 Wabansia avenue (2), and his body was discovered in front of 733 North Albany avenue (3).

Police said this is the automobile in which Robert E. McLaughlin, night club owner, was riding when he was slain.

the body. Before being shot, the examination indicated, McLaughlin had been clubbed on the head.

McLaughlin's name has turned up in the crime news several times over the last 16 years.

A week after he assumed the presidency of the cab company Dec. 9, 1926, Joseph Wokral, who had preceded him as president, was slain. Before he died Wokral named Red McLaughlin as the killer, but the latter never was tried because of insufficient evidence.

Red McLaughlin's name was linked to many kidnapings, assaults, and robberies before he was sent to prison under a 1 to 14 year sentence for robbery in May, 1928. He was released a year later, but on June 7, 1930, his body was found in the drainage canal at Summit, shot twice thru the head and weighted with a 75 pound angle iron.

On Aug. 5, 1939, Charles Hinkle, 900 Rush street, a rival tavern owner, signed a complaint which charged McLaughlin shot him in the right leg in a mysterious mixup in McLaughlin's café. McLaughlin was freed after Hinkle failed to appear for arraignment of McLaughlin.

Forty-eight persons were arrested on the third floor of McLaughlin's café Feb. 27, 1941, in what police said was a gambling raid.

An inquest into the death will be held at 9:30 o'clock this morning, with Deputy Coroner Eugene Ingles assigned to direct it.

Brother Knows No Motive.

Joseph McLaughlin, the last of the three McLaughlin brothers to survive, is a Municipal court bailiff. He said he last saw Robert McLaughlin about 7:30 p. m. Thursday night in front of his café, where the brothers had gone to exchange Christmas gifts. Joseph said he could offer no motive for the slaying and knew of no enemies of his brother.

The brother said the shooting victim was interested in only one business—his café and tavern, and that he normally spent 14 hours a day at the place.

Robert McLaughlin's widow, Isabel, who last saw her husband when he left home at 10 a. m. Thursday, was too overcome to make a statement, and police took her to the family home, 704 South Wesley avenue, Oak Park.

Slain After 7 A. M.

In fixing the time of the killing police said neighbors walking by the scene reported the body was not there at 7 a. m. and that McLaughlin's hands were still warm, indicating he had been dead less than an hour.

Surviving McLaughlin, in addition to his widow, are four children—Robert, 10; Vivian, 21; Roberta, 13, and Eugene, 3.

This hat and Christmas tree bulbs were found in McLaughlin's automobile. A piece of paper on which were listed some of the night club owner's belongings also was found in the car.

GAMBLING IN CITY DURING '42 SHOWS LARGE DECREASE

Only Few Handbooks Left, Judge Caplan Says.

Public gambling is at its lowest ebb in years, Judge Oscar S. Caplan, who has sat in the racket branch of the Municipal court during the first 11 months of this year, reported yesterday. Judge Caplan said that the slot machine and other gambling machines have practically disappeared from the city and that only a few fully serviced handbooks are operating.

The Municipal judge said that a combination of factors have contributed to the decrease in gambling. The war and the determination of the authorities to suppress open betting are the principal reasons for the decrease.

80 Per Cent Are Convicted.

During the first 11 months of this year a total of 17,507 gambling cases were filed in the Racket court and approximately 14,000, or 80 per cent, of the defendants were convicted, Judge Caplan reported. Fines totaling $31,117 were collected.

Judge Caplan said that in 1941 only 10 per cent of those arraigned in the court for gambling were convicted. He said that since March only two complaints have been filed in the court on slot machine violations.

"The policy of the police in arresting patrons of handbooks during raids has hurt the operators' business," he said. "Many patrons have joined the army and nacy and others are too busy in defense work to spend time in the betting parlors.

Many Take Defense Jobs.

"Forty handbook operators convicted have filed motions to set aside the fines in order to go into the army and 50 others, afraid of jail sentences, have taken defense jobs.

"Many gamblers, realizing their responsibilities to their country, are investing in defense bonds instead of wagering on the horses."

Judge Caplan said that the only form of gambling which the police seem unable to curb is the policy wheel or numbers betting. The surreptitious manner in which it is conducted makes it difficult to get evidence for convictions, he said.

ACCUSED KILLER OF SCHOOLGIRL, 15, SINGS IN HIS CELL

Chinook, Mont., Dec. 25 (AP).—Sheriff C. B. Reser said Leslie Sciefers, 16, of Harlem, confessed today that he shot and killed his 15 year old schoolmate, Elaine Allen, in his home.

"There are many details of the case we don't want to discuss yet," Sheriff Reser said.

The girl, shot four times with a .22 rifle, was found dead Wednesday in young Sciefers' room. Sciefers, who had hitch-hiked to Chinook to attend church services, was arrested here yesterday. Sciefers whistled, sang and played solitaire in his cell today.

County Atty. D. J. Sias said he would charge Sciefers tomorrow with first degree murder.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

L. F. S. writes: "My husband is overseas and I know that he usually began working on his income tax reports shortly after the first of the year. How is he supposed to file this year?"

ANSWER: Military personnel who are overseas or on duty outside the United States are not required to file an income tax report on March 15, 1943, nor will naval personnel assigned to duty on the high seas or stationed outside the United States be required to file on that date. However, men in these groups are not exempt because they will be required to file on the 15th day of the 3d month following their discharge from service, even tho they remain abroad, or their returns will be due on the 15th day of the 3d month following their return to the United States. This department has prepared an article "The Yank's Guide to 1942 Income Tax," which we will send to men now in active service if they send us a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The article will not be sent to civilians.

W. L. F. writes: "I have misplaced my blue course discharge papers. Where may I get a duplicate?"

ANSWER: Your records probably are on file in the offices of the service command where you live or received your training. If not, you can get the records by writing to the R. O. T. C. commandant of the school you attended.

C. P. C. writes: "I am 27 years old, married, have no children. From September, 1935, to September, 1937, I studied architectural engineering at the University of Illinois and then for 9 months I worked for a large contracting firm as an architect and draftsman. Later I became their representative and superintendent and supervised the construction of a $143,000 school building. In addition, I have worked for several years as a carpenter. Where could I find a place in the service?"

ANSWER: Contact the navy construction battalion and discuss with it your prospects of enlisting as a carpenter or as an architectural draftsman. You will not be able to enlist until after Jan. 1, because the quotas are filled at the present. After Jan. 1, you may be able to volunteer for this branch thru your draft board, and if you are accepted you probably will get a good rating.

N. A. writes: I have heard many conflicting reports as to the length of time which the selected service allows to elapse after an operation for hernia before inducting the registrant. I have been unable to secure any statement from my board on the matter. Is there any definite ruling on this matter or any generally accepted policy?"

ANSWER: Much depends on the recuperative powers of the individual, but the army medical officers generally will not accept a man unless his operation was performed more than three months before he appears at the induction station.

HOW EUROPE MIGHT KEEP THE PEACE.

A great many people in Europe seem to think that it is the mission of the United States to maintain peace in Europe. Some people in the United States share that view, but most of us believe that it would be much better for Europeans and for us if Europe kept its own peace. On that point the so-called interventionists and the so-called isolationists can agree.

It can be agreed, also, that the vast majority of the people of Europe today regard war as a curse and the more experience they have of it the less they like it. Every correspondent in the European capitals in September, 1939, reported a lack of enthusiasm for the war. It would seem that in a continent in which only a small proportion of the people want war, war might be avoided. Sometimes we suspect that Europeans aren't nearly as smart as they think they are. They have before them the example of a continent that has kept the peace with only one serious interruption for more than 150 years, but Europe hasn't copied our method.

For example, a great many European wars—we should think almost all of them—start as quarrels over boundaries. Likewise, most of them end in the relocation of boundaries. Among the most important questions to be decided at the peace conference at the conclusion of the present war will be the boundaries of Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Italy, etc. The Alsace-Lorraine question is a question of boundaries. So are all the irredentas.

Europe has been trying for three or four centuries, now, to develop a universal theory of national boundaries that will give full recognition to at least three divergent principles of boundary making. The task is obviously impossible of achievement. No formula can be found that will give each of the European states linguistic unity, defensible frontiers, and a well-rounded economy. It can't be done. No matter how the boundaries are drawn after this war, if the traditional method is followed they will give rise to irritations which can lead to war and will lead to war if the experience of Europe is worth anything as a guide.

We have had much better luck in this country largely because of our federal system and our method of boundary drawing. We think Europe could profitably adopt or adapt our federal system, but in doing so Europe will do well to adopt our ideas of state boundaries also.

Obviously, the map of the 48 states is not a map of linguistic divisions, past or present. When the line separating New York from Pennsylvania was drawn, nobody was much concerned to see that all who spoke German were on the Pennsylvania side and all who spoke Dutch were on the New York side. Likewise, nobody paid much attention to the defensibility of Kansas when its boundaries were fixed, or to the economic unity of Utah. It would be inaccurate to say that these considerations were never present [it was an economic purpose that gave Illinois a corner of Lake Michigan, for example] but, by and large, our boundaries are arbitrary and that is particularly true of the later ones.

The more we learned about the federal system the less attention we paid to economic, racial, or religious unities within states and the less we were concerned about strong frontiers to discourage aggression by one of our states upon another. Maybe it occurred to somebody that the Ohio river boundary, a strong frontier if ever there was one, encouraged separatism and the Civil war. Europe could learn from that example.

Europe might set up a federal government whose divisions were drawn as arbitrarily as the most arbitrary of ours. Let the Europeans decide how big the member states ought to be and proceed to divide up the continent into chunks as nearly rectangular as geography will permit, regardless of language, religion, economics, and natural obstacles like rivers and mountains. Let the central government, like ours, guarantee to every man civil and economic liberties and his right to his language and customs. Let these states send their representatives to a state capital and to a continental capital.

It might work. It might relax the tensions that have bred nationalist wars. It might pacify Europe to the point where there would be no need, real or alleged, for American participation in maintaining peace on the European continent.

CENSORSHIP AGAIN.

The New Deal censorship over domestic affairs has taken another stride forward. This time it is the movies. Hollywood is to submit all screen treatments and scenarios prior to production to Lowell Mellett, chief of the motion picture bureau of the office of war information. The censorship is defended as "voluntary."

The administration should know that the movies are already subject to restriction. There is the Hays office to pass upon any offenses that the studios might commit. Many states and cities have boards of censorship under police auspices. As an additional safeguard there are organized groups, such as the Legion of Decency, which have great influence in determining what is shown upon the screen.

Films that come before the American public are thus morally as pure as a baby's breath. Ideology doesn't count. It is a word familiar in Hollywood only to members of the Screen Writers' guild. If the OWI thinks that there is still a risk that a picture might offend audiences in other countries, it is ignorant of what has happened to the export film market since the war. The foreign countries where American films are shown are allies or recipients of lend-lease or some other form of bounty. They aren't likely to take offense.

Before extending his province over entertainment films, Mr. Mellett was already exercising a censorship over the scripts of educational motion pictures. If he turned thumbs down on any educational screen treatment, the war production board denied the producer the film to make it and that picture was dead. Now he has acted to bring all movies under his control.

The latest development in censorship can only be interpreted as a further attempt to accustom the people to having their thoughts regulated from Washington, even if, as in this particular instance, hardly enough thought is involved to stuff in a thimble. That, in fact, is the tipoff.

JAPAN'S CRIMINALITY.

If we assume, as we do, that the end of the war will put Japan in the position of a nation come to judgment there will be not only questions of individual responsibility for actions condemned by humanity and not sanctioned by war but also some very broad principles of national conduct which should come before an international bar of justice.

Japan gave its solemn pledges in international treaties and dishonored them. It also repeated its practice of attacking a nation which thought it was at peace. Even in the code of military nations that is criminal conduct. Such nations, and Japan is proud to be one of them, draw a precise line between acts justified by war and acts which do not have such justification. It is war for soldiers to kill each other. It is murder for a civilian to kill an enemy soldier.

A nation which attacks while its representatives are engaged in negotiations for the peaceable settlement of a controversy has committed a crime. If, in the end, the attack contributes to the winning of a war it is smart. If the war is not won the gangsterism may be regretted by its perpetrators. It should be made cause for regret for whatever admonitory effect the punishment may have.

Japan should be called to account for this and for its perfidy in its treaty relations. The Japanese were given the league of nations mandate for the German islands north of the equator. The contractual provisions denied Japan the right to fortify them or convert them into bases for war. American international policy under Mr. Wilson was too busy bumping its head against the stars to see the danger to this country in Japanese possession of the islands and they passed into the possession of a predatory nation which intended to use them against the United States and did. The breach of faith should not pass unnoticed when the time for accounting comes. Respect for treaties is one essential to the honorable conduct of international affairs and peace depends upon such honorable conduct.

Then there are other matters in which Japan proved itself intentionally false to its word. It signed the treaty guaranteeing Chinese sovereignty and territory, intending only to use that agreement as a cover for invasion and seizure.

There will be many grandiose schemes for the civilized conduct of a peaceable world. The safest formula is the simplest and it requires only good faith. The last 20 years have been monumental in their wreckage of solemn obligations deceitfully designed. International dealings have become so dishonored that the first approach to war may be an act of friendship and good will. Hitler developed this as a special technique. Japan has used it as a national policy. The future security of the world will require that such procedure be stigmatized as brigandage and punished in an exemplary manner.

CLINICAL NOTES.

This administration is certainly the daffiest on earth. Fresh examples of irrationality and inconsistency come to hand every day. Two of the most recent will serve.

The Chicago street lights are going all night and mammoth electric signs over theaters and business establishments and neon signs over night clubs, restaurants, and other places are burning up the juice, but the citizen is discouraged from using outdoor lighting for Christmas trees, which use little current, will be up for only a few days, and would gladden all hearts.

Meanwhile, Washington officials talk ominously about a threatened coal shortage for Chicago. The supplies of public institutions are running low. And yet, instead of encouraging every possible method of bringing in coal so that hardship will be avoided, the government is curbing the use of coal barges on the Illinois waterway. Restrictions of the bituminous coal division of the interior department, originally intended to lessen the profit differential between rail and water borne coal, consign numerous barges to idleness and prevent the storing of coal in Chicago yards during the off season.

The passion for regulating anything and everything has passed all bounds. Perhaps the time has come to replace reporters on the Washington staffs of newspapers with psychiatrists.

Editorial of the Day

SOUNDING THE RIGHT KEY.

[Kansas City Times.]

The house committee report on small business ratifies a public verdict that is already in. With modifications it could be the report on any other class of business and millions of individuals in their experience with government. It is primarily a case, the committee finds, "of burocracy run riot." This is the reasoned conclusion of a group of men who had listened for long weeks to the woes of small businessmen, men whose right and chance of doing business and making a living had been made increasingly hazardous not by big business but by the inefficiency and bungling of government burocracy itself.

Over in the senate a committee of the same nature has been at work. It has already discovered, however, that, unless something is done, about 300,000 small retail businesses are threatened with destruction in the coming year. This would be about one-fifth of the total in the country.

These are businesses distinct from the small shops and factories that have been threatened thru inability to get war contracts. The plight of this group is represented as little improved, and the house committee raps the small plants contract division of the WPB. In general the house committee finds that small business is in a bad way. It blames chiefly the office of price administration, whose director, Leon Henderson, has just resigned. The committee charges that OPA policies have "threatened a breakdown on the home front," that its "price squeezes" in particular have caught many dealers, and that unless policies are changed soon legislation will be sought in congress to "compel their correction in order to avert the destruction of independent small business and, with it, the middle class of the country."

In effect, this strikes at more policies than those of the OPA. The house committee itself takes in more territory. But the middle class generally is being hit by a Washington philosophy that bodes ill for the future of the one central group in America that has been most American. There is more in it than the house committee brings out, but its report does catch the significance of a trend.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

PEPYS AMONG THE YULE BOWLS.

26th Dec.—Kept my nose to the grindstone most of the week, preparing for Christmas, and as the Day approached tried to steer a safe course among the wassail bowls. My zigzagging past the bowls began on Wednesday afternoon, when there was a party in the office, arranged by the boys and girls in the reference room, with a tree, and refreshments, and a door-prize.

On Thursday at midday there was a bowl at the Cliff Dwellers club, when rosy goblets could be lifted high, with no charge on the house account, and that evening, when the carolers began to sing "Silent Night" in earnest there was another free bowl at the Tavern club, encircled by the chivalry and beauty of Michigan avenue. Managed to sail by all these bowls with only a few dents in my superstructure and cruised home on an even keel.

Then arranged for Santa Claus' arrival in my abode with a sackful of gifts and, having made everything ready, went to sup in the home of a friend, where there was good cheer and much merriment. On rising the next morning, found the old gentleman in the red suit and white whiskers had done his duty with a free hand, and even my dog Dido, who likes playthings, had not been forgotten.

Missed the out-of-doors illuminations, which have been a fine Christmas spectacle in the suburbs around my domicile, and thought it a pity they have joined the black-out covering most of the world. Tried to imagine what Christmas next year will be like, but gave it up, for the world is too much troubled with the howling of prophets, and if they would settle down to live one day at a time maybe things would get better.

Now to rest beside my Christmas tree, which is small enough to be called a shrub, and to read a book in the spirit of the holidays. It should be something by Dickens, and his essay, "Christmas as We Grow Older," would suit. But I would rather stay young for another year, and so it will be "Pickwick Papers."

THE LONELY, STARLIT PATH.

They saw the crimson roads each Caesar knows,
The pagan ways of pomp and diadem,
And there were those who wondered that they chose
The lonely path to unknown Bethlehem.
So many lustrous stars were clear that night!
So many roads that led to fame and gold!
Yet none save three saw in the east the light
That shone in splendor on a distant fold.
Grant us, dear Lord, the wisdom and the will
To see the star above each little child;
The hope of earth rests in the cradle still
And, till the day when men are reconciled,
Help us, we pray, to build a world whose star
Shall be the Child the wise men saw afar.

Quissicues.

"Silent Night, Holy Night."

In the Austrian Tyrol nestles the remote town of Obendorf. Joseph Mohr was the devout priest of the town; Franz Xavier Grüber, his friend, was the village choirmaster and church organist. Both were lovers of music. The two men had often agreed that the perfect Christmas song had not yet been found. Meditating on this thought, Mohr sat in his study on Christmas eve, 1818. Outside the air was still and cold. Suddenly, thoughts which had been forming in Mohr's mind found clear expression: Stille Nacht, heilige Nacht.

The next morning Mohr hurried to his friend's home with the manuscript. Grüber then composed the music. Grüber exclaimed with joy in his heart as he sang it for the first time, "It sings itself, your song." Later in the evening they sang their new song before their first audience. The little company of auditors thanked their two friends with tears and joy in their eyes.

Tradition says that the song lay on Grüber's desk for a year. Then it was tried on the church organ. The organ builder was so entranced that he begged to take a copy to a little town across the mountain. There it was sung by four sisters by the name of Strasser. This song became the favorite of the "Strasser quartet." They were invited to sing the hymn in the cathedral of Leipzig. It became known as the "Tyrolean Song."

It was first honored in 1854 when a full choir sang it in the imperial church of Berlin before Emperor Frederich Wilhelm IV. Thereafter it was ordered to have first place in all Christmas programs. The English version:

Silent night, holy night,
All is calm, all is bright,
'Round yon Virgin, Mother and Child,
Holy Infant, so tender and mild,
Sleep in heavenly peace.

And the heavy weight of snow. . . .
Take your heart to a Christmas tree,
See how it's all aglow!

O, may the candle-lighted tree
(Mem'ries are candles, too)
Give you its courage and dauntless cheer!
That's my Christmas wish for you.

DIABETES IN CHILDHOOD.

FORTUNATELY, physicians are not called upon frequently to manage diabetes in children. Only 5 per cent of all sufferers will be under 10 years of age. It has been pointed out, however that the offspring of diabetic ancestors may exhibit the disorder altho there is less likelihood of trouble when but one parent is afflicted. Symptoms are likely to come on suddenly. Great fatigue, extreme thirst, profuse urination, and loss of weight may be present. In some cases the appetite will be voracious while in others nausea is associated with loathing of food.

If the condition is not recognized, sooner or later the characteristic vomiting, headache, and pain within the abdomen will appear. After a while breathing may become rapid and labored. Now and then abdominal distress will be mistaken for appendicitis or other acute upset. Thus, in every illness, examination of the urine is essential.

These little patients are on a very delicate balance. They cannot take sugar because the level in the blood will rise. Meanwhile, the kidneys will do their best to filter off the surplus and discharge it via the urine. Should a cold or tonsilitis be encountered the tot may show signs of acidosis. In this fashion a situation that is going along favorably may be converted within a few hours into one of serious import.

Young victims take insulin about as readily as adults. They must be watched more critically, however, to avoid insulin shock. It is a wise practice to insist that they carry a few lumps of sugar or be where they can obtain orange juice quickly. Either edible will use up the excess glandular substance, whereupon the youngster feels perfectly all right.

Generous meals to supply the food required by activity and development are called for. Meat must not be omitted. In fact, under 5 years of age, a gram and one-half per pound of body weight is necessary in each 24 hours. For example, a 3 year old child weighing 30 pounds will need 45 grams daily. The remainder of the diet may consist of starches and fats in the proportion of 2 to 1.

The amount of medicine injected must naturally be regulated by the family physician. Some will go so far as to insist that the urine be tested before each meal so that the quantity of the hormone may be gauged more accurately. It is important not to give too much of the drug because it may mean that a neutralizer [sugar] will have to be administered quickly. Should restlessness, weakness, and sweating follow, the chances are that the dose has been too large or the food carbohydrates insufficient.

The protamine form of insulin has been of great value. Thru its use the number of injections may be reduced. An accepted plan is to employ half the requirement of the ordinary preparation before breakfast and the rest before supper as protamine or zinc insulin. This may sustain the victim thru the night satisfactorily.

We must remember that we are dealing with a "sprouting" boy or girl. Getting ahead of the disease is a game requiring alertness on the part of the oldsters. Under skilled management the patient should gain in weight and grow normally.

EYE AILMENTS.

L. C. writes: What is the difference between trachoma and glaucoma?

Trachoma is a stubborn infection, probably of virus origin. In glaucoma, drainage from the eyeball is inadequate. In consequence, the structure becomes more tense. If either is allowed to persist, vision will be injured—if not destroyed.

POULTRYMAN'S TROUBLES.

Lisle, Ill., Dec. 21. — Here we have thousands of layers on feed shelling out eggs, but production is being disrupted due to the shortages of protein feeds and other governmental regulations, and ceilings on finished products, with none on the raw materials.

The ceiling was put on eggs and poultry just when normally eggs and poultry should reach a price to make up for low prices in the flush season. This month has been the coldest we have had in this section for years. We have to heat our henhouse to keep the water from freezing and to keep the birds in production. This has been a much greater expense this year than others, but are we in any way compensated for this additional labor and expense? No. We have a ceiling price which affects the producer more than the seller, as he can switch grades. They were supposed to take this ceiling off three weeks ago but have extended it.

At present there is no inducement to raise poultry, because of the ceiling on poultry meat. Broilers at the Chicago market are 27 cents for White Rock broilers. If the producer can bring them there himself he gets 28 cents. The dealer can resell them for 30 cents. Normally the dealer sells them for 28 when he pays 26, but it just so happens that some dealers sold one coop for 30 cents when the ceiling went on, so now all broilers are 30 cents to the retailer but the price to the producer remains the same.

I am sure every one wants to do all they can to help win the war. The part that hurts the hard working middle class most is to see the money literally poured down the sewer. The administration tried to spend us out of the depression and now they think if they spend enough we will win the war by spending. There are just two things that will win the war and they are common sense and hard work.

JOBLESS MINERS.

Christopher, Ill., Dec. 17. — In The Tribune today I read a statement by Fuel Administrator Ickes, who warned of an impending coal shortage in the Chicago area. There will be people who will believe nothing can be done to help such a condition, but miners and mine union officials know this is not true.

As late as last week mines in the Belleville district worked as little as one day. Mines in and around Collinsville also are not working steadily, with some of the mines remaining closed.

If such a coal shortage is expected in Chicago, then why isn't there some effort to operate these mines on a full time basis? JOHN MARCHIANDO.

THE LAMP IS LOW.

McHenry, Ill., Dec. 21.—I am a lone woman who has three school age children. We live about two miles from school. In order to get there in time, they must be up and have breakfast and leave before the sun rises. At night it's dark when they have their evening meal, study, and get ready for bed. We have kerosene lights, or, rather, would have, if we had any kerosene. I've been waiting about six weeks for my ration book, but it doesn't materialize. Now what are we supposed to do? Burn candles all winter? Mrs. M.

THE SHEPHERDS AND THE SHEEP.

Sparta, Ill., Dec. 17.—Future historians might perhaps designate the 20th century United States as the possession of earthly shepherds — shepherds filled with ardor for remaking the lives of the rest of mankind. In the assumption of their role, these shepherds can not but intimate that the remainder of the earth's people are merely sheep. A country, dedicated to human equality, now acts on the presumption that qualifications which definitely differentiate man from mammal are relevant only to a portion of us.

With the passage of the 18th amendment, an American majority passed under the beneficent crook of an American minority—consisting of dry shepherds. Now American leaders proceed in the role of shepherds, not only at home, but thruout all the world besides.

Human sheep, however, must come to resent the status. It is suggested that one can not eat a human status, but any man—reduced to the place where he is forced to accept patronage of the earthly shepherd—will rebel in time. It is better to be a hungry man than a satisfied sheep.

MARY ALLEN GRANT.

FIRST DIVIDEND.

Platteville, Wis., Dec. 19.—Your editorial in today's Tribune, "Out of the Depths, Ill.," strikes right at the center of "our hearts, our hopes, and our fears." Like many others I agree thoroly with its spirit and purpose.

I hope the politic resignation of Mr. Henderson, as you say, is only the first dividend on resurgence of the American spirit evidenced Nov. 3. Speed the day when America can be America again.

And now let me repeat what I said in an earlier issue [Nov. 4] of The Tribune: "As a matter of human nature, the leaders who have willingly led us into extreme centralization and have enjoyed the power and prestige resulting therefrom are less likely to return our freedoms to us than would statesmen who have, as a policy, opposed regimentation." E. F. R.

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST.

Des Plaines, Ill., Dec. 20.—I can't help but express my feelings this morning after reading the articles about Eddie Rickenbacker and the Hopkins banquet. It was like a dagger in the heart, as it must be to every mother who has sons in the service of our country. I am sending the story of Eddie to my son. But I wouldn't think of sending the other. Marine's Mother.

SAVINGS IN TIRE INSPECTION.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—In answer to "L. B.," who states that the 25 cent charge for tire inspection is a racket: Any thinking motorist who conscientiously takes care of his car should have his tires checked at least once in two months. Does "L. B." think that 25 cents a car is excessive to check the condition of tires, serial numbers, air pressure, wheel alignment, castor and camber, and brake defects which affect tires?

Defects which if noted and attended to will eventually save him miles and dollars of tire wear. My tire sales agency handles thousands of tires which are now junk because the motorist did not have his tires checked in time. I must add that we are not tire inspectors.

IRVING LEVINE.

REPORT ON OBSTACLE COURSES.

Fort Sill, Okla., Dec. 15.—Americans have always considered themselves a nation of athletes but they seldom exerted themselves in college the way the army trains its young men. There was seldom a college coach that put his trainees thru the paces of an obstacle course. They would have thought one too dangerous for their men. The army, however, gives it to all men. And usually it is the first hard exercise and the first fresh air that enters the bottom of their lungs in years.

WHAT, NO HORSE MEAT?

Chicago, Dec. 20.—I did not notice in the menu of Hopkins' banquet any cooked over coffee or horse meat.

ONE HEIR SOLD.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My parents died leaving a large farm to their eight children. The property has never been specifically divided into equal shares. A few years ago one member of the family sold what he claimed was his one-eighth share without the knowledge of the other heirs. One of the children was still a minor at the time of the sale. 1. Can this transaction be considered legal without the consent and signatures of the other seven heirs?

H. S.

1. Yes. Any one of the co-owners can sell his undivided share.

Buds of Season Hold Spotlight This Week-End

BY JUDITH CASS.

SANTA CLAUS and Father Time may be the men of the hour on Dec. 25 and Dec. 31, respectively, but between those two dates the debutantes and their beaux hold the spotlight. The week-end between Christmas and New Year's traditionally is the most hectic of the year for the young people. This year, of course, the teas and dances are on a simpler scale.

"No fancy decorations at all" and "a small party" are usual remarks from the debutantes' families, and gasoline rationing also is a complicating factor for the suburban teas. Mrs. Warren S. Corning has canceled the tea at which she had planned to introduce her daughter, Barbara, today in Winnetka because their home is so far from the station. Instead Mrs. Corning is giving a small dinner next Wednesday at the Camellia House of the Drake hotel.

From afternoon teas today for Miss Anne Bouscaren and Miss Dorothy Farrington the young people will go on to dinner parties preceding the supper-dance which the Gerald M. Butlers will give for their debutante daughter, Joan, at the Casino. Miss Bouscaren and her parents, the Louis H. G. Bouscarens, and her aunt, Miss Gabrielle Bouscaren of Cincinnati, O., will greet friends in the Bouscarens' Winnetka home. The bud's Manhattanville college roommate, Miss Mary Janet Kinsella, is here from St. Louis, Mo., for the party, at which 10 of Miss Bouscaren's friends will assist her.

John D. Farringtons Giving Similar Party.

A similar party is one which Mr. and Mrs. John D. Farrington are giving from 4 to 7 o'clock in Winnetka for their daughter, who will have nine assistants. Miss Mary Johnson, Miss Phyllis Beringer, and Miss Carol Rosenthal, who are at Briarcliff Junior college with the debutante, have come from Indianapolis, Ind., for the party. Later the Farringtons will entertain at dinner for the assistants and their escorts.

Before the Butler party Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Glore will entertain 60 young people at a dinner in the Regency room adjoining the Camellia House for their cousin, Miss Joanne Hixon. At the same time Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr. and Mrs. Francis Blossom will be giving a small dinner at the Casino for their daughters, Miss Alys Faurot and Miss Carol Blossom. The Butlers' party, a supper-dance, will start at 11 o'clock in the Casino, which will be decorated simply in Christmas greens. Miss Eleanor Cook Robinson, who was at Chatham hall with the debutante, is here from Hartford, Conn., to spend a week with the Butlers.

Carol Plamondon Will Be Luncheon Hostess.

Also on the calendar today is a luncheon which Miss Carol Plamondon is giving at the Saddle and Cycle for Miss Mary and Miss Roxa Lee.

Tomorrow from 4 to 7 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hixon will give a tea in Lake Forest for their youngest daughter, Joanne. Friends of the debutante as well as of her parents have been invited to the party. Later there will be a small informal dinner for Miss Hixon's assistants and their escorts.

Instead of a debut, Mrs. Carson Elwood and her daughter, Virginia, are calling the latter's party tomorrow "Ginger's Canteen." The cocktail party will be given in Mrs. Elwood's East Division street apartment.

Mrs. Samuel J. Walker is giving a small luncheon tomorrow in Lake Forest for Debutante Nancy Cochran. For tomorrow night Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kelly have planned a buffet supper for two Winnetka debutantes, Miss Polly Goodrich and Miss Nancy Graff.

Mary Claire Van Hagen and Brother Entertaining.

The most perfect sort of party at which to relax after today's hectic round of debutante parties is being given tomorrow in Barrington by Miss Mary Claire Van Hagen and her brother, George E. Van Hagen III., at the home of their mother, Mrs. John Esmond, and Mr. Esmond. About 30 or 40 young people will take the 2:50 train to Barrington tomorrow for dinner, a sleigh ride, if there still is snow, and dancing. Of that number, about 14 will spend the night with the Esmonds. Mr. Van Hagen has a house guest for over the holidays, Pedro Towers of Buenos Aires, who is his classmate at Cornell.

The Lake Forest subdebutantes and their beaux are not being forgotten tonight, for the long heralded Lake Forest Junior assembly is being held at the Onwentsia club. The party is far simpler than in other years, with a buffet supper and dancing, but it still will be a gay event. Mrs. George F. McLaughlin heads the committee that planned this winter's assembly.

Dewey Families to Attend Christening Tomorrow.

The Charles S. Deweys and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Jr. will be among those present at the christening of the Edward B. Smiths' second daughter, Suzette, tomorrow in the Church of the Holy Spirit, in Lake Forest. The baby is being given her grandmother Dewey's name, but has been called Normandie so far. The senior Deweys will be here until New Year's day, staying at the Racquet club. Mrs. Dewey Jr. and her children are with her mother, Mrs. James M. Hopkins, and Mr. Hopkins, until the 4th, but Mr. Dewey Jr. came from New Jersey just for Christmas week-end.

Rep. and Mrs. Dewey spent Christmas in Detroit with their other daughter, Mrs. Frederick M. Alger Jr.

Home from College to Spend Holidays

Good Shopping Ahead! Reports Fashion Expert

BY REA SEEGER.

Good shopping days ahead! What with your merchandise checks, gift certificates, and extra cash, you can have a grand time with all the pre-inventory sales of all kinds. Dresses, suits, coats, extra jackets, lingerie, negligees, house coats, hats, and accessories—all that is left from a season—are out on the reduced racks and hangers. This is the time to snap at bargains, particularly the all wool items and the quilted and padded attire to keep you warm and cozy, with a good 60 days of cold weather ahead.

There will be new things to spend your money for, too—bright hats and gloves, new blouses to revive a dated suit, sweaters and cardigans, and extra jackets to alternate with others in your wardrobe. Also there are gay midseason prints in jersey and challis, both good warming items for any cold day, yet bright and new enough to make the spirits soar in time of too much stress or gloom.

Dresses, jackets, and accessories made of cozy, wooly knitted materials are ideal. Many dresses and jackets are made of one colored smooth material, with sleeves of these knitted fabrics. This applies to swanky spectator sports clothes especially, as well as the new "keep yourself warm and cozy" extra jackets.

Stunning printed challis jackets, with long fitted sleeves and cut with a form fitting silhouette [the better to keep you warm and pretty], are made of tiny floral patterned challis on white backgrounds. Some are lined with giddy green and piped with the same effective green, others with vivid cerise. Wear them with lounging slacks or with separate skirts for daytime or evening. Also they'll slide under a winter cloth coat for a cold day with the same smart snap as they do for indoor wear.

Chicago Wellesley Club Holds Luncheon Monday

In place of its monthly luncheon and annual Christmas tea, the Chicago Wellesley club is having a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock on Monday at the Woman's Athletic club. Present Wellesley students and their mothers have been invited to join the alumnae on that day and to meet Lt. Mary Daily of the WAVEs. Engagement

At a family party yesterday in Winnetka, Mr. and Mrs. Peifer Ralph Mork announced the engagement of their daughter, Charlene, to Robert Wingard Liess, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Liess of Evanston. He will receive his commission as an ensign in the naval reserve when he is graduated in the spring, after which the wedding will take place.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

Miss Myrtle Fahsbender, director of home lighting for the Westinghouse company lamp division at Bloomfield, N. J., will speak on planned blackout rooms on Jan. 5 at 7:30 p. m. at a meeting of the residence lighting forum of the Illuminating Engineering society and the women's division of the Electric association. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Chicago Lighting institute.

Myrtle Fahsbender.

Miss Fahsbender, a native Chicagoan and a graduate of the University of Illinois, has been making a study of practical methods of blacking out a home or rooms and will discuss this subject as it affects the Chicago area. Author of a booklet, "Keeping the Blackout Outside Your Home," she will tell her listeners how to be prepared in event of air raids and how to cooperate with the OCD in an effective blackout whenever it is ordered.

An urgent need for women to serve as nurses' aids at Hines Memorial hospital is announced by Mrs. Arthur H. Spiegel, chairman of the Chicago Red Cross chapter.

"Hines is the first government hospital in this area to ask for this assistance," said Mrs. Spiegel. "The need for help in caring for veterans is great, and it is a vital service for women on the home front."

A training class for voluntary aids will open on Jan. 4 at the West Suburban hospital, and the course will require seven weeks. Women who are interested in enrolling should communicate with their local OCD office, their block captains, or Red Cross headquarters, 529 South Wabash avenue.

Mrs. Mary G. Lindenmeyer, senior clerk in the station disbursing office at Great Lakes, observed that it was good to see the yeoman rating badge on a feminine uniform again. She commented on those being worn by WAVES, who arrived recently for duty at Great Lakes.

Mrs. Lindenmeyer was a "yeomanette" during the first World war, serving as secretary to the chief of the detail office, bureau of navigation, in Washington, D. C.

[The following is one of a series in a survey by The Tribune of women's activities during the first year of the war.]

Several of the largest volunteer organizations in Chicago strive to serve as clearing houses for all types of service organizations, supplying women on a moment's notice to do work ranging from switchboard operation to home mechanics.

Such a group is the American Women's Voluntary Services, Inc., a national organization with Chicago headquarters at 160 North La Salle street. The AWVS was founded here on Sept. 16 with 50 members. Today it has more than 3,000 white members and around 700 Negro members at its branch, 4445 South Park Way.

More than 1,000 women have been assigned to temporary volunteer jobs; 125 have been placed in duration long volunteer work; 25 do clerical work at the city hall every day, and more than 20 women staff the headquarters. Most work in revolving groups.

The AWVS gives 24 courses to train women for all types of war work, fulfilling its purpose of "training and placing women in voluntary services." A service club for women of the army and navy has been opened at the Bismarck hotel.

Members are asked to pay a $1 registration fee, but if an applicant cannot afford to pay the fee she may still be accepted. Purchase of the dark blue wool and rayon gabardine uniform for $25 is voluntary.

The Women's Defense Corps of America, 326 Madison street, grew from the 33d Division Mothers club into an organization of 7,000 members in 42 chapters in Chicago and into national status. All cooperate with other war work agencies.

More than 1,500 members of the WDCA sell war bonds and stamps, and the corps reports it has sold more than 18 million dollars worth since May, 1941. The MacArthur chapter sponsors a center for men of the army and navy at the East End hotel. More than 1,000 persons were served Thanksgiving dinner at this center.

On July 22 a group of 15 women, all white collar girls, met and founded the American Victory Patrol, a national group with Chicago headquarters at 1635 Farwell avenue. Today the patrol has 750 members, organized into various corps to serve war agencies. The British War Relief corps of 175, for example, makes 600 fleecy undergarments for children each month. The communications corps of 50 clips cartoons and book length novels to slip into letters and packages for men of the army and navy.

Meetings are held on the first and third Wednesdays of each month at 140 South Dearborn street, and members are asked to bring something to almost every meeting—such as a deck of cards or a can of food for the service centers or old keys for salvage. Members work for rank and title. The $1 membership fee is paid only once and dues are 10 cents a week. Purchase of the victory blue gabardine uniform for $12.50 is voluntary.

Their Betrothal Announced

Miss Mary Ballard and John H. Hobart, whose engagement to be married was announced yesterday. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mary Ballard to Be Wed to John Hobart

Friends of the Ernest S. Ballard family of Winnetka, who called between 4 and 11 o'clock yesterday at an informal party for all seven Ballard children, who were gathered together for a Christmas reunion, had a pleasant surprise. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Ballard announced the engagement of their youngest daughter, Mary, to John Hastings Hobart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Hobart, also of Winnetka.

The news does not surprise good friends of Miss Ballard and Mr. Hobart, for he has been a devoted beau, but it was expected that the party would be an informal debut for the bride-to-be rather than the occasion it turned out to be. Mr. Hobart was graduated from Yale in the accelerated class that finished a few days ago, and his fiancée was present for the commencement exercises. She is a graduate of the Chatham Hall school and probably will return to Smith if Mr. Hobart leaves for the army, in which he enlisted while at Yale. He is a member of the Fence and Elihu clubs and prepared for college at the Hill school.

Neither of Mr. Hobart's sisters was here for the party, Mrs. Benjamin Ayer Fairbank lives in Boston, and Mrs. Craig Colgate Jr., who was married last summer, is in New York. Here from New York for the Ballard family reunion are Lt. and Mrs. Frank F. Fowle Jr., U. S. N. R., and their infant daughter, who was christened last Sunday with Miss Margaret Bell and Ernest Ballard Jr. as godparents. Also at home on a short furlough is Pvt. Joseph D. Ballard.

The Stage

By Cecil Smith

Because Muriel Angelus, the singing star of the revival of "The Merry Widow," is suffering from a throat affliction in New York, the Lehar operetta will not open at the Selwyn theater tomorrow evening. The postponed opening is scheduled for Wednesday evening.

One other member of the company is probably secretly elated over the deferment. George Richmond, a new tenor who joins the cast for the first time here in Chicago, celebrated his arrival in Chicago a few days ago with an attack of laryngitis, and he has been apprehensive about his ability to sing as soon as Sunday.

The marriage of Corp. Marion Hargrove this week draws attention to the fact that he is one of the life models from whom Maxwell Anderson drew the soldier portraits in "The Eve of St. Mark," the war drama opening at the Harris theater Jan. 18. Corp. Hargrove is the author of the best selling book, "See Here, Private Hargrove," in which he detailed—with obvious embroidery—his initial experiences at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Last winter Mr. Anderson visited Fort Bragg to gather material for his play, which was then in the formative stage. As he recounts in the preface he wrote for "See Here, Private Hargrove," the author of that book was one of the first men he encountered. Identified in the play as "Pvt. Marion," Hargrove may be recognized unmistakably because of his odd and carefree financial habits and because of his hair-trigger readiness to make literary allusions.

The play derives its title from one of Pvt. Marion's erudite references to literary lore. In the last terrible days on Bataan, one soldier asks what day of the month it is. Pvt. Marion, never one to give a straight answer even when death is staring them all in the face, consults a convenient almanac, and discovers that it is St. Mark's eve. This is right up Mr. Anderson's alley, and he elaborates a typically Andersonian symbolism, which I shall let you discover for yourself on Jan. 18.

Front VIEWS and PROFILES

BY MARCIA WINN

Greetings by the Gross.

We're a day late with this, but a lady we know was walking down Michigan avenue Christmas eve when she saw a bulky manuscript lying in what was left of the slush. She retrieved it, and found it to be a collection of 40 or so form Christmas letters. The first 16, lettered A to P, were captioned "General Letter Copy." Q thru Z were for the special use of florists, automobile salesmen, insurance agents, and [to her amazement] undertakers. The remainder were labeled "Sentiment Copy" and bore such heiroglyphics as Sentiment PZ, Sentiment PY, and Sentiment QDW. Each expressed deft Christmas greetings particularly fitted to various industries or occupations, but the sentiment we treasure in this waning year of a car in every garage and no-drive-'ems is "Auto Repair Garage Copy Q." It brought in without a touch of nostalgia the delights of motoring, of zooming at 90 miles an hour from here to there, of being cushioned on the super-springs of a super-super-super gasoline conveyance, and concluded:

"We can't promise you the joys of youth regained, but we do promise our patrons the satisfaction of a smoothly finished motor when we keep their cars in repair. We stake our reputation on skilled workmanship, reliable materials, and square dealing. May we continue to serve you?"

Signs of the Times.

The window of a Wilson avenue shooting gallery contains the sign: "Closed for repairs."

Two Pictures.

A scout just back from the Caribbean reports that while he was there Lt. Comm. Walter Winchell arrived on a secret mission in the Antilles. The Caribbean Sentinel, an army paper published at San Juan, Puerto Rico, for troops stationed in the area, published on its first page a picture of Winchell [in uniform] waving as he departed by plane. On the second page it reproduced a Peter Arno cartoon showing a paunchy gentleman standing before a mirror and saying to his tailor, "Are you sure, my man, this is a lieutenant commander's uniform?" The Sentinel made no comment, a precedent we like to follow.

End of Era.

The same scout tells us that San Juan now has abolished the siesta which from time immemorial ran from noon until 2:30 p. m. The movement to abolish it was started by merchants and led by [of all people] the Simmons Bed company.

Loaf of Bread.

Vermeer's "The Milk Maid" is by far the most famous picture in the Dutch Masters exhibition at the Art institute which has been extended thru Dec. 30. Known thru the years by such varying names as "A Maidservant Pouring Milk," "The Milk Woman," "Girl with Bread," and "The Cook," it belongs to the Rijksmuseum in Amsterdam and was smuggled out of Holland barely in advance of the Nazi invasion. We pass on these facts merely as background to the Art institute's discovery that the loaf of bread the girl carries is the most expensive loaf of bread in the world, for the little 18x16 inch canvas is valued conservatively at $750,000. At the computed value of $2,564.10 per square inch [arithmetic for which we take no credit], the loaf of bread goes into the really big money class.

Ballet Russe's 'Rodeo' Dance Wins Acclaim

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

The Ballet Russe hit town last night with the resounding impact of a brand new smash hit which ought to pack the Civic Opera house—Agnes de Mille's enchanting ballet, "Rodeo," danced to Aaron Copland's sinewy score and gaily costumed by Kermit Love to the soaring imagery of Oliver Smith's settings, which capture the glow, the rhythm, and the wild poetry of the southwest.

Perhaps this sounds a little like Eugene Loring's "Billy the Kid," also danced in cowboy idiom to a Copland score, but it isn't. Loring's ballet is a flowing epic of a picturesque bandit; this is the thumping tale of a rodeo and its aftermath at the ranch house dance, tied to a beguiling tale of an ugly duckling who turns into the most enviable of swans.

The cowgirl, who ordinarily will be Miss de Mille herself, was danced last night—and danced superbly—by Lubov Roudenko. Astride what must have been a bucking broncho, she tangled up the rodeo to the disgust of the cowhands, intent on showing off to more feminine females. She even tangled up the dance until a kindly fellow with taps on his boots [that would be Frederic Franklin back at his old trade] explained to her that looking pretty was important. So she returned decked out in a primrose pinafore with gaiters, and she was, beyond the question of a dancing doubt, the belle of the ball. Furthermore, she chose the right cowboy just in time for a thunderous curtain.

But this touch of the cowgirl Cinderella, however amusingly contrived and persuasively projected, is by no means the whole of "Rodeo," any more than the salt is the whole of the stew or the cherry the reason for the ice cream. What Miss de Mille has turned out in this brilliant skirmish with Americana is a shining little masterpiece. It is broad in outline, endlessly resourceful in detail, and it has the tingling quality that leaps over the footlights to captivate a delighted audience.

There is about it the authentic blend of drawling ease and trigger quickness that makes Texans, for instance, unlike any other people in the world. It can move from crackling tap dance to a sudden, almost frozen, poetry, so that one instant it is an actual ballet being danced before your eyes, and the next it has the bland nostalgia of some dream remembered. For that reason, it has a timeless brilliance that will keep it alive in the repertory.

Miss Roudenko's performance is by far the best thing she has done in ballet. It has the gamin charm, never overdone, and the supple ease of movement that gives her performance a fluid grace that retains a wiry, undaunted strength. Mr. Franklin's crackling brilliance is ideal for the cowhand, and there are endless snatches of characterization that mean a corps de ballet in which each dancer is, however momentarily, a star.

Mr. Copland's score is vividly effective, and not the least of its wisdom is asking the orchestra to put down its instruments and clap rhythmic hands in the square dance scene—a scene superbly danced against an exciting backdrop of wonderful wild horses.

The evening opened with "Carnival," with sumptuous Slavenska and quicksilver Youskevitch in the leading rôles, and ended with "Gaité Parisienne" with matchless Danilova as the glove seller and with Franklin as a new Peruvian.

Thru the Looking Glass

This is the season when most of us will have every reason for looking our decorative best.

In a year when elaborate and obviously expensive dress is in poor taste we're called upon to use imagination in accenting our simple wardrobes with a little drama. We can do it with a change of hairdress, the clever use of a whimsical hair ornament, or just with touches of color.

When you trot out to the parties, by day or by night, that are on the current schedule, try your skill at fluffing up inexpensively. A cluster of tiny Christmas tree ornaments in your hair might do just the trick of making your good old black dress get by beautifully. Or a red hair bow, or a fluffy bow of tulle in bright red and green.

You also can dress up the well worn gowns that all your friends have seen before with the simple addition of colored gloves or a brief jacket in some strong, brilliant shade. And try a new makeup, one that harmonizes or contrasts strikingly with the new color accent.

Remember, too, that you can look daisy fresh for hours on end if you take time before you leave the house to apply your makeup with painstaking care. A good foundation is the greater part of the secret. It will give your skin at least the illusion of radiance, and it will make your powder cling longer and more suavely.

SYNOPSIS.

Tessa Devlin, reared by medical missionaries in India, did not learn of her identity until Dr. Shaw, her foster father, died. He left her a diary telling how her own mother died when Tessa was born and how her father, Tom Devlin, a prospector in British Columbia, failed to return for her. Shaw advised Tessa to go to Tom now, who was a rich man in New York. Tessa takes his advice but is unhappy living with her newly found father, her stepmother, Alice, and Uncle Billy Boomer, who lives with the Devlins but is no blood relation. Against their wishes she goes to a New York hospital to completa her nursing course begun in Bombay. There she falls in love with Dr. Bart Carson, son of Phoebe Carson, who runs a fashionable dressmaking establishment with Kate McLaughlin. Uncle Billy has sold Phoebe a cottage near the Devlin home and next door to the home of Mrs. Carol Kimbark, who is trying to marry Jayson Plaice, partner of Tom Devlin. Tessa thinks Bart returns her love but suddenly one day she receives a letter from him saying he is going to work in a Denver hospital and dismisses their romance as a passing fancy. Heartbroken, she gives up nursing and decides to marry Jayson Plaice. Phoebe, who makes most of Alice's clothes, refuses to make Tessa's wedding gown and goes to her own cottage alone. She tries repeatedly to get in touch with Tom Devlin and then Tessa, but Plaice has taken the wedding party on a yachting trip and returns just a few hours before the wedding is scheduled. Tessa puts on her wedding dress and suddenly dashes out of the house and does not show up for the wedding. She is picked up at Mrs. Kimbark's door with a blood stain on her dress. She says she went to Phoebe's cottage and found Phoebe dead with her head bashed in. Police learn that Phoebe bribed the messenger to deliver Tessa's wedding dress to her first and that she sewed a pocket in the sleeve in which she inserted a message. They find part of a note she started to Tessa in which she asked Tessa to come to the cottage and bring the "di . . ." They also find an old note Jayson wrote Phoebe telling her of the death of her husband, Frederick Carson, a prospector in British Columbia. Jayson admits writing the note, Carson, he claims, was prospecting there with himself and Tom Devlin. Plaice says he was with Mrs. Kimbark at the time of Phoebe's murder. But before police can question Mrs. Kimbark she kills herself. Bart arrives the day of the murder. Phoebe had wired him to come. His wife in answer to his mother's wire sent to the Devlin home first by mistake. Tessa is awakened by some one in her room. Beatrice, the maid, reports to police that she suspicions Plaice and gives them Tessa's diamond engagement ring she found under a chair. Police think the "di . . ." in Phoebe's letter means diamond and think Plaice is really Frederick Carson. When they tell him this he denies it but seems upset. When they leave he phones Tom. Tom, driving thru a hurricane to meet Jayson, is injured by a falling tree. Bart, called in on the case, starts to give Tom a blood transfusion, discovers that Tessa's blood is the wrong type, and has to give his own blood. Then suddenly Bart declares his love again for Tessa. She shows him the letter Phoebe wrote her. The "di . . ." in her note is "diary." Bart takes the diary from Tessa.

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

ESCAPE.

Dr. Carson took a chair with an impatient reluctance. Steelman offered a cigaret and was refused. He took one himself, lit it, and blew out a long cloud of smoke. Then he began speaking.

"It was 10:30 when Miss Devlin and Walter went to your cottage last night to get you, Doctor."

"Yes?" with a slight rising inflection that added, But what of it?

The inspector studied the end of his cigaret carefully. "I'd like to know where you were during the early part of the night."

"I was out."

"Out where?"

"In the storm."

"Doing what?"

"Walking."

"Hardly the night for a stroll."

"No, but I wasn't strolling."

"I see. You mean, then, that you did have some—objective?"

"In a way. I couldn't stand the house any longer. I had to get out even if it were a hurricane. Sometimes pure physical exertion—numbs you."

"Did you go along the highway or into the woods?"

"Both, I suppose."

"You suppose. Don't you know where you went?"

"No. I wasn't paying any attention."

"Did you meet any one?"

"No. At least I don't think so. If I did, I didn't notice them."

"Did you by any chance walk along a little rutted road that comes into the highway just south of the Devlin house?"

"I may have."

"Try to be more sure than that, Doctor."

"Well, I'm sorry, but I was out for two hours on a lot of roads and in a lot of woods, and I wasn't keeping track of any of them. I had other things on my mind."

The inspector paused a moment. Then went on: "Was Thomas Devlin among those—other things?"

"Look here, Inspector, I know what you're getting at. I'm no fool. So why don't you come right out with it?"

"Very well, I will. Mr. Devlin, as you know, was discovered badly injured in his wrecked car off a little side road that leads into the highway just south of the Devlin house. It may have been an accident—and it may not. In any case, I should be interested to know how you account for something which I found on the floor of the car beside his unconscious body."

The inspector fumbled in a side pocket, drew something out, and laid it on the table between them. Bart Carson bent over it.

"Do you know anything about that, Mr. Carson?"

"No."

"Do you know how it got in Mr. Devlin's car?"

"No."

Carson rose, a strange expression on his face, a sudden tensing in his manner.

"Sit down, Doctor."

"I've told you all I know. I can't tell you something I don't know, can I?"

"No, but perhaps if I were to take you to headquarters with me you might be able to recall things more clearly."

"Are you arresting me?"

"I didn't say that."

"But I'm asking you."

"I can—detain you, of course."

The doctor paused. He had taken a few steps backward. "On what charge?"

"There are several I think I might be able to scrape up. Material witness is perhaps the mildest."

"And how long would I be detained?"

"That would depend entirely on you, Doctor."

"I see."

He came back to the table. The inspector rose and the two men faced each other for a moment.

And then it came—that swift, hard blow, right on the point of the chin, expert and sudden. So sudden that even a seasoned veteran like Inspector Steelman was caught unawares.

There wasn't even a moment of startled surprise before he toppled over. But before he had crumpled completely into a huddle at the foot of the desk Dr. Carson was gone, thru the French doors, quietly, softly, quickly.

He didn't take time even to snatch up the sodden handkerchief there on the table. Plain white, and sewed to its hem one of those little blue name tapes used widely in institutions with large laundry jobs.

And the blue woven letters spelled out B. Carson.

* *

Kate McLaughlin told them all she knew and wondered if she were doing the right thing.

Yes, Dr. Carson had come back to the cottage in the early dawn. No, he hadn't stayed. Just a few moments. He'd asked her for all the money she had with her, three thousand odd dollars she had drawn from the bank the day before for expenses incidental to the funeral of Phoebe Carson. And then he had gone. No, she didn't know where. He hadn't said.

The night shift station agent helped a little. Yes, he was pretty sure it must have been him, this young doctor fellow they were looking for. There'd been four passengers for the 5:09 into town and the police description fitted one of them O. K. He'd just barely caught the train, so the agent had noticed him particularly.

"He had all of an hour's start on us." Steelman said and rubbed an aching jaw ruefully. "I was out that long."

Nor did he have any better luck with the trail of Jayson Plaice. The storm had swallowed him as completely as the city had swallowed Bart Carson, and by 12 noon the newspapers were blazing the double disappearance on their front pages.

* *

But Dr. Bart Carson had little concern with the immediacy of headlines or things that had happened yesterday or the day before. In the safe anonymity of a bedroom of one of the innumerable third rate hotels of the midtown district he was reading, had been reading for hours. He had come there in the early morning and had registered under the first innocuous name that had come into his head—Frank Packard.

And as he read, the cramped walls of the dingy little room receded, were pushed back, and a past that lay more than 20 years behind flowed over him, engulfed him in its detail so vividly recreated in the little red leather book that Tessa Devlin had given him in the early hours of the dawn.

The din of the city dissolved into the quiet silence of northern woods peopled only by poor, ragged Indians, and a man and woman caught in the shining exaltation of brotherhood and service.

'. . . Burying ourselves in the wilderness,' our friends back in the States call it. If we are buried we must be corpses. But if we are corpses we must be the most astonishing ones in history. Today Elisabeth and I organized a group of Indian women into a mothers' club to learn the elements of child hygiene, rode 10 miles and brought back a man with a broken leg on a litter improvised from canvas and tree boughs, set the fracture, delivered a baby, held open air chapel services, did all our own housekeeping, tried to keep in some kind of quarantine two families with the measles, and helped mix cement and build frames for the dispensary. What corpses! Tomorrow we must . . .

His eyes devoured the fine script. He turned a page, read on.

. . . We are the only white people in the settlement. There are about 20 huts where the Indians live. Chacautomi is 200 miles to the south, the only town in the district, but it is still 300 miles from a railroad. Occasionally we have a visitor, a trapper or miner going north into the mining region. But not many. Most of the big gold strikes have been made along the Big Thunder river to the east. Our own modest little Wanataskee doesn't seem to be as popular, altho once in a long while a prospector will come thru and stop off at Wanataskee Landing. That's what we have christened our station. Three prospectors came thru last week. Husky, bearded fellows, pressing north to work claims they had located last spring. They spent the night here and went on in the morning. Devlin, Plaice, and Carson, if I remember the names correctly. It is so long—four months now—since we have heard anything but Indian names that white men's names sound rough on the ear.

Husband Who Fails Family Needs a Lesson

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"About a year ago my brother got a job in a defense factory in a nearby city where he is earning good money. Three months ago he met a divorced woman in his factory and he is now spending all of his spare time and his money on her, neglecting his wife and two children so much that his wife has now got to go to work herself and leave the children with her mother during the daytime. She refuses to borrow any more money from me.

"I have spoken to my brother about his wife's financial condition but he does not seem to be the least bit interested. The woman he is interested in comes from a wild family, I'm told on good authority, all of them being separated from their mates. Her former husband is now happily married, showing that he was justified in getting the divorce, altho she would like my brother to believe otherwise.

"My sister-in-law is very good looking and a kindly, tolerant woman, and what her husband can gain by chasing after a divorcée of this one's reputation is more than I can figure out. Can you suggest a way to break up this unfortunate affair for the children's sake? He was always a good guy before he got into her clutches. BEWILDERED."

Have you tried on the woman threats that she'll lose her job? They might work on the man, too, if you can make them appear sincere enough. The neglected wife could haul the man into court for nonsupport of the children, but she probably would be loath to do that for the sake of the youngsters.

When men fall for that type of woman, they're extremely hard to handle. Sometimes it's better to go after the woman with all the lack of gallantry and chivalry you can muster. Threaten to expose something in her past, which obviously is there from the reports. That money your sister-in-law won't borrow might be used in detective work on digging up something on the woman. You, as the man's brother, might well put the fear of the gods in her and we don't know why as brother to brother you couldn't take your foolish kin into a field and teach him a lesson thru a couple of good lefts to the jaw. Not pretty advice, true, but his is not pretty behavior and if it saves the home for the youngsters, that's something.

Add broth and return to oven for 20 minutes, baking at 325 degrees. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and cheese mixed together and return to oven to melt cheese and brown. Meanwhile make sauce by cooking tomatoes, onion, parsley, bay leaf, garlic, peppercorns, salt, and sugar together for about 20 minutes. Rub thru sieve. White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

State Street Stores Closed Today.

'Twas the day after Christmas
When all thru the store
Not a creature was stirring
Not even the floor—
Walker quite weary of saying,
"Yes, Madam
This year we're out
But last year we had 'em."
The garments were hung
In the stockroom with care
Glad that St. Nicholas
Would not be there.
The salesgirls were nestled
All snug in their beds
While visions of bonuses
Danced thru their heads.
And some in their kerchiefs
And some in their caps
Had just settled down
For their long winter naps
When out on the street
There arose such a clatter
They sprang from their beds
To see what was the matter—
Tore open the shutters
And peered thru the crack:
'Twas merely the customers
Bringing things back!

War Orphans.

"It is just a year ago if you remember," writes Dorothy Eagles, "that thru the kind efforts of Miss Billings we rescued the forlorn, starved dog brought to your attention at the Rock Island 91st street station. I am now coming to you with a plea to help us if possible place our 'war orphans' like the beautiful pointer which, thru his family's patriotism, is now homeless. The woman who brought him sat an hour before she could leave. Two of her sons have spent two years in service, the third is leaving this week, the father enlisted, and the mother has gone to work in a war plant. Couldn't we make the holidays happier for these and other boys who are waiting word that we have found homes for their devoted dogs?"

Pronouns.

"If you want a couple of real words with five pronouns hidden in them and containing only five letters, you might do worse than consider the following: Hires [or heirs or shire] contains I, he, his, her, and she. Their [itself a pronoun] also contains I, he, it, and her."—Dorothy D. Jochim.

Steno Stint.

"Take an interest in typing properly in the matter of rhythm. The typist who works fastest and most accurately, appreciates the value of rhythm and continuity in typing—even to the point of slowing down to a natural continuous rate of speed. . . . Write evenly, giving each letter or character its proper amount of time and thought. . . . Familiarize yourself with your natural speed. In other words, type as fast as you can accurately, and never faster."—Albert Tangora.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

A player who voluntarily enters the bidding assumes a certain responsibility. He has made a tacit statement, not only about his holding but about his future intentions. Let us make this point clear by discussing an actual deal.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 diamond	1 heart
1 spade	Pass	2 diamonds	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

South did not do well at his two diamond doubled contract. In fact, he went down three tricks for an 800 point penalty. West opened the heart king and on sight of the dummy promptly shifted to the diamond king. The defenders avoided leading spades and therefore declarer, in addition to losing three diamonds and four hearts, eventually had to concede a spade trick to East's king.

North's bidding here was nothing if not inconsistent. He had voluntarily entered the auction over West's one heart with the free bid of one spade, but later, over his own partner's rebid of two diamonds, had "backed out," leaving partner to his fate. It is this sort of "in and out bidding" which destroys partnership coöperation and confidence. North's first error, of course, was in making any free bid on a holding of two queens. But having made that error it was nothing short of criminal to pass the double of two diamonds. At that contract North's hand did not figure to be worth a single trick, whereas at spades North could count on taking several trump tricks, at least. South had not denied spade support by failing to raise; he had merely announced a good diamond suit and the inability to supply strong spade support. Thus North had no great reason to fear that a two spade bid would merely be making a bad matter worse. After the debacle he explained that he had been afraid of finding a singleton spade or void in South's hand, but this was a silly alibi. North knew that he himself had a singleton diamond, whereas South's spade holding, from North's point of view, was an unknown factor.

South might have rescued himself by bidding two spades, but how was he to know that North was totally unprepared for diamonds and that he had a six card spade suit? South felt that on the score a two diamond doubled contract might give him a game, and he cannot be blamed for trusting his partner and sticking to his guns. The fault was at least 98 per cent North's.

Good Morning!

It's always fair weather [no matter how foul!] when those blithe spirits, the Hope, the Crosby, and the Lamour, get together.

They've been road ["Road to Zanzibar," "Road to Singapore"] companions for some time now to the delight of the nation. Since "Road to Morocco" is quite as wacky and spontaneous as the other two opuses, it no doubt will be an all out click with their respective admirers.

This is one of those pieces in which Messrs. Crosby and Hope step out of character whenever the impulse moves them and take the audience into their confidence. This is always fun, as they do it.

We meet the twain aboard a raft, hopefully awaiting rescue. . . . We accompany them, after their happy landing, on marvelous adventures in Morocco, where both men fall for the same siren [guess who!], and we leave them homeward bound with the lady of their hearts finally committed to be Mrs. ——? [I must leave SOMETHING for the picture to spring on you!]

It's all very roguish and rakish and tuneful and gorgeous—in an overdone sort of way. . . . Has a lot of really funny lines and some music that you'll go for. Just the sort of good relaxing treatment one should take during the holidays.

See you tomorrow.

Bud and Lou Top List of Film Star Earnings in 1942

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 25 (AP).—Those zanies from the stage, Bud Abbott and Lou Costello—who prove, if anything, that vaudeville may be dead but is an exceedingly healthy ghost—are the top money making movie stars of 1942.

The Motion Picture Herald's annual poll of film exhibitors, to be announced in tomorrow's edition of the trade journal, puts them at the top of the big 10 in an unprecedented rise from nowhere two years ago.

Mickey Rooney, No. 1 for three years, drops to fourth behind Clark Gable, now a lieutenant in the army air forces, and Gary Cooper.

The publication calls Gable the "all-time, all-event champion of the marquee." He has been second five times in the polls 11 years and has been in the Big Ten every year. Cooper, who was tenth in 1936 and ninth in 1937, then vanished from the list, returned in seventh place last year.

Bob Hope, James Cagney, Gene Autry, Betty Grable, Greer Garson, and Spencer Tracy fill out the Big Ten, in that order. The next 15, in order, are Dorothy Lamour, Bing Crosby, Tyrone Power, Walter Pidgeon, Bette Davis, Ann Sheridan, Errol Flynn, Wallace Beery, Judy Garland, Red Skelton, John Payne, Rita Hayworth, Lana Turner, Cary Grant, and Humphrey Bogart.

Autry, also in the air forces, for the sixth time led the western money makers by a wide margin.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 25.—There have been more stories about Cary Grant's plans than there are legs on a centipede. Well, for your information, Cary will go right on acting. He's signed a new contract at RKO to do one picture a year for five years. After Jan. 1 he'll go out on a war bond selling tour and he may, because the script is so enticing, do "Claudia" for Twentieth Century. . . . Leo McCarey, whose "Once Upon a Honeymoon" is cleaning up, is preparing Nancy Hale's story of "The Prodigal Woman." No, it's for neither Ginger Rogers nor Rosalind Russell. . . . With Twentieth Century set to make "The Grand Street Boys," Monogram has announced a picture with the same title for the Dead End Kids.

Cary Grant.

I'm Asking.

I've been wondering why Mickey Rooney, with all his talents—which are great—hasn't done more entertaining at army camps. Any one who can do such a variety of things as Mickey and who's able to lift the morale of thousands is invaluable. You only have to watch the faces of the men being entertained to realize its importance and know the great good Rooney could do. . . . Leon Erroll's autoblography, "Two Score," will be out next spring. I hope Leon includes his visit to England during prohibition days when he took along cases of Scotch and explained to their customs men that their liquor had no kick. . . . Twins are in vogue again. Arthur Freed has signed the McNab sisters for his "Girl Crazy."

You Figure It Out.

Now that the schedule at Columbia, which was so disrupted by the enlistment of Melvyn Douglas and the cancellation of "Sahara" is straightened out, Michelle Morgan will star in "Appointment in Berlin," while Merle Oberon and Brian Aherne will do "Attack by Night," which formerly was titled "The Commandos." Sen. "Happy" Chandler forgot to bring along those hickory smoked hams, so Daughter Mimi has sent home to Kentucky for one of them to keep Pappy happy. . . . Barbara Stanwyck was asked what she'd like to do if she stopped acting. "Nothing," said she. "I hope they'll let me keep going until I'm so old they have to take me out and shoot me." . . . Jack Moffett is having himself a time going thru everything Jack London ever wrote to get a good story of his life.

Tattle Tales.

A bunch of actors sitting around chatting were discussing this and that when Joan Fontaine's name came up. One well known actor told me she kept killing his points in a scene by long pauses. He couldn't keep from showing his resentment, so when she said, "Have you been in the theater long?" he replied, "Yes, I was born in it. I understand you were born in Japan and if you throw me in this next scene you can return there." From then on she was angelic. . . . Claire Trevor does a cute stunt at camp shows—asks a private to come up on the stage and play Romeo to her Juliet in the balcony scene. She knows the words, but her Romeo reads from a book, while his companions hoot and howl.

Sounds Refreshing.

Claire Boothe's 18 year old daughter from Leland Stanford is visiting her and while here is having her portrait painted by Paul Clemens. She's an old fashioned girl, doesn't smoke. And if she keeps up that record until she's 21 she'll get a $5,000 check from mamma. Recently she came home early from one of those debutante parties and Claire said, "Weren't you having a good time?" "O, yes," she replied, "but I figured that if anything exciting was going to happen it would before midnight. Nothing did—so why lose sleep?" . . . Iris Bynum, Miss Texas of 1940, and the future Mrs. Bill Morrow—signed a contract with Howard Hughes for pictures.

Old Friends.

Charlotte Greenwood and Martin Broone's 18th wedding anniversary brought out old friends—Mrs. Tommy Mejghan, who now lives in Beverly, and Edgar Selwyn, who tells me Ruthie's in Palm Beach trying to get Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek's permission to do her life's story. One of the guests said, "If Merle Oberon plays her life, I'll give up." Edgar popped up with, "So will the general." The Irving Cummings were there—Irving pretty proud that he had foresight to buy a ranch 10 years ago, which is paying dividends of 10 per cent. When a guest was given a glass of apple juice, which he thought was a cocktail and took a swig of it, he yelled, "Gosh, I've been poisoned!" . . . "Salute to the Marines" took so long to make that Wallace Beery, who just finished it, said, "It's the toughest job I've ever done, and if they'd continued longer, I'd have looked like a veteran of the civil war."

Common Sense Needed in Wise Child Training

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Here," said a friend of mine, "is something you'll like," and she handed me a clipping.

It was a small cartoon showing two little girls very busy with brush and dust pan, cleaning up, one would gather, their own dirt and disorder. And one is saying to the other,

"When mother stops using child training on us, I know it's time to be good!"

I did like it and couldn't help smiling. But aren't children clever. We don't fool them very much. And you could just imagine this little Betsy and Barbara going on and on in their own sweet way, while mother restrained and restrained herself in all of her human, common sense impulses, using what she thought was ultramodern psychology.

She probably went mentally pussyfooting around, afraid to say a direct "do" or "don't," dreading that she might set up a "frustration." You could see the mother of Betsy and Barbara, painfully conscientious, and trusting completely to the printed page, bending over backward so far that she lost completely a working set of values. Then when the strain became too great, you could see the little girls' mother pretty nearly having a tantrum, putting her foot down and making herself very plainly understood, saying:

"I am not going to clear up all this mess! I told you you could cut paper dolls and model with clay in the living room to be near the fire, and have your apples and cookies there, too. But I did not tell you you could leave everything all over the place, and I do not intend to clean up after you, and I want this room in order at once, and before daddy gets home. I have spoken three times nicely and that's enough."

So mother stopped using child training and they "got good" right away!

Of course we can see, if we must take a good joke seriously, that the trouble with the little girls' mother was that she was slightly mixed. She had heard and read so much without digesting it that she got all tangled up in directions about what to do, without understanding the reasons, which means the well-springs of human action.

She thought that child training meant throwing good common sense out of the window. She thought [subconsciously] that children were not people, but a special species. She thought she had always to don a pair of elegant mental kid gloves whenever she approached the children. And whenever this unnatural restraint got too great for her she burst her bonds and laid down the law in ordinary fashion, or administered an angry spanking. Her children often saw the signs, and immediately began to watch their step, the little rascals!

Child training is, after all, a very human business, requiring great gobs of common sense, lots of love, and patience, sane judgment, the ability to be companionable and jolly, plus a lively sense of humor.

Cut in Museum and Park Crowds Laid to Rationing

Gasoline rationing was reported to be the chief cause of a drop in attendance yesterday at the city's museums, parks, and other places of interest. Approximately 600 persons visited the Art institute and 100 of these viewed the Dutch Masters' exhibition now featured there. Almost 5,000 persons, many of whom were service men, visited the Garfield park conservatory, where there is a special display of tropical winter flowers.

The Housewife

One of the most convenient gadgets for a man in the services, or for any man who is fastidious about keeping his trousers in press is a small electric presser. Just plug it in on either A. C. or D. C. current. It has two metal leaves which open like a book, then close tightly on the seam to be pressed. The heat does the rest. No ironing board to set up, no iron to use. This device works quickly and efficiently and it costs only $1.95.

DE PAUL SEEKS 7TH IN ROW IN TOLEDO TONIGHT

Great Lakes Plays at Butler.

College Basketball

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.
Utah, 55; Montana, 51.
TONIGHT'S GAMES.
De Paul at Toledo.
Great Lakes at Butler.
Oklahoma at Bradley.
Valparaiso at Evansville.
Kansas vs. St. Bonaventure in Buffalo.
Tennessee vs. St. John's in New York.
Oregon State vs. C. C. N. Y. in New York.
Southern California vs. Canisius in Buffalo.

Toledo, O., Dec. 25 [Special].—De Paul university's basketball team, unbeaten in six games, including several against ranking quintets in intercollegiate competition, tomorrow will try to make the University of Toledo victim No. 7.

The contest will be the first of a three game road trip for the Blue Demons, and—in the opinion of Coach Ray Meyer—one of the toughest assignments of their 22 game schedule. After tomorrow's contest, De Paul will go to Pittsburgh where it will play Duquesne Monday night.

Leading the Demons will be their high scoring center, George Mikan, a bespectacled sophomore who is 6 feet 8 inches tall. He is expected to set the scoring pace for De Paul. Mikan, who has scored 72 points to compile one of the highest collegiate records of the young season, probably will be assisted by Guard Dick Starzyk, who has made 33 points, and Forward Jimmy Cominsky, said to be one of the most accurate shots in midwestern basketball, who has collected 43.

Toledo will be without the services of Bob Gerber, 6 foot 4 inch forward who scored 532 points to tie Price Brookfield of West Texas State for the honor of high collegiate scorer of last season. However, the Rockets will average something over 6 feet, and with the exception of the center position, will present a thoroly experienced team.

Toledo will play in Chicago on Jan. 28, when it meets Coach John Connelly's Loyola university quintet.

GREAT LAKES FACES BUTLER.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 25 [Special].—It will be homecoming here tomorrow night when the Great Lakes basketball team opposes Butler, and the Bulldogs hope the honored guests won't forget their manners. They have reference to Lt. Paul Hinkle, former Butler athletic director who now coaches the Bluejackets, and Bob Dietz and Wilbur Schumacher, who used to play their basketball for the Bulldogs before joining the Sailor squad.

The Bulldogs have spent most of their time the last week attempting to devise a defense to stop the high-scoring tactics of the Great Lakes team that has won eight of its nine starts this season, losing only to Illinois' Big Ten champions last week in Chicago. The Sailors' last game saw a new scoring record for Great Lakes basketball teams set as the Bluejackets scored 82 points in defeating Fort Sheridan last Wednesday night.

BRADLEY PLAYS OKLAHOMA.

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 25 [Special].—Bradley will carry a .500 percentage into its third basketball game of the season here tomorrow night against the University of Oklahoma.

The Bradley five defeated Augustana in its first game, 55 to 47, as Ray Ramsey poured in 23 points, and then lost to Drake, 31 to 30.

The Big Six representatives, coached by Bruce Drake, a former Sooner star, fared satisfactorily on the early part of their eastern trip, but on the way home have been unable to win in midwest competition, losing to Wisconsin and Camp Grant. Their attack is hinged around the pivot play of Gerald Tucker.

SHEBOYGAN PROS BEAT CHICAGO, 55-46; TAKE LEAD

Sheboygan, Wis., Dec. 25 [Special].—The Sheboygan Redskins whipped the Chicago Studebakers, 55 to 46, tonight, to take possession of first place in the National Basketball league.

Sheboygan took an 18 to 11 lead in the first quarter and boosted it to 26 to 17 at the half. Chicago narrowed the margin in the third period with Sonny Boswell scoring eight points to help bring his team within three points of a tie. The quarter ended 36 to 33 in favor of the Redskins but soon after the start of the final Sheboygan forged ahead with Ed Dancker making six successive points.

During the final quarter both Mike Novak and Dancker went out on fouls. A crowd of 3,000 witnessed the game. Lineup:

NORTH AND SOUTH BATTLE TODAY IN FIFTH OF SERIES

Four Big Nine Players in Starting Lineup.

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 25 [Special].—The North vs. South football game, one of the new fixtures on the list of postseason contests, finally has reached maturity. Tomorrow's meeting, involving the pick of college talent from north of the Mason-Dixon line on the one hand and from south of the line on the other, will be the fifth in the series and the coaches believe they have assembled groups of warriors worthy of battling for the honors of their respective sections.

To add to the interest, each side has won two of the preceding games.

Allyn McKeen of Mississippi State is the head man of the Dixie coaching staff, while the lads from the north will be in charge of Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern, as usual.

Big Nine Stars to Start.

South Proud of Backs.

The Gray back field, truly an all-star array, will read as follows at the kickoff: Monk McDonald, Tulane, quarter back; Monk Gafford, Auburn, left half; Joe Muha, V. M. I., right half, and Blondy Black, Mississippi State, full back.

After a week of practice, there was plenty of confidence in each camp today.

Muha is captain and Garrard Ramsey of William and Mary is alternate captain of the Rebel squad. Vickroy and Peelish will be the Blue generals.

DOCTOR ORDERS HUTSON TO MISS PRO BOWL GAME

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 25 (AP).—Don Hutson, Green Bay Packer end, will not be with the National League All-Stars Sunday when they meet the champion Washington Redskins in Shibe park, it was announced today.

Hutson's phyaician telegraphed that because of chest injuries and a severe cold he will not permit Hutson to travel. Altho Hutson also sent a telegram saying he still was hopeful of playing if he could prevail on the doctor to change his mind, the All-Stars are not expecting him.

Meanwhile Coach Ray Flaherty put the Redskins thru a speedy practice session today and expressed concern over the boys' mental attitude.

"This is in the nature of an anti-climax after we upset the Chicago Bears for the league title," he said.

Proceeds of the game will go to the United Seamen's service.

Boxer Drops Guard; Fight Ends Nine Seconds Later

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 25 (AP).—Wickey Harkins of Philadelphia, leading Johnny Walker, also of Philadelphia, on points in the seventh round of their fight at the Olympia tonight, backed out of a clinch with his guard down—and the fight ended nine seconds later. Walker banged Harkins with a right to the ear and Wickey went down for a nine count. As the fighter wabbled to his feet the referee awarded Walker a technical knockout.

Again Sonja Flies Into Chicago's Heart

ADAMS BRINGS IN 3 WINNERS; TOTAL FOR YEAR IS 241

Miami, Fla., Dec. 25 (AP).—Jockey Champion Johnny Adams rode a triple today as a Christmas crowd of 7,114 gave Tropical Park's race meeting new hope of financial success.

The holiday throng poured $252,376 into the pari-mutuel windows, just $6,454 less than the take last Christmas day.

Adams began his winning streak today by bringing home Ask Aunt Ada in the six furlong opener in 1:12 to pay $7.40 for $2.

He continued his triumphs astride the 3 to 1 choice, Talked About, which finished the mile and sixteenth third race in 1:46 3/5, four lengths ahead of the field.

He Wins 241 During Year.

Adams' victory in the featured mile and 70 yard Christmas handicap on J. B. Partridge's Minee-Mo, brought his total for the year to 241 winners, which assured him his second straight national title.

Minee-Mo, the favorite, galloped home in 1:41 1/5, to equal the track record for the distance, paying $5.70 for $2.

Brisk betting reopened the mezzanine mutuel windows, which had been closed yesterday in a retrenchment effort.

The six furlong fourth race brought the first disqualification of the current meeting, when Selmalad, under Bill Thompson, carried Roman Flag wide thru the stretch, and was therefore placed second, altho he came home first in 1:11 3/5. Roman Flag, given first place, paid $7.30 for $2.

Jockey May Is Set Down.

Today also saw the first suspension of the Florida racing season when stewards ordered Jockey Tommy May set down for the balance of the meeting for rough riding astride High One, third horse in the first event.

Racing officials hope for another good day tomorrow to balance the low mutuel figures of the track's opening days. They see the next 10 days as deciding the wartime fate of racing in the state, even tho the better thoroughbreds are just getting into form for the opening of the more exclusive Hialeah Park on Jan. 13.

Capacity Throng Votes Sonja's New Ice Revue the Best Ever

BY EDWARD BURNS.

They welcomed Sonja Henie and her associates in Chicago Stadium last night—they welcomed her in larger numbers and more vociferously than ever before. They were hanging from the rafters after the world's largest rink had been filled from the golden ropes that enclosed the last seat in the alpine second gallery.

Impresarios always claim an ice show is "bigger and better" and, by whacky, this one really is. But why should we tell you, who'll be seeing one or more of the remaining 16 performances the "Hollywood Revue" is to give in its longest Chicago stand? Just the enthusiasm of an old ice fan who's been watching these productions for years and years, we guess.

She's a Hit, as Usual.

Miss Henie personally made six appearances and spent more than an hour on the ice. The fans couldn't make up their minds which they liked the best—old favorites like "Hula Fantasy," "The Swan," and "The Tango," or innovations like "Minstrel Memories" [in which the star impersonated the Belle of New Orleans], and her semi-familiar interpretations. So they just made a big fuss over all six of her appearances.

This largest and most enthusiastic of all opening night crowds in the spectacular history of ice shows was in a glowing holiday mood when it arrived and, from the opening strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" at 8:30 o'clock until the finale 2½ hours later, everybody had just one swell time, including the performers. Sonja, as ever, is the star, but more graciously than ever before she shared honors with her flashing supporting cast, a cast that unquestionably presents more variety of skating talent and colorful charm than any of the other Henie shows—which, you'll agree, is no faint praise.

Crowd Cheers from Start.

The capacity turnout gave the opening number a welcome, thunderous enough to gratify many a headliner—and it was only the beginning, not of the show but of the crowd reaction.

First of the principals to receive Chicago's greeting last night were the Caley sisters, a mighty pretty pair of girls from up Toronto way. All dressed up in pretty green outfits, they went thru a precision routine so well that the customers didn't want 'em to leave so soon.

There was another number before the Henie fans got their first glimpse of the little star. Fritz Dietl, well known to Chicagoans, made the first of several appearances, a stunt for the kids as well as the oldsters. Fritz was a big, awkward comedy ostrich.

Then came "To the Colors," gold and silver spectacle introducing Miss Henie and her two partners, James Hawley and Geary Steffan, two personable newcomers. The star made her first appearance in a glittering gold and silver airplane and her first skating was en solo. Then, a bit later in this introductory number, she appeared in a second costume and skated with Hawley and Steffan.

The crowd had its share of navy boosters, as James Kelly and John van Doren, two new comics, discovered in their routine, "Fleet's In." As a pair of acrobatic gobs, Jim and John stopped the show for a half dozen encores.

Freddy Bounces Again.

Freddy Trenkler, "the Bouncing Ball," didn't get on the ice until about 9:45 o'clock, but when he did the folks made him really work. Freddy has a lot of new stuff, and all the old tricks. You'll be happy to see him in the bouncing stuff in the first half and just as much as a perplexed rookie soldier in the evening's next to closing feature. John Flanagan is still another comic who clicked last night.

One of the many highlights in the second half of the bill was the performance of Peter Killam, listed as "A Gay Blade." He vied successfully in the matter of encores with some of the better known members of the cast.

If you remember the restricted type of program of the Henie shows of several years ago, you may gasp and say, "My, my, how times have changed" when you look upon "Speed and Leaps," a thriller by Leo Freisinger, the former Chicago Silver Skates star, James Caesar, Charles Hadlett, and George Caveny.

And another thing—we think you're going to like the costumes as well as any you've seen and we think you'll like the rink arrangement much better than previously. No high walls or trees to obstruct the vision. They even are peddling the snappiest souvenir program they've ever printed.

TROJANS WILL MEET CANISIUS QUINTET TONIGHT

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 25 (AP).—The University of Southern California basketball team, defeated this season only by De Paul of Chicago in a 49 to 47 thriller, will meet Canisius college here tomorrow night in the third game of the Trojans' eastern tour.

One Trojan who will not see action is Alex Hannum, freshman center, who was stricken with acute appendicitis and underwent an emergency operation last night. He was reported in good condition tonight.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 25 (AP).—The Bentley brothers, Max and Doug, fired in Chicago's two goals today as the Blackhawks and Montreal Canadiens tied, 2 to 2, in a National Hockey league game before a children's day crowd of 7,000 in the Montreal Forum. The game started slowly, but speeded up about midway of the second period when each team scored. They traded the last two goals in the 12th minute of the third period.

The tie, combined with Detroit's defeat by New York tonight, moved the Hawks into a third place tie with Detroit in the league standings. Each team has 21 points.

Max's goal and an assist he gained on Doug's goal increased his point total for the season to 27, which made him the No. 1 Hawk in scoring and moved him into a third place tie in the league with Billy Taylor and Lorne Carr of Toronto. Doug, with whom he had been tied going into today's game, now is second among the Hawks with 26 points.

Game Is Clean.

The teams put on a clean exhibition of hockey, with only three penalties handed out. All went to Chicago players.

It was not until eight minutes had elapsed in the second period that the Canadiens scored. Elmer Lach picked up a pass from Jack Portland after a scramble in front of the Hawks' net and rifled a 10 foot drive past Goalie Bert Gardiner.

Three minutes later Max Bentley and Tuten joined in restoring the deadlock. Tuten had the puck along the right hand boards and shot a quick pass to Bentley. Before Goalie Paul Bibeault could turn to face the new attack the puck was inside the cage.

At 11:16 of the third period the Bentley brothers and Bill Thoms put the Hawks in the lead. Doug was close in on the Canadiens' goal when he was given a pass by Brother Max and Bibeault was too slow in blocking the shot.

O'Connor Squares It.

The Canadiens again squared it, however, when Leo Lamoureaux, Joe Benoit, and Buddy O'Connor raced in with the tying goal 39 seconds later. Lamoureaux carried the puck to the center zone, passed it to Benoit and Benoit gave it to O'Connor inside the Chicago area. O'Connor circled around in front of Gardiner and took a backhand shot that sent the puck into the cage.

After the game the Hawks left for Detroit, where they meet the Red Wings Sunday night. They play their next home game on New Year's night with the New York Rangers as opposition.

RANGERS, 3; WINGS, 1

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 25 (AP).—The last place New York Rangers scored their first National Hockey league victory in nearly a month by defeating the Detroit Red Wings, 3 to 1, before 7,899 tonight. The defeat was Detroit's first on home ice in 10 games this season.

The Blue Shirts, without victory in half a dozen games, gained a first period lead by Angus Cameron's goal and then clinched the triumph with markers by Rookies Dudley [Red] Garrett and Vic Myles in the second period. Mud Bruneteau got Detroit's lone score 12 seconds from the end of the second period.

ROBINSON, LOUIS STAND ALONE IN BOXING RANKING

Ring Magazine Lists Best in All Divisions.

New York, Dec. 25 (AP).—Reviewing a fistic year that saw 50 per cent of America's fight clubs close their doors because of the war, the Ring magazine today announced its copyrighted rankings for 1942 and named Ray Robinson as its boxer of the year.

The fight game has sent more than 2,000 professionals and amateurs, including 23 past and four present world champions, into uniform, the publication pointed out in a copyrighted article accompanying its 18th annual rankings of the leaders in all eight divisions.

After naming Robinson, New York's undefeated slugger and so-called uncrowned welterweight champion, its fighter of the year, the magazine announced award of a special medal as boxing's most valuable man to Corp. Barney Ross, the former world welterweight, lightweight, and junior welterweight champion, for his heroism with the marines on Guadalcanal. Last week the Boxing Writers' association of New York named Barney boxing's man of the year.

War Affects All Rankings.

The Ring's rankings in all fistic divisions, which will be published in the magazine's February issue, were prefaced with the explanation that "the weight of the war was felt at every turn" in the ratings this time.

Champions Joe Louis, heavyweight; Gus Lesnevich, light heavy; Tony Zale, middleweight, and Freddy Cochrane, welterweight, are all in service.

Dipping into the ratings themselves, the Ring listed only two fighters—Joe Louis among the heavyweights and Robinson among the welterweights—worthy of being placed in a class alone at the head of their respective divisions.

Survey Large Field.

After looking over the records of 2,100 fighters for the year in the United States, Canada, England, Australia, and Central and South America, the following were rated as the top men in their divisions:

HEAVYWEIGHT—Joe Louis, Detroit.
LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT—Jimmy Bivins, Cleveland.
MIDDLEWEIGHT—Tony Zale, Chicago.
WELTERWEIGHT—Ray Robinson, New York.
LIGHTWEIGHT—Sammy Angott, Washington.
FEATHERWEIGHT—Willie Pep, Hartford, Conn.
BANTAMWEIGHT—Manuel Ortiz, Los Angeles, Cal.
FLYWEIGHT—Peter Kane, England.

Of these, only Louis, Zale, Pep, and Ortiz are regarded as champions, either completely or by one or another of boxing's ruling bodies. Bivins was placed over Titleholder Lesnevich, because he defeated Gus. Robinson was ranked at the top of the welterweights because he won all 14 of his starts this year, nine by knockouts.

Angott Is Still on Top.

Altho Angott has retired as lightweight champion, the Ring put him in front among the 135 pounders because his abdication did not occur until late in the season, and he should "be given full credit for his performances this year."

Another retirement noted was that of Heavyweight Bob Pastor. Altho he has withdrawn from competition, he was placed over Billy Conn in the No. 2 spot among the heavyweights because of the record of victories over such as Bivins, Lesnevich, and Lem Franklin he piled up while Billy, in the army now, was unable to box.

Following are the rankings in order, of the leaders in all divisions:

GROUP 1—Joe Louis.

GROUP 3—Jimmy Bivins, Tami Mauriello, Turkey Thompson, Roscoe Toles, Pat Valentino.

DARTMOUTH FIVE TO PLAY 3 FOES ON MIDWEST TRIP

Hanover, N. H., Dec. 25 [Special].—The Dartmouth basketball team will head west during the Christmas recess to meet three strong foes preparatory to the campaign for its sixth straight Eastern Intercollegiate league title.

The Big Green will open its trip against Minnesota in Minneapolis on Jan. 6, and then will move on to face Toledo at Toledo on Jan. 9, and Wayne at Detroit on Jan. 11. Returning east, they will oppose Seton Hall at South Orange, N. J., on Jan. 13 before launching their league schedule against Yale in New Haven.

Dartmouth's 1943 scoring power will rest largely on the shoulders of two veteran forwards—George Munroe of Joliet, Ill., and Bob Myers of Wyoming. O. Munroe led the Eastern league in scoring last year, netting 175 points in 12 games.

They'd Trade Them All for a Victory Friday

Members of the University of Georgia football team, which will meet U. C. L. A. in the Rose bowl New Year's day, gather around a Christmas tree in Pasadena to receive gifts from Santa Claus (O. B. Keeler, Atlanta sports writer), while Miss Mildred Miller, Tournament of Roses queen, looks on. The players are (left to right): George Poschner, pass-catching end; Frankie Sinkwich, generally rated the nation's No. 1 back; Lamar Davis, half back, and Jim Todd, full back. CHRISTMAS JUST DAY OF TOIL FOR GEORGIA SQUAD

Sinkwich Stays in Bed with Ankle Injuries.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 25 (AP).—Coach Wallace Butts drove the Georgia football team thru another long practice today, devoting the first half of the workout to defense against U. C. L. A. plays and the rest to brushing up the Bulldog attack.

The second string set up the Bruin QT formation for the regulars to charge against and ran numerous passes in the manner of Bob Waterfield, U. C. L. A.'s ace ball handler. The entire squad was in sweat clothes and heavy equipment was left in the locker room.

Frank Sinkwich, leading ground gainer of the nation this year, was not in uniform. He got up for a while today for a team Christmas party, but was careful to rest the sprains of his ankles. Butts said Sinkwich might be able to return to practice by next Tuesday, but if so, he would have to keep off his feet most of the time until then.

Charlie Trippi, Sinkwich's sophomore understudy, did most of the passing in today's workout. Lamar Davis, speedy half back, worked overtime returning punts from the safety position.

The Georgia squad gathered around a Christmas tree in its hotel this morning, exchanged presents and delayed dinner until after the workout. Only one practice will be held tomorrow, Butts said. It will be extensive.

FIRST TECH SQUAD LEAVES.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 25 (AP).—Headed by Coaches Bill Alexander and Bob Miller, the first section of Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets left today for the Cotton bowl game with the Texas Longhorns in Dallas.

A light workout will be given this group at Memphis before starting the last lap of the journey to Dallas, where they expect to arrive Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

The second group, headed by Charlie Griffin, manager of ticket sales, leaving here Sunday morning at 10:30, will go via New Orleans.

Coach Bobby Dodd and Dr. A. H. Armstrong, heading group three, will entrain tomorrow afternoon at 5:30 and will be routed via Memphis, where they will work out.

The first drill in Texas is set for Monday. There will be little scrimmaging in Dallas, but Coach Alexander is taking along some protective pads for the third stringers to use against the varsity.

TIDE TAKES DAY OFF.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Dec. 25 (AP).—Alabama took a day off from football today preparatory to departing early tomorrow for their Orange Bowl clash with Boston college in Miami.

With one exception, all of the 36 players to make the trip are in good condition. Leon Fichman, reserve tackle, is bothered by a sprained ankle that may keep him out of the clash.

Coach Frank Thomas held the final practice here yesterday morning and then dismissed the squad for a 2-day Christmas holiday.

The Tide squad will meet in Birmingham late tonight and leave for Miami at 2 a. m. tomorrow.

TULSA HOLDS PARTY.

Bay St. Louis, Miss., Dec. 25 (AP).—Christmas came to the University of Tulsa's football team here tonight as Sugar bowl and local Sideliner club members made the Oklahomans forget how far they are from home.

A. B. Nicholas, vice president of the Sugar Bowl committee, distributed gifts to all members of the Tulsa party.

All plans for the first of the week included emphasis on defense, Coach Henry Frnka indicated. Bog Catching and Pete Annex, acting in the positions of Bobby Cifers and Clyde Fuson of Tennessee, have dealt the varsity misery for two days as they used Vols' plays.

VOLS PICK UP SPEED.

Edgewater Park, Miss., Dec. 25 (AP).—The Tennessee Volunteers celebrated Christmas by taking the forenoon off but moved to the Gulf Coast Military academy for an afternoon workout that lasted more than two hours. It was the first full speed session in preparation for their New Year's game with Tulsa and one of the hardest of the season.

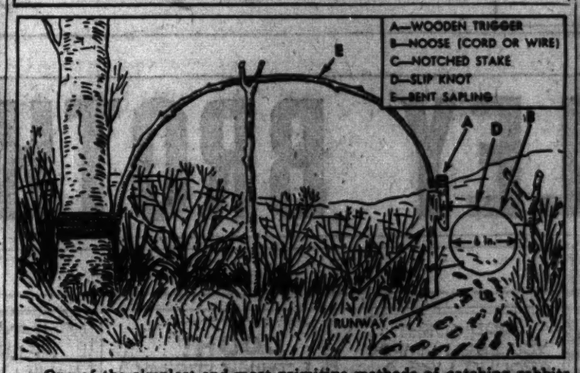
How to Make a Rabbit Snare



One of the simplest and most primitive methods of catching rabbits and other small game is this snare, set over a runway used by the animals which are sought. The snare can be constructed on the spot generally and may be built as described in the picture.

Records Set in American League Fall to 22 in '42

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The American league, for one reason or another, didn't go in heavily last season for record breaking. For two straight years the Will Harridge circuit had totaled 37 new or tied marks, but the 1942 endeavor on the diamond produced only 22 entries for the book.

The Yankees, who are old hands in the record art, figured in seven of them and the seven don't include the fact that they finally lost a world series. The National league Cards probably will claim that for their own ledger of outstanding jobs.

Naturally enough, the Yankees made some improvements on their huge home run totals which were given a solid foundation by the deeds of Babe Ruth and the late Lou Gehrig.

Yanks Set 4 for Both Leagues.

The Yanks were in on four marks that cover the National as well as their own league. One of these was seven double plays in one game. For 23 seasons they have been the top home run club. For 21 years they have hit 100 or more homers, 18 of these seasons being consecutive. For eight years now they have won 100 games or better and that's another mark for somebody to shoot at.

The White Sox broke into the record class by courtesy of the weather man. They were able to play only 148 of their 154 games, tying a low they set in 1938. As a result of their abbreviated schedule they made only 3,943 putouts, one less than the record low set by Washington way back in 1906.

Cramer Ties a Record.

Roger Cramer of the Tigers went from the dugout to the plate so many times that he finally tied a major league record. He was at bat more than 600 times, the record feature of this being that it made the eighth season in which he reached this total. The new records and ties follow:

Major League Records Broken.
Most double plays by club in a single game—New York, 7.
Most years leading league in home runs—New York, 23.
Most years, 100 or more home runs—New York, 21.
Most consecutive years, 100 or more home runs—New York, 18.
Most seasons without a no hit game [not consecutive]—20.
Most years leading target of pitchers—Frank Crosetti, 6.
Most years as manager—Connie Mack, 42.

Major League Records Tied.
Most years 600 or more times at bat—Roger Cramer, 8.
Most putouts in a game by a pitcher—Wilbur Butland, 5.
Most double plays at second base in a single game—Ray Mack, 5.
Most double plays at shortstop in a single game—Phillip Rizzuto, 5.
Seasons without a triple-play—6.

American League Records Broken.
Most assists by first baseman in a season—Rudy York, 146.
Fewest putouts by one club in a season—Chicago, 3,943.
Most years winning 100 or more games—New York, 8.
Most times finished in last place—Philadelphia, 13.

American League Records Tied.
Most runs, one game—Rudy York, 5.
Fewest times hitting into infield double plays, 150 or more games, season—Charles Keller, 5.
Fewest times club grounding into infield double play—Boston, 94.
Most double plays at first base in a game—Leslie Fleming, 5.
Most double plays in a single game at first base—John Hassett, 5.
Fewest games played by club in a season—Chicago, 145.

Yankees Win 58 at Home.

With their 103 victories for the year it is patent that the Yanks must have done pretty well for themselves both at home and on the road. On their own lot which they dearly love because so many of them have the range on that handy right field fence, they won 58 and lost only 19. The only thing even close to this was the Red Sox's home count of 53 victories against 24 losses. But on foreign fields the Red Sox weren't much better than a .500 aggregation. The club playing percentages follow:

STANDING OF CLUBS, SEASON 1942.

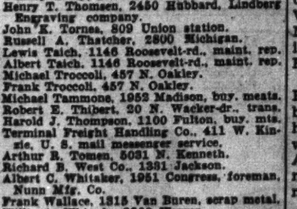
Truck Hits House



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

After hitting an auto, a truck crashed into a house at 1937 34th place.

Mrs. Edna Williams and her daughter returned to their residence at 1937 West 34th place yesterday after spending the previous evening with friends, to find that an unexpected caller had "dropped in" and was still there.

The caller was a truck, which had gone out of control after colliding with an automobile, then skidded across the curbing and crashed into the Williams' house. The hood and engine of the truck, which had been driven by Ed Dallga, 3327 Archer avenue, were still in the Williams' basement when the mother and daughter arrived home.

HOLIDAY DEATH TOLL 146, AGAINST 394 TOTAL IN 1941

Highway Tragedies Cut from 301 to 83.

Americans on the home front experienced a far safer Christmas than a year ago, principally because gasoline rationing and other transportation restrictions forced hundreds of thousands to spend the day at home.

The Associated Press total of violent deaths stood at 146 late yesterday, compared with 394 persons who lost their lives in highway and other accidents during the first wartime Christmas in 1941.

Highway accidents, which last year took 301 lives, accounted for only 83 up to a late hour yesterday.

Fatalities in Chicago.

In Chicago five persons were killed in automobile accidents.

Walter Giletowiz, 43, of 2707 North Karlov avenue, was killed when he was struck by an automobile driven by Sam Conetzkey, 24, of 4139 Ozark avenue, in Irving Park road near Ottawa avenue. Conetzkey was held by county highway police on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

An unidentified white man, about 50, was killed by a hit and run driver in a black sedan near the intersection of 123d and Halsted streets. The man, whose body is at a mortuary at 10821 South Michigan avenue, was 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed 135 pounds, and had gray hair and eyes. He wore a brown sweater, gray shirt, and a brown overcoat.

An unidentified man, about 55, was killed while crossing the street at 1425 North Halsted street. He was struck by a hit and run driver, then was hit again as he fell in front of a street car operated by William Elson, 1457 Byron street. The victim was about 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighed about 200 pounds.

John Hlybowicz, 55, of 1527 North Halsted street, was fatally injured when struck at Chicago and Milwaukee avenues by a car driven by Harry Franklin, 47, of 1110 Parkside avenue. He died in County hospital of a fractured skull.

Child Dashes to Death.

Robert Ruffulo, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ruffulo, 3748 Huron street, broke away from his parents as they stood on the curbing at Pulaski road and Huron street, ran into the street, and was killed by a car driven by Edward Novy, 2755 West 64th place, a shipping clerk. Novy was not held. The child's father is a platform worker employed by the Railway Express company.

Sam Panacopulus, 68, of 5949 Belle Plaine avenue, an employé of the city bureau of streets, died in Belmont hospital of injuries suffered Tuesday when struck by a car driven by Otto Andres, 52, of 5718 North Mobile avenue, at Lawrence and Milwaukee avenues.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 639 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 488 died in Chicago, where 19,260 were injured during the same period.

TOWN PRESIDENT AND THREE MORE KILLED BY FUMES

Bloomsburg, Pa., Dec. 25 (AP).—Four persons, including the president of Bloomsburg town council, died of gas fumes here today in two holiday tragedies.

Coroner Kenneth H. McHenry listed the victims as Clydie L. Ohl, Sr., 51, president of the council and a prominent businessman; his daughter, Dorothy Ruth, 23, and his father, Boyd T. Ohl, 83, and Mrs. Carl Kinney, 19 year old bride of six months.

Relatives arriving at the Ohl home for Christmas dinner found all three inside the locked house. The coroner said they died of coal gas from the furnace.

Mrs. Kinney, who with her husband, was found unconscious in their trailer home Christmas eve, died today in a hospital, where her husband remained a patient tonight. Coroner McHenry said they were overcome by fumes from an oil stove.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

TRACTION MESS (AGE 80 YEARS) MAY BE SOLVED

Regulatory Board Is Near Decision.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

It has been made clear by the five members of the Illinois Commerce commission that they are anxious to make their decision, as quickly as possible, on Chicago traction unification—an egg laid on their doorstep with the request for permission to hatch it.

The city's local transportation problem has been a center of controversy for 80 years. It has been marked by frequent crises. It is something that seemingly cannot be kept out of politics, or the thoughts of harassed street car and elevated riders.

Present Crisis Most Acute.

Today's crisis is one of the most acute. The merger, if approved by the commission and carried thru, would be the most drastic rearrangement of the traction plant in 35 years, and it would be made at a time when the riders are suffering more keenly from its inadequacies than at any other period within the memory of transit experts. These are among the things the commission was asked to do:

1. To decide that the consolidation as outlined is in the public interest.

2. To say that the proposed capitalization of 179 million dollars, and the issuance of bonds and stocks for that amount to acquire the surface and elevated properties are reasonable and proper.

3. To turn over its own regulatory powers to a three man commission appointed by the mayor of Chicago.

4. To express the opinion that the promised betterments of service can be made [at a cost of 102 millions in eight years] and at a "reasonable rate of fare."

Difficult Job for Commission.

These are big orders. At best, the evidence on some of the factors entering into them are uncertain, and the fact that the city and the federal District court are willing to see the projected plan go thru [the city has an ordinance approving it and the court has jurisdiction because all the properties involved are in receivership] has not satisfied the commission.

State law requires the commission to investigate thru its own staff experts before reaching a decision on any issuance of stock by an Illinois utility. The members are and have been aware of their responsibilities. In July, they refused to make an immediate decision on evidence that had been produced before other bodies. John D. Biggs, chairman, explained:

"This is the responsible body. We could not shift our duties to any other group. We are required to protect the riding public and the investors. To fail to make a thoro investigation would be to shirk those duties.

Commission Demands Real Evidence.

"Three of us on this commission are lawyers, and we must have evidence we can trust before we decide. When the evidence is in, it won't take long to ponder it."

The commission was unmoved when Mayor Kelly and aldermen accused its members of stalling for political reasons. It appointed Fred Kleinman, its own chief of fianance and accounts, and Leslie Salter as examiners to take testimony. They have taken 4,000 typewritten pages of it at something like 40 sessions of the hearing.

Presenting the evidence were William J. Friedman and Thomas L. Marshall, attorneys appointed by the District court to represent the new company. Both have had years of experience with traction matters. Aiding them, as representatives of investing groups, have been three other attorneys: William P. Sidley, Henry F. Tenney, and Francis X. Busch.

Evidence in Two Classes.

The evidence has fallen generally into two classifications: That which is exact and demonstrable from experience and that which is speculative and deductive. On neither score have the proponents, apparently, satisfied the examiners.

In the first division lies the matter of valuation. Kleinman has repeatedly asserted that there is no evidence to show the two properties are worth 179 millions. He has found that such items as $800 worth of horses are still on the books of the surface lines [this has been explained away as a bookkeeping error]; that a piece of real estate valued at more than $20,000 in one account and at $36,000 plus in another actually cost $4,000, and that an item of $2.36 was credited to an account that did not exist.

"Every time you bring me a set of figures, I find an error or two," he said at a recent session.

Actual Value Big Issue.

Kleinman and Salter have declared no valuation in excess of 80 millions has been established. The attorneys have declined to stipulate that value in excess of this figure will have to be approved later, contending that permission to issue 80 millions of bonds should be granted now and that the issuance of stock might be discussed later, without any prejudice to their case.

Admittedly the bookkeeping system of the surface lines is antiquated. It carries street cars that are decades old at the original cost, the theory being that they are worth that much until replaced. The lines have at least seven cars that date back to 1903.

Present earnings of the companies are easy enough to establish. The surface lines have been able all thru the receivership to pay interest on their first mortgage bonds—$3,600,000 a year—but these bonds are in default as to principal since 1927.

The surface lines also have been able to build up a reserve depreciation and renewal fund of 22 million dollars. The elevated situation is less favorable; for many years the "L" failed to earn operating expenses, and this year will have little more than that.

Vexing to both systems has been the wage increase awarded to the surface lines' union labor—now under review by the war labor board. The basic raise was 9 cents an hour, and the "L" workers are demanding even more. Estimates of what this raise on an allover basis would mean to a combined traction system vary from $4,500,000 to 7 millions a year and tend to discount rosy pictures of earnings in 1943 exceeding 12 millions.

Seek Own Reorganization.

Proponents of a separate reorganization of the surface lines say that the wage situation strengthens their case; they always have been confident they could earn more going their own way than combining with the "L." The surface lines have the cash to make betterments as soon as priorities for equipment can be had—probably not before the war ends.

All these factors will be taken into consideration by the I. C. C., which recently asked the company attorneys to speed their case. The attorneys closed their presentation of evidence last Wednesday, and it is possible the commission's decision may be handed down sometime in January.

INCREASED FEDERAL CONTROL OF NATION'S UTILITIES PREDICTED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25 (AP).—The American Council on Public Affairs, a private research organization, today issued a report predicting greater federal control of the electric utility industry after the war.

"The industry under wartime conditions is undergoing great changes, particularly in its interstate aspects," said the study, prepared by Dr. Robert D. Baum. "The growth of large scale generating sources, long distance transmission lines, and increased coördination of interconnection and interchange point to the likelihood that federal control in the post-war period will be more significant than before the war."

Dr. Baum recommended that state control of local power distribution be retained, but that duplication and overlapping of functions of state regulatory agencies and the federal power commission be eliminated.

NORTH. PACIFIC'S REVENUES REACH NOVEMBER PEAK

Northern Pacific railway operating revenues of $11,749,419 in November were the largest for that month in the company's history and $4,053,319 above November, 1941, the monthly report to the interstate commerce commission revealed yesterday.

November freight revenue of $9,774,376, an increase of $2,958,375, also was an all-time high for that month. Passenger revenue of $1,064,987 was the highest for November since 1923 and an increase of $739,187 over November, 1941.

November operating expenses rose $1,071,215 to a total of $6,966,053 and tax accruals for the month were $2,104,874, an increase of $1,287,650.

Net railway operating income was $3,036,819, an increase of $1,708,055.

Strike In Rail Yard Threat to New Pipe Line

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 25 (AP).—Unless work is resumed soon on rail yard facilities at the Norris City, Ill., terminus of the Texas-Illinois pipeline, delivery of oil to the east scheduled for about Feb. 1 will be delayed.

B. E. Hull, general manager of War Emergency Pipelines, Inc., predicted disruption of the schedule after work stopped yesterday because of a jurisdictional labor dispute.

Hull explained that construction of sidings, loading tracks, and about 10 miles of railroad is being done by the Acme Railroad Construction company which "for eight years has had a contract with the maintenance of way union of the American Federation of Labor."

Acme employés were informed by representatives of the AFL Hodcarriers' union at Carbondale, Ill., Hull said, that they must join the hodcarriers' union if they wish to continue work.

Halt Shipyard Work.

Kearny, N. J., Dec. 25 (AP).—Work has been halted in the sprawling yards of the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company by more than 5,000 employés who put down their tools four hours before the quitting whistle yesterday and demanded their wages.

A score of windows and several doors in the plant were broken during a demonstration at the paymaster's window, said Chief Patrick Dolan of the Hudson county police.

A company spokesman said that preparations had been made to pay the workers at 12:30 a. m., at the end of the second shift. The yards were to have stopped work then for the holiday today. When the men began lining up at the window at 8:10 p. m., the pay roll had not been made up, the spokesman said.

Car Strike Ends.

Newport News, Va., Dec. 25 (AP).—A two day strike of bus and street car operators ended early today after the Citizens Rapid Transit corporation agreed to reinstate without prejudice two union members who had been suspended for refusal to operate their buses.

Thomas B. Morton, conciliator of the United States department of labor, said the strikers were informed also that the war labor board would take up for consideration on Monday the issue of increased wages. The strikers, he said, were disappointed that the wage increase issue, which has been before the board for several months, had not been decided.

Settlement of the strike, which seriously hampered transportation in this busy war industry center, was reached about 3 a. m. The company and offices of local 1188, Amalgamated Association of Street Car and Motor Coach Employés, AFL, arrived at a "voluntary agreement in the interest of the war effort" for the strikers to return to work.

Illinois Central November Net Income Is Much Larger

Net income of the Illinois Central system rose to $2,710,929 in November from $559,840 in November, 1941. Eleven months' net income totaled $21,883,928, against $8,866,281 in the same period last year.

Nobody Seems to Solve Riddle of Missing Pigs

Pigs Don't Go to Market.

Housewives searching the butcher shops in vain for their usual supplies of pork are not the only ones who are not able to figure out what has happened to that vast flood of hogs that the nation has been led to expect. Neither can the packers nor the department of agriculture.

The department guessed wrong last September when it predicted hog slaughter for October, November, and December would exceed the corresponding 1941 quarter by 25 per cent. The October and November volume was only 6 per cent higher and this month's production has not come any closer to reaching the forecast.

The Opposite Is True.

In preparation for the expected flood of shipments, the department had set up an elaborate embargo plan designed to keep the markets from being overwhelmed. The plan is still on paper and the markets, instead of being overwhelmed, cannot supply the demand.

Packers who are paying far more for hogs than they had expected, but glad to get them, believe part of the answer to the question of what has happened to the hogs lies in the refrigerated lockers scattered thruout the country. The lockers are doing a land office business, but there are no authentic figures on the amount of pork producers are disposing of in this manner instead of thru the regular market channels.

Seek Higher Prices.

As another clue, it is believed that farmers plan to hold most of their hogs off the market until January, and thus reap the benefit of higher prices paid for greater weight. Packers say that this cannot be the complete answer to the question, however, because the January runs to market would have to be enormous to make up the difference between actual shipments during the last quarter of 1942 and the predicted volume.

In the meantime, the scramble for available supplies goes on daily in Chicago and other marketing centers. Government buyers have first call on the supplies, to fill unprecedented military and lend-lease orders. The civilian trade takes what is left, and it is not enough to satisfy demands.

Banks and Most Markets Will Be Reopened Today

Domestic banks, securities exchanges and most commodity markets will reopen today after being closed for the Christmas holiday. The Chicago Mercantile exchange and Canadian banks and markets will reopen Monday.

OLD ELEVATOR, CITY LANDMARK, BOWS TO TIME

Played Major Role in Early Trade.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Another old Chicago landmark will soon disappear from the downtown skyline—the Illinois Central grain elevator on the south bank of the Chicago river several hundred feet east of the Michigan avenue bridge. Wreckers just before Christmas started tearing apart the sturdy wood beams at the top of the structure, which is known as Elevator A.

Charles H. Mottier, chief engineer for the Illinois Central, said that the elevator, used to the last to store grain, has become obsolete. Because it would have to come down eventually for the extension of Wacker drive along the river the cost to modernize it was not believed justified.

As the wreckers tore away at the building its strong timbers were exposed, disclosing a type of construction made obsolete by the modern period of steel and concrete. Some of the material in the building is to be used again because of scarcities.

Helped Build Chicago.

Old Elevator A has played an important part in Chicago's life. Back in 1855 Solomon Sturges and Alvah Buckingham formed a partnership to build elevators in which to store the grain which helped to make Chicago one of the world's great trading centers. In 1855 they put up Elevator A, and two years later constructed Elevator B, which served the nation during the Civil war.

The Chicago fire destroyed Elevator A but B was untouched—the only elevator left standing in the area. Two years later A was rebuilt with a capacity of a million bushels. And again the two elevators contributed to the city's prosperity.

Michael S. Kerwin, who retired eight years ago after serving 46 years with the fire department, recalled some history of the two elevators. Shortly after the turn of the century Kerwin and the late Edward J. Buckley, a battalion chief, made an inspection.

"What Would You Do?"

They went to the top of the big elevators and looked around. The superintendent assured them the elevators were in good condition—fire hoses and buckets of water were in place ready for any emergency.

"But what would you do if a fire started up here," persisted Buckley.

The superintendent hesitated a moment. Kerwin recalls, looked Buckley in the eye and said:

"Well, to tell you the truth, I'd get out of this building in a jump and run as fast as I could for Michigan avenue." [Grain elevators in those days had a habit of exploding.]

MINIMUM LOAD ORDER CAUSES RAIL CAR SAVING

The office of defense transportation announced yesterday that substantial savings of freight cars and motor power have been made since an order issued Nov. 1 fixed minimum limits for loading of carload freight. Increases ranging from 14 to more than 22 per cent in average weight of loads per car were reported in November, compared with October.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIO.

Any information you have on recent operations of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad will be appreciated.—B. G.

Answer: The Chesapeake and Ohio railroad operates approximately 3,125 miles of track extending thru the coal fields of West Virginia and Kentucky to Washington, D. C., and thru Toledo, O., to Chicago. The road also connects many of the smaller industrial cities of Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia, and Virginia.

Bituminous coal shipments represent about 80 per cent of total freight volume handled, the road being the second largest carrier of that commodity in the country. Other principal traffic items are manufactured goods, mine products other than coal, lumber, and agricultural products.

The present company was organized in Virginia and West Virginia in 1879 under a reorganization of the original Chesapeake and Ohio railroad company which was incorporated in 1868. Thru the acquisition of other lines and some new construction, the road has achieved its present size. Since 1925 facilities have been modernized and substantial investments have been made in other roads.

At the end of 1941 the Chesapeake and Ohio owned 48.63 per cent of the outstanding stock of the Pere Marquette railroad and 57.02 per cent of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis railroad common.

Capitalization at the end of 1941 was 7,657,354 shares of $25 par common stock outstanding, 153,147 shares of $100 par 4 per cent noncumulative preference stock, and a total funded debt of $220,345,000. A record of financial results in recent years follows:

	Operating rev.	Net income.	Per share [com.].
1941....	$150,237,334	$44,990,744	$5.79
1940....	132,730,172	33,501,166	4.31
1939....	118,722,054	27,342,711	3.49
1938....	106,376,482	20,682,833	2.62
1937....	127,346,701	34,563,446	4.43

Operating income in the first 10 months of 1942 was $150,553,938 and net profit amounted to $24,660,047, equal to $3.15 per share of common stock, compared with $124,829,916 and $32,820,377, or $4.22 a share, in the corresponding period of 1941.

Dividends paid on the common stock during recent years were $3.80 plus $2 a share in 4 per cent preference stock in 1937, $2 a share in 1938, $2.50 in 1939, $3.25 in 1940, and $3.50 in 1941. The common shares ranged from 68¾ to 22 from 1937 thru 1941 on the New York Stock exchange.
